TRAVELLING FROM the south end of Florida, through that long state, through Georgia, South Carolina, North Carolina, Virginia, to Washington and on to the cold North, you are struck by the absence of population in this "congested East."

Mile after mile, through hundreds of thousands of acres, you see few houses or human beings. And, where the colored population dominates you see often a scratching of the soil rather than real cultivation.

In one place a Negro holds an antiquated small plow, one cow, or it might be an under-sized ox, attached to it. A woman urges on the cow, while the man steers the plow. Farther on a man and a woman are hoeing in rough ground; another cow attached to a tree, with a ramshackle plow harnessed to her, awaits her turn.

And, while millions of fertile acres are wasted, we talk about "over-population" and shut out the people from other countries that would make all this soil productive.

GOV. WHITE, of Ohio, says legal beer will end racketeering. It may, but not soon. Too many have grown accustomed to living on crime.

Mr. Al Capone, super-captain of our great industry, in his prison in Chicago, said to this writer:

"What's going to become of my people if they stop my beer business? I have two or three hundred young men working for me, nice boys, with their little homes and kiddies, making one hundred and fifty to two hundred and fifty dollars a week. Anybody who thinks they will go back to jobs at thirty dollars a week doesn't know much."

Also the "jobs at thirty dollars a week" are no longer there.

THE "UNEMPLOYED bootlegger problem" may be with us soon if the plan is carried out to free from prison all jailed for violating prohibition laws.

Gov. Rolph, of California, says that as soon as his state's overwhelming vote against prohibition is certified he will free one thousand convicted of bootlegging. It will be hard for the 1,000 to accustom themselves to "$30 a week" and harder still to find the thirty dollars.

NEW CASTLE, Pa., develops a new idea. Gentlemen that steal milk bottles left on doorsteps go early before the milk is delivered and scribble a note asking for two extra quarts.

The customer and milk man know nothing about it until settling time comes weeks later.

It is an old idea started in Wall Street. Down there the financial genius scribbles a note, ordering tens of millions more shares of stock. The customer doesn't know anything about that until some time later, when settling time comes. This depression is settling time.

LOOK NOW for many shooting stars. The earth should be passing through swarms of "leonid" meteors, composed largely of iron flying through space at terrific speed, forty-four miles a second, becoming red hot and falling to the earth as "shooting stars" when they strike our atmosphere.

Thin as is the upper atmosphere, the terrific speed of meteors causes friction that melts iron.

The earth passes at intervals through these meteor swarms, which for a billion years have added to the mass of the earth, settling in meteor dust on the bed of the ocean.

PERHAPS MUCH greater meteoric swarms are the food on which our sun lives as it rolls through space, as a gigantic whale lives on tiny marine creatures as it travels through the cold ocean. The learned Jeans says the sun throws out and loses 250 million tons of weight every minute, has done so for millions of years, and must become exhausted and disappear eventually.

Perhaps meteoric food absorbed by the sun offsets the sun's loss of weight caused by breaking down of atoms and propulsions of electrons into space.

COL. TURNER, Los Angeles pilot, establishes a new California championship, with a new East-West flight from the Atlantic to the Pacific in 12 hours 33 minutes, beating by two hours the record of Frank Hawks.

This is big news. The world awaits something to end this depression and the flying machine may do it.

Steam started one great boom after Waterloo; the gold rush in '49 started another; electricity, used for light and power, started another; the automobile started the recent great boom, which war's squandering raised to a frenzy.

For men the most important thing is life, and next comes movement. The perfected airplane, America to Europe in ten hours, New York to San Francisco, or Seattle to Jacksonville, Fla., in ten hours, may start the next big boom. But don't wait for that; with intelligent hard work man may start his own private boom.

PRESIDENT HOOVER invited Gov. Roosevelt to talk about war debts, bringing, if he chose, important Democrats.

Gov. Roosevelt will discuss, but thinks the meeting "should be wholly informal and personal," which means only Hoover and Roosevelt present.

PROBE CALLS FOR BANKING RECORDS OF OFFICIALS

New Law for Curb on Mergers and Holding Concerns Planned

HARRISBURG, Nov. 16.—(AP.)—The State Senate Utility Investigating Committee today issued "blanket subpenas for all living former and present Public Service Commissioners" to produce their banking and brokerage accounts and at the same time made its first recommendation for legislation to bolster the state's utility laws.

The committee, at an executive session, directed its counsel to draft bills to control holding companies and previously unrestricted mergers and consolidations. The measures will be prepared by Oliver K. Eaton, Pittsburgh; John G. Hervy, Philadelphia, and J. Julius Levy, Scranton, committee counsel and experts, for presentation to the 1933 General Assembly in January.

INSULL DEAL CITED

Senator William S. Rial, Westmoreland, chairman of the committee, said the bills will be planned to correct practices revealed by the inquiry into the Penn Central Light and Power Company, Insull subsidiary.

Senator Rial said the suppenaes for the commissioners were made returnable Wednesday, November 30, to permit those called to take legal action to test the committee's power if they wish to do so.

Rial explained this procedure was adopted because some question had arisen in the committee regarding the scope of the investi-

MISS PATTERSON M'LEAN

Professor's Wedding To Co-ed Delayed By School Work

Necessity for attendance at college classes today had postponed—for a few hours—the marriage of a University of Pittsburgh professor and his pretty 20-year-old co-ed fiancee.

Prof. Walter G. Friedrich, 35, of 355 South Atlantic avenue, said he would have to wait until classes were finished before he could lead his bride-to-be, Patterson (Patty) McLean, of 924 Farragut street, to the altar. He said:

"Patty and I will have to wait until classes are over before the wedding bells will ring."

The campus romance became known yesterday, when they took out a marriage license at the county marriage licenses office. The romance is said to have started three years ago, when the Pitt English professor came here from Knoxville, Tenn.

Miss McLean is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John N. McLean and is one of the best-known girl students on the university campus. She was graduated last June and has been taking a graduate course in psychology.

The honeymoon will also be halted by college classes, according to Prof. Friedrich. He said they will have to wait until Thanksgiving, when they will take a trip through New Jersey and New York.

The marriage ceremony was to be performed late today by the Rev. H. Woidke, of Swissvale. He was a school classmate of Prof. Friedrich.

Grimes Undergoes Appendix Operation

ST. LOUIS, Nov. 16.—(INS.)—Burleigh Grimes, veteran spitball pitcher of the Chicago Cubs, was operated on for appendicitis in St. John's Hospital here today.

BANK CLOSES ON NORTH SIDE

The Real Estate Savings and Trust Company, 516 Federal street, North Side, failed to open today.

The board of directors met last night with J. D. Swigart, chief examiner of the State Department of Banking, and decided to turn the bank over to the State Department.

According to Swigart such heavy withdrawals had been made in the last few days that it was considered best to close the bank in the interests of the depositors.

Walter C. Brenneis has been appointed receiver and is already in charge.

The Real Estate Savings and Trust Company had total deposits of $2,699,462 at the time of the last bank call, September 30. A year ago its deposits amounted to $4,210,144.

Officers of the Real Estate Savings and Trust Company, according to a 1932 listing, are: President, James M. Duncan; vice president, C. V. Watkins, and secretary-treasurer, E. A. Young.

Carole Lombard Has Flu Attack

HOLLYWOOD, Nov. 16.—(AP.)—Carole Lombard, motion picture star, was confined to her home today by an attack of influenza. Her physician notified her studio she could not return to work for a week.

Snow, 25-Degree Drop In Temperature Due

Rain arrived from the storm-swept West today and will be followed by snow with a 25-degree drop in temperature by tomorrow, the Weather Bureau predicted.

The mercury is expected to fall to between 20 and 25 degrees tonight from a mark of 48 recorded with the coming of the rain.

With blizzard conditions prevailing in the Midwest, eight persons were reported dead, four each in Missouri and Illinois.

Absence of wind caused a pall of smoke and fog to settle over downtown Pittsburgh this morning. The murkiness was so pronounced that in the Supreme Court rooms of the Courthouse, where the vote recount is being made, the overhead lighting system was not sufficient to enable the clerks to read figures accurately. Floor lamps were procured at the instance of Judge John P. Egan.

The fog and mist also prevented a view of a celestial show, a shower of meteors, debris from Tempel's comet. The star display occurs every 33 years, but in 1899 failed to show, Dr. Frank C. Jordan, director of Allegheny Observatory, said.

Astronomers at Harvard University reported seeing hundreds of meteors last night.

SOCIETY PAIR THREATENED BY ROBBERS

Wife Yields Gems as Invaders Talk of Child Kidnaping

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 16—(AP.)—Bound and gagged by two masked men, Mr. and Mrs. George Harrison Frazier, Jr., socially prominent, were threatened early today with torture and the kidnaping of their children until they revealed the hiding places of cash and jewelry. A maid also was tied up.

The robbers lighted a candle and declared they would burn the husband's feet if the valuables were not brought forth, Mrs. Frazier said.

The men escaped with about $9,000 worth of gems, all insured, and $27. The children were not molested.

Mrs. Frazier released herself and the other victims after the robbers fled by pulling some matches from an ash tray and burning her own bonds.

Speaking of the robbery as she sat in her living room today, Mrs. Frazier, the former Marys Bernon Clark, daughter of Herbert Lincoln Clark, said that despite her fright she could not help thinking of what she termed the "comic side" of the invasion.

As she talked, the oldest child, John, 6, played on the floor with bits of gags and ropes the robbers had made mostly from Mrs. Frazier's best linens. He and his sister, Elizabeth Hall Frazier, 3, slept through the robbery.

WOMAN HIT-RUN DRIVER HUNTED

City and county police today searched for a woman hit-run driver, believed drunk, of the automobile which sped away after colliding with another machine in Brownsville road, near Ormsby street, Mt. Oliver, shortly after midnight.

The machine was overturned, causing a slight head injury to Clifford W. Goff, 23, of 510 Hervey street, Mt. Oliver. His injury was treated at the scene and he joined police in the search for the driver of the automobile, who was described in a police radio broadcast as "being intoxicated."

Mt. Oliver police said the fugitive automobile bore license plates D3074, which they said had been issued to Attorney John Steel Phillips, of 4516 Fifth avenue, prominent in Pittsburgh society.

Attorney Phillips expressed surprise when informed of the accident. He said:

"Why, I don't think it possible. I was very busy last night and went home around 11 o'clock and was in bed before midnight."

A short time after the accident the automobile involved was reported seen in West Liberty avenue, speeding toward Pittsburgh. A downtown police radio automobile was sent scurrying across Liberty Bridge to the entrance to the tubes. The driver of the automobile skirted the police car and disappeared.

Police said the missing machine had lost part of a fender in the accident.

Train Lost 4 Hours In Heavy Snowstorm

WARSAW, Ind., Nov. 16.—(INS.)—A Winona Railroad freight train which left Peru, Ind., early today was lost for four hours in the record-breaking snowstorm which gripped this section of Indiana today.

The dispatcher's office at general headquarters of the railroad here finally located the train at Akron, Ind. The crew explained it had been bucking drifts and had to resort to shovels at times.

Hoover Back, Expected To Ask Debt Payments

Confers With Mills, Other Members Of Cabinet

WASHINGTON, Nov. 16.—(INS.)—President Hoover returned to the capital today to face the united demand of European debtors for postponement of current payments due, pending downward revision of the debts as a whole and a Congress that is almost 100 per cent hostile to the proposal.

Under the circumstances, it is believed Mr. Hoover can do little else than reject the demand of the European debtors, announce that they must meet their payments due December 15, and project the whole question into the new Democratic administration, which comes into power next March.

There will be no final determination on this point, however, until Mr. Hoover has conferred with President-elect Roosevelt at the White House next Tuesday.

Mr. Roosevelt already has plainly indicated, however, that he

Bank Closing Delays Teachers' Payday

Teachers and other employes of West View Borough schools whose payday was to be Friday, will not receive their pay because of the closing of the Real Estate Savings and Trust Company, North Side.

While borough school board funds are protected by bond, the secretary, H. G. Canning, said arrangements for the payroll will probably not be made until next week, when a board meeting is planned.

Garbo Visits Paris, Still Wears Glasses

PARIS, Nov. 16.—(AP.)—Greta Garbo has been in Paris since Thursday incognito and wearing the horn-rimmed glasses that disguised her in London, said Paris Midi today.

The Swedish movie star was accompanied by the Countess of Wactmeister as companion. She shopped and planned to leave tomorrow for Stockholm.

Reaches for Gun Too Late to Save Pants

When in doubt, reach for your trousers.

That's the slogan Joe Hartman, of 815 Holland avenue, Wilkinsburg, advocates today.

Awakened shortly before last midnight as he slept beside an open window at his home, Hartman saw his trousers being slowly pulled from the foot of his bed. As he reached for his gun the trousers abruptly disappeared through the open window.

They contained a small amount of money. Said Hoffman to police:

"Right there is where I made a mistake—when I reached for that gun, I should have grabbed those pants. After this, when in doubt, I'll reach for my trousers."

Football Star Dies As Result of Tackle

COLORADO SPRINGS, Col., Nov. 16.—(AP.)—Ralph McClure, 21-year-old Colorado College football star, died today of injuries received in last Saturday's game with the University of Colorado. He suffered a fracture of the cervical vertebrae when he tackled George Grosvenor, university halfback.

He leaves a widow and a 6-month-old baby.

BABIES SAVED, GIRL HEROINE

Betty Jane Cole, 12, of 224 Reifert street, Knoxville, today was a heroine in the eyes of her playmates. Yesterday she helped Mrs. Beatrice Tuttle, of 228 Reifert street, rescue Mrs. Tuttle's two babies, Donald, 21 months, and Edward, 5 months, from their smoke-filled home. Betty was passing when she saw smoke and ran in to aid Mrs. Tuttle. She carried out Edward.

The babies were asleep when fire broke out in the two-story building, in which three other families live. They also escaped the flames. The blaze apparently had started in a rubbish box at the rear of the building and caused damage estimated at $1,000.

Mrs. Laura Eckert, 54, was rescued by firemen when fire broke out in the basement of a three-story brick apartment at 5805 Rural street last night. Five families were routed by smoke. The damage was estimated at $300.

Sweeney Frees Four On Numbers Charge

South Side detectives seized more than 100 books such as used by numbers lotteries when they raided the second floor at 102 South Twenty-first street, but Magistrate John J. Sweeney today held these did not constitute evidence of lottery operation.

Four men, listed as Clarence Bishop, 31, South Twentieth street; Joseph Miller, 21, of Carey way; Ernest Weiland, 32, and Walter Twardy, 24, of Leticoe street, were released.

Cat Has 8 Lives Left After 4-Story Fall

As a result of a four-story fall to a concrete pavement, Tiger, an 8-month-old cat, has eight of his nine lives today.

It was all because of the coming winter that Tiger lost his one life. William Reddington, his owner, removed the screens from the fourth floor window of his home, Walnut street and Fifth avenue, McKeesport, yesterday. Tiger was accustomed to jump to his seat in the window and use the screen as a backstop.

Imagine his embarrassment, on jumping to the window yesterday, to find that the screen was removed.

He was picked up on the pavement by Reddington and rushed to a veterinary, who said Tiger still had eight perfectly good lives left and nothing else wrong with him.

WRECK PLOT FOILED AT CEREMONY

Thousands of Police On Guard for Prince

BULLETIN.

BELFAST, Northern Ireland, Nov. 16.—(AP.)—Anti-British elements in Ireland answered the visit of the Prince of Wales with an almost successful effort to wreck a train bringing sightseers from Kell to Belfast.

BELFAST, Northern Ireland, Nov. 16.—(INS.)—With thousands of police and volunteer guards on duty to prevent disturbances, the Prince of Wales today opened the new Parliament Buildings of Northern Ireland at Stormont.

Despite fears that disorders might occur during the Prince's visit, the colorful ceremonies passed off without any disturbance.

The only thing to mar the occasion was the action of Nationalist members of Parliament in boycotting the proceedings as a protest against employment of 10,000 Orangemen to line the streets along the Prince's route to the new buildings. They based their boycott on the charge that the royal presence was being exploited for political ends.

The ovation given the heir to the British throne on his arrival appeared to make groundless fears that the recent wave of Nationalist feeling throughout Northern Ireland might lead to unpleasant incidents.

All along his five-mile drive from the Belfast quay, the Prince was greeted by a steady thunder of cheering.

CAPONE FACES COURT IN PLEA

ATLANTA, Ga., Nov. 16.—(INS.)—Secretly slipped into the Federal Building through a side entrance to escape a curious crowd, Al Capone, deposed Chicago gang overlord, was removed from Atlanta Penitentiary today and went before Federal Judge E. Marvin Underwood to battle for reduction of his 10-year sentence for income tax evasion.

The gangster was in high spirits as he waited in an anteroom for more than hour before the hearing began. Despite the indignity of handcuffs, which were not removed until he entered the courtroom, Capone was smiling and cheerful.

The federal government presented a vigorous opposition to Capone's bid for liberty. The gangster's plea for freedom is based on the contention that his conviction was invalidated by the United States Supreme Court's interpretation of the statute of limitations as three instead of six years.

Roxie Long Indicted As U.S. Tax Evader

Roxie Long today was indicted by the federal grand jury on charges of evading payment of $890 income tax for 1930 and 1931. The government charges that his gross income for the two years totaled $28,188.

Recently Long pleaded guilty to conspiracy to violate the prohibition laws. He had been indicted on this charge with 44 others.

3 Shoot at Rabbit, Hunter Only Victim

Three hunters, scouring the woods near Cemetery lane, off Babcock boulevard, Ross Township, blazed away at the same rabbit today, and the only casualty was one of the hunters.

The wounded hunter, Emil Eichenfels, 29, of 150 Brahm street, was taken to the Allegheny General Hospital.

WETS DEMAND CONGRESS HALT DRY ENFORCEMENT FUNDS

CHARGE WASTE OF MILLIONS YEARLY

O'Connor Speeds Work On Beer Bill, Sees Hope for Wine, Too

By WILLIAM S. NEAL
International News Service.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 16.—Demands of extreme wets for discontinuance of federal appropriations for enforcement of prohibition confronted congressional leaders today.

The pressure for this action in the forthcoming session was disclosed in letters of suggestion for prohibition legislation received by Representative John J. O'Connor (Dem.), of New York.

$43,000,000 YEARLY

Direct appropriations for dry law enforcement, through the Prohibition Bureau, Coast Guard, Treasury and other agencies, amount to $43,000,000 a year, according to O'Connor. Indirect appropriations such as cost of handling cases in the federal courts and prisons, are not included. He said:

"Suggestions have been made that it is a waste of money to provide for further enforcement when it is apparent that the people don't want it. If carried to a logical conclusion, this attitude would mean repeal of the entire Volstead Act and the Eighteenth Amendment."

Relief for the taxpayers through a general manufacturers' sales tax, including a levy on legalized beer, is the most important legislation facing the December session of Congress, in the opinion of Representative Fred A. Britten (Rep.), of Illinois. He said:

"The tremendous vote throughout the country would justify modification of the Volstead act, thereby placing in circulation $200,000,000 for rehabilitation of the breweries. The government would receive $50,000,000 a month in revenue from beer."

O'CONNOR OPTIMISTIC

While O'Connor was conferring with House members in the hope of speeding enactment of a beer bill, Representative Rainey, of Illinois, Democratic House leader, dashed cold water on the hopes of beer advocates by predicting the short session would not pass a beer bill. He believes the question will be reserved for a special session which he expects Gov. [illegible] to call. O'Connor, however, said:

"I do not have much doubt about the House passing a beer bill this winter. I am beginning to believe the Senate will act and while I thought President Hoover would not sign such a bill, I have changed my mind."

Many members, he said, are demanding that wine be legalized as well as beer. They argue, he said, that because wine is drunk in small quantities, 12 per cent wine would not be more intoxicating than three per cent beer.

'BEER CURE' HIT BY M. E. BOARD

SCRANTON, Nov. 16.—(AP)—In its first official expression on the prohibition question since the presidential election, the Methodist Episcopal Board of Bishops reaffirms the church's position on prohibition and asserts "prosperity can never be purchased by beer."

The bishops in a resolution called on Congress to "stand by its adherence to the Constitution and its enforcing laws."

The resolutions noted that "the recent election did not change the Constitution or any national law" and asserted that "until laws are changed by the orderly legal processes, public officials are now under obligation to be guided by them" and "should remember their oath of office."

Congressman Named Brewery President

ELIZABETH, N. J., Nov. 16.—(INS.)—There seemed little doubt today how Representative Oscar L. Auf Der Heide, re-elected last week, would vote should the short session of Congress consider modification of the Volstead Act.

Representative Aud Der Heide was selected president of a brewing company here, which planned to start operating its plant as soon as beer was legalized.

HOOVER TO ASK DEBT PAYMENT

considers the immediate problem of the December 15 payments to be up to "those now in executive and legislative authority." Moreover, Mr. Roosevelt intimated he would make no commitments.

President Hoover arrived in Washington at 8:30 o'clock this morning and went immediately to the White House to plunge into the work that has piled up during his absence in California.

Vice President Curtis, most of the members of the cabinet, and several hundred others congregated in the concourse of the Union Station and gave Mr. Hoover a cordial reception.

The President shook hands all around with his cabinet and boarded the waiting limousine. He appeared cheerful and glad to be back in the capital.

At 9 o'clock Mr. Hoover was at his desk in the executive offices going over accumulated papers.

Only a few clerks and stenographers were about at that time, and Mr. Hoover had the offices to himself.

MILLS CALLS

The President's first caller was Secretary of the Treasury Mills, who was closeted with him almost half an hour.

They discussed the war debts question briefly. Mills indicated upon leaving the White House that the matter is up to the House of Representatives rather than the White House, as the executive branch of the government has no authority to extend the moratorium nor to effect revision downward.

After Mills departed, Everett Sanders, chairman of the Republican National Committee, who conducted Mr. Hoover's unsuccessful campaign for re-election, saw the President in his office, as did Henry J. Allen, the party's publicity director.

Secretary of State Stimson was invited to the White House for lunch, at which time it was presumed they went over the entire debt situation.

Senator David A. Reed (Rep.), of Pennsylvania, headed a long line of visitors who called on Mr. Hoover. He said he had called merely to pay his respects and refused to comment on the European debt situation.

Secretary of Labor Doak was another caller.

CONGRESS BOILING

Congress is at the boiling point on the whole subject of the foreign debts.

It reluctantly and grudingly approved the one-year moratorium that Mr. Hoover arranged 18 months ago. The moratorium has failed to accomplish what was expected of it, and has, in fact, done little except provide an opening wedge for renewed European pressure for cancellation in whole or in part.

Under these circumstances, congressional opinion is almost solidly against any further procrastination in the matter of the debts.

Republican and Democratic leaders, without regard to factions or economic theories, are agreed upon this point. It will take some miraculous missionary work to persuade them otherwise.

The apparent teamwork of the European debtors in making their drive for cancellation, and the similar tenor of their communications stating their inability to pay the December 15 installments, have only served to intensify congressional feeling in the matter.

BELGIUM'S PAYMENT

Belgium's payment due next month amounts only to $2,125,000. No one in Washington believes that the payment of so relatively a small sum would shatter or endanger Belgium's solvency. And the feeling is the same, or even more so, about France's $19,000,000 due on the same date. France has found 20 times that amount to spend on armament without much difficulty.

If it were a matter of temporary financial stringency abroad, it was pointed out that the debt agreements themselves provide for a means of relief. Each of the agreements contain an escape clause, whereby a debtor nation by 90 days' notice to the Treasury can postpone its principal payments for two years.

But instead of availing themselves of that clause, the debtors chose instead to wait until a bare month before payment was due and then make common cause of their drive for cancellation.

It doesn't sit well with Congress—especially at a time when the United States Treasury deficit is mounting toward the billion mark for the current fiscal year, and Congress is confronted with the unwelcome task of finding additional pockets of the taxpayer to explore.

HOOVER TRAILS BY 6,451,302

WASHINGTON, Nov. 16.—(AP.)—Franklin D. Roosevelt's plurality in the presidential election stood today at 6,451,303 over President Hoover's vote. The total vote for all candidates thus far compiled by the Associated Press is 37,199,946.

Figures were complete today for only 14 states.

Tabulation showed Roosevelt had received 21,506,742 ballots and President Hoover 15,055,440.

Until the official count in the various states has been completed, the standing of the various minor party candidates cannot be computed.

In the returns thus far received Norman Thomas, Socialist candidate, has 566,301 votes.

Trotzky Under Guard In Greek Seaport

PIRAEUS, Greece, Nov. 16.—(INS.)—Forced by an order from the Greek government to remain inside his cabin, Leon Trotsky, exiled Bolshevist leader, arrived today from Istanbul en route to Copenhagen.

Trotsky, who has lived in Turkey since Josef Stalin sent him into exile more than two years ago because of his oppositionist tactics, reached Piraeus aboard the Italian steamship Praga. An army of plainclothes detectives took up positions on the wharf and on the deck of the ship, preventing any one from approaching the exile.

Trotsky's Turkish passport bore a French transit visa and a Danish eight-day visa. He plans to lecture in Copenhagen and also hopes to visit friends in Vienna.

LONDON, Nov. 16.—(Universal.)—Leon Trotzky, one-time leader of Soviet Russia with Nicolai Lenin, and later exiled by Josef Stalin, has applied to the State Department in Washington for permission to return to America to study, it was revealed today.

Max Eastman, noted radical, who has just returned from Istanbul where he visited Trotzky, disclosed the former Soviet foreign affairs commissar's project. Eastman said that the State Department has not yet answered Trotzky.

GOV. ROOSEVELT QUITS SICKBED, BEGINS WORK

Takes Up Budget Task But Stays in Room, Refuses Callers

International News Service.

ALBANY, N. Y., Nov. 16.—For the first time since last Friday when he was stricken with a mild attack of influenza, Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt, President-elect, left his bed today and began work on the state budget.

The Governor canceled his plans at the last minute to go downstairs and work in his study. Instead, he asked Budget Director Mark Graves to come to his bedroom. Mr. Roosevelt said:

"I'm coming along fine, but I decided not to leave the room for at least another day."

He remained in bed until nearly noon, dictating to his private secretary, Marguerite Lehand. Callers at the mansion were informed that the Governor would not see anyone, except a few state officials, until tomorrow.

Roosevelt Studies Russia As New Market for U. S.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 16.—(INS.)—One of the first acts of [illegible]nklin D. Roosevelt as President will be to order a study of the commercial and political effects of recognizing Russia, it was learned today.

Already friendly to the idea of Russian recognition, President-elect Roosevelt will investigate the question to determine its effects on American institutions and the expansion of America's foreign commerce. If the inquiry reveals potential benefits to the American people, Mr. Roosevelt will order American recognition of the union of Soviet republics.

A Democratic leader, regarded as being in Mr. Roosevelt's confidence, said the President-elect was "leaning" toward Russian recognition if such a course would open new markets for American [illegible]oducts—without endangering home markets for domestic producers. He said a "clear majority" of Democratic Senators favored recognition of Russia.

Democratic leaders have little fear of the political effects of Russian recognition, either on their party's future successes at the polls or on American institutions. They point out that the American people "revolted" in the recent election — a "revolt" entirely in keeping with American institutions, since it was bloodless and accomplished with the ballot instead of the bayonet. One leader said:

"If American institutions were safe under the duress of the last two years we have nothing to fear from recognition of Russia."

gators' inquisitorial powers under the state constitution.

BANK PROBE DEFERRED

He said the committee authority is provided by the search and seizure provisions of the constitution and that the inquiry of commissioners' bank accounts will be deferred until the scope of the committee powers has been definitely settled.

The action followed the failure of some present and former commissioners to furnish all bank account data asked by Eaton.

Chairman Clyde L. King and Commissioners George Woodruff, P. Stephen Stahlnecker and former Commissioner Richard J. Beamish forwarded information covering the period of their actual service on the commission. Eaton had requested data covering the last 10 years.

Commissioner S. Ray Shelby did not reply to Eaton's request, while former Commissioner James S. Benn, through an attorney, refused to supply the information. Commissioners Samuel Walker and Frederick P. Gruenberg gave complete data.

RECORDS REFUSED

At its session today, J. R. Burns, 41, Harrisburg, an investigator for the committee, testified the Pennsylvania Electric Association had refused to give its correspondence files to the committee.

He said A. B. Millar, Harrisburg, executive director of the association, had refused to release the correspondence "on advice of counsel."

He said he saw "something" removed from the correspondence files and dropped into an open traveling bag on the floor.

Harold H. Buch, of New Cumberland, secretary and treasurer of the Pennsylvania Electric Association, the next witness, said the association had paid the bills of several state officials in connection with the association's 1923 convention.

Buch said the bills were legitimate expenses of speakers at the convention. They were F. Herbert Snow, then chief engineer of the Public Service Commission, $32; Philip D. Wells, then connected with the Attorney General's office and hired by Gov. Pinchot in his first term as an investigator for the Governor's giant power program, $9, and Former Chairman of the Public Service Commission W. D. Ainey an unnamed amount.

BIG PAYMENTS LISTED

Buch said a check for $2,378 was paid in 1931 to Morris Knowles, Inc., an engineering firm, and $6,750 to Charles H. English, attorney, of Erie, Pa., for services to the association in connection with the 1931 House utility inquiry.

To finance these payments, Buch said, the association collected the following amounts from member companies: Philadelphia Electric, $16,008; Metropolitan Edison, $2,835; Palmerton Lighting, $64; Bradford Electric, $258; Duquesne Electric, $8,022; Pennsylvania Light and Power, $7,750; Scranton Electric, $1,937; Pennsylvania Power Company, $775; Luzerne County Gas and Electric, $77; Chester Valley Electric, $26; Chester County Light and Power, $64; West Penn Power, $4,644; Pennsylvania Electric, $2,326; Erie Lighting, $522, and Republic Service Corporation, $200.

ROBERTS FREED IN VOTE CASE

David Roberts, Hill district politician, was free today of charges of violating the election laws through alleged wholesale purchase of fraudulent tax receipts. A Criminal Court jury found him not guilty and placed the costs of his trial on the county.

A. A. Donofrio, Twelfth Ward politician, immediately placed on trial before Judge G. V. Moore on similar charges, was defending his case today. It is alleged he purchased about 500 tax receipts, part of which are alleged to be fraudulent.

Arthur Drum, chief tax clerk in the County Treasurer's office, testified Donofrio purchased about 500 receipts, paying about $250 for them. Ten witnesses were called by Clunk late yesterday, and many more today, all of whom repudiated their "signatures" on tax orders.

M. Rici, another Twelfth Ward politician, scheduled to have gone on trial with Donofrio, was granted a severance and will be called for trial next Tuesday.

Alabama Orders Scottsboro Retrial

MONTGOMERY, Ala., Nov. 16.—(AP.)—Upon authority of the United States Supreme Court, the Alabama Supreme Court today reversed its decision affirming the death sentences of seven young Negroes for attacking two white girls near Scottsboro in 1931 and sent the cases back to Jackson Circuit Court for new trials.

One plan would say to Europe:

"We lent you eleven thousand million dollars, sent you three million men, squandered many billions of our own in your war. Yours is a debt of honor. We shall cancel nothing and be interested to see what your word of honor amounts to. Each of you may set upon it his own valuation."

DIAMOND BANK UNABLE TO GET R. F. C. AID

Federal Body Barred From Lending Cash For Capital

The Reconstruction Finance Corporation could not legally lend money to strengthen the capital structure of the Diamond National Bank, and for that reason no formal application for the loan was ever made, according to Vice President Andrew J. Huglin.

Atlee B. Pomerene, head of the R. F. C. at Washington, was told of the need for more capital for the Diamond Bank at a conference several weeks ago attended by Huglin and William Taylor, chief National Bank Examiner of the Fourth Federal Reserve District.

NO APPLICATION

After the conference, no application to the R. F. C. was made, according to Huglin. He said:

"Since the R. F. C. provisions did not permit loans for capital use, there was nothing Mr. Pomerene could do for us."

A meeting of the directors of the Diamond National Bank was held late yesterday, but in the absence of E. E. Rieck, chairman of the board, no statement was issued. Rieck is expected to return the latter part of the week.

A plan to merge the closed Diamond National and Monongahela National banks was being worked on yesterday, but those interested would make no statements. R. R. Gordon, receiver of the Diamond National Bank, stated he had no definite knowledge of a merger plan.

The capital stock of the Diamond Bank is listed at $600,000 and it was this weakness combined with the steady drain on deposits which forced the bank to close in the interests of remaining depositors, officials said. There is a possibility of a 100 per cent assessment against stockholders, it is reported.

RUMORS TRACED

United States District Attorney Louis E. Graham announced last night that men of the United States Secret Service have been stationed in various parts of the city to co-operate with state and county authorities in apprehending persons who circulate false, malicious and unfounded rumors regarding certain banks known to be in sound condition.

Twenty-four county detectives were assigned to duty in downtown and North Side districts for the same purpose. They were to patrol Fourth avenue, the Jenkins Arcade, the Market House, Wood street and Federal street. Detective Chief George W. Murren said:

Anyone caught circulating such rumors will be prosecuted, it is declared.

C. O. Thomas, receiver for the Bank of Pittsburgh, has been appointed receiver for the closed Duquesne National Bank.

Bank Closed, City Taxpayer Still Owes

Because the City Treasurer's office was slow to deposit a check, one taxpayer still owes for his taxes. The check, Council was told yesterday, was mailed a week ago, drawn on a downtown bank which closed this week.

The name of the taxpayer was withheld by Councilman P. J. McArdle, who presented a motion, asking the treasurer's office to deposit checks promptly. It was passed, although President John S. Herron pointed out there were two banking holidays last week which might have played a part in the delay.

Man Changing Tire Hit-Runner's Victim

Edward Dudley, 35, of 1011 Lang avenue, was in St. Francis Hospital today with a probable fracture of the skull suffered when he was struck by a hit-and-run motorist in Bigelow boulevard near Herron avenue last night. Dudley was changing a tire on his automobile when struck.

Count Glad to Escape Ellis Island 'Dump'

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 16.—(AP.)—Suave and smiling, Count Hughes de Borchgrave D'Altena, Belgian nobleman and great-nephew of the late Ambassador Charlemagne Tower, was in Philadelphia today for a visit with another great uncle, Earl B. Putnam, after being detained for several hours at Ellis Island.

Describing his stay with immigration officials yesterday while they investigated his financial status, he said:

"I was certainly glad to get out of that dump. I had $200 myself, and I offered to give them that and to send the balance when I got in touch with my relatives, but they would not hear of it. Naturally, one does not carry thousands of dollars around."

He was admitted to the country after a hearing before a special board of inquiry.

Dillon, Reed & Co., of which Putnam, his greatuncle, is an official, arranged his $500 bond.

After visiting here, he said he expects to travel around the world. His parents, Count Camille de Borchgrave D'Altena and the former Ruth Snyder, of Philadelphia, reside in Knocke, Belgium.

MISSING WOMAN, MAN FEARED VICTIMS ON DEATH FARM

AGED EMPLOYER KILLS HELPER AND SELF

Discovery of Second Man's Body Bares New Tragedy

Strange happenings that surrounded the lives of a 72-year-old former Pittsburgher and a younger man who left here four months ago to work on the aged man's farm were revealed here today while authorities in Somerset County were investigating the death of the pair, apparently by murder and suicide.

Mr. Geib.

Police Chief James Campbell, of Meyersdale, meanwhile expressed the opinion that two other persons may have been slain on the isolated farm owned by John C. Erdlen, the former Pittsburgher.

The bodies of Erdlen and John Geib, Erdlen's farm hand, were found Monday night and yesterday. Geib's body, dismembered and decapitated, was weighted down with stones in a creek near Erdlen's farmhouse. Police said Erdlen apparently killed the younger man and then committed suicide.

SEEK MISSING PAIR

A search in the nearby countryside of Sand Patch, Somerset County, was being made today to determine whether two persons reported missing also died on the "murder farm."

Neighboring farmers told police that a woman, employed by Erdlen as housekeeper, and a middle-aged man who was seen about the place had disappeared. The police did not know their names.

Police were able to trace the family connections of Geib here and learned he has a brother, Louis, who lives in the Spring Hill district; a nephew, Eugene Antas, 25, lodger in the home of Mrs. Christina Guttyen, of 2139 Straubs lane, where the slain man formerly lived, and a niece, Anna Antas, 23, maid in the home of Dr. Harry Leonard Baer, 5604 Forbes street.

Mrs. Guttyen said John Geib lived at her home for six years, but went to work for Erdlen last July 17.

EMPLOYER 'MEAN'

Geib's former landlady said he had written the niece and nephew after going to the farm and had described his employer, in German, as "mean." Mrs. Guttyen said she had worried over Geib since he went to work for Erdlen.

The nephew, Eugene Antas, went to Somerset and identified the torso found in the creek as that of his uncle, although he said it was difficult to establish the identity because of its mutilation.

Police obtained the letters written by Geib. These were expected to reveal the relations between the dead men, and a motive for the killing. The police theory was that Erdlen was jealous of the younger man and killed him.

DEAD FOUR DAYS

Geib, known in the farming region as "John the Dutchman," had been dead at least four days, police said, when his body was found Monday night by a searching party that went to the farm after Erdlen was reported by neighbors to be missing.

At that time the body was assumed to be that of Erdlen, but yesterday he was found dead a mile from the farm house with his throat slashed. Identification of the first body as that of Geib followed. The head and limbs were not found. Police believe they may have been burned.

Erdlen's neighbors said men and women, described as summer boarders, visited the farm from time to time, and that the farmer usually kept a housekeeper.

Find Broker's Body, Murder Suspected

POMPTON LAKES, N. J., Nov. 16.—(INS.)—Police were confronted with what they believed to be a murder mystery today when the body of Richard J. Arrowsmith, Newark stock broker, who vanished Sunday, was found in a clump of bushes near the Newark watershed at Newfoundland.

Citizenship Restored To Italian Exiles

ROME, Nov. 16.—(INS.)—Enlarging the scope of his recent sweeping amnesty to political offenders, Premier Mussolini today abolished the decree which deprived Italian exiles abroad of their native citizenship. A decree providing for seizure of personal property of almost all anti-Fascist exiles also was abolished.

LIBBY PLEASED WITH FREEDOM

WINSTON-SALEM, N. C., Nov. 16.—(AP.)—Freed from the cloud of a murder indictment, Libby Holman Reynolds was to confer with her attorneys at an unannounced place today.

In seclusion, Mrs. Reynolds received the news yesterday that the state had dropped the murder charge against her growing out of the death of her young millionaire husband, Smith Reynolds, last July 6.

The young widow is expecting a child, who, she said, would be named Smith, whether it is a boy or girl.

Her attorneys in a statement last night said Mrs. Reynolds was pleased at the outcome of the case, but they did not reveal her whereabouts.

BLAST AVERTED IN TRUCK FIRE

A truck hauling 500 gallons of gasoline caught fire near Fifth and Shady avenues today and for a time an explosion was feared. Crowds were kept at a distance by police, and traffic halted half an hour while firemen of two companies fought flames in the truck's cab and motor with chemicals and two hose lines.

The truck, owned by A. D. Miller & Sons, North Side, was driven by Merle Nusz, of 1113 West North avenue. When Nusz discovered smoke pouring from under the hood of the truck he stopped the machine and sounded an alarm.

Battalion Chief Fred S. Beckett estimated damage to the truck at $1,000.

Knowles' $50,000 Estate to Widow

Morris Knowles, nationally-known engineer, who died a week ago, left his $50,000 estate in trust for his widow, Mrs. Mina Knowles, of 5814 Stanton avenue, his will filed for probate showed today. Mr. Knowles specified that if Mrs. Knowles, at her death, does not leave a will, then the estate is to go to their two children, Mrs. Helen Knowles Schrender and Morris Knowles, Jr.

Stan Laurel, Wife Part, Plan Divorce

LOS ANGELES, Nov. 16.—(AP).—Stan Laurel, film comedian of the Laurel and Hardy team, said last night he and his wife, known on the screen as Lois Neilson, have separated and that divorce proceedings are being considered by her.

The comedian said that incompatibility was the cause of the separation.

RAT BITES LAD, RABIES FEARED

Bitten by a rat found to have rabies, John F. (Buddy) Davis, Jr., 11, of 1430 North St. Clair street, is taking Pasteur treatment at the West Penn Hospital and attending classes at the Fulton School, meantime.

"Buddy" and two companions saw the rat on the car tracks near the Bunker Hill Car Barns Saturday. It apparently was ill and could not escape. "Buddy" picked it up. It bit him on the right wrist.

He dropped the rat which later was captured by his playmates. "Buddy's" parents took him and the rat to the hospital. An examination disclosed the rat had rabies, the first instance of thousands of rats examined, according to hospital attendants to show evidence of this disease.

Aside from swelling in the wrist, the boy shows no ill effects, his mother said today.

New Mexican Consul Takes Up Post Here

The new Mexican consul to Pittsburgh, Jose A. Valenzuela, took charge of the office in the Investment Building today. He succeeds Luis Perez Abreu.

FRIGHT LEADS TO CONFESSION

Andrew Bosso, 28, of Chicago, was so frightened when a policeman entered St. John's Hospital to get a report of Bosso's falling out of an automobile that he confessed passing $400 in counterfeit $10 bills in Erie, Pa., he testified in North Side Police Court today.

Bosso was turned over to federal authorities by Magistrate John J. Sweeney. Bosso had fallen from an automobile, suffering an injured hip, Sunday night, in the Manchester district after begging a ride to the downtown, police said they had learned.

Bosso also told police, they said, he was wanted for jumping bail in Akron and believed he was "on the spot" by members of his counterfeiting gang.

SUNDAY SPORTS BACKERS ELECT

J. Frederic Byers has been chosen a vice president and four other Pittsburghers have been named directors of the newly-formed Pennsylvania Association to Encourage and Regulate Sunday Sports. The directors are Samuel Harden Church, Wilmer M. Jacoby, C. A. McClintock and Frank J. Lanahan.

William W. Roper, of Philadelphia, the moving spirit behind the new association, today announced a state-wide membership drive which is hoped to enlist blue law opponents.

Like Father, Doctor Dies of Blood Poison

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 16.—(INS.)—Dr. Carl Vischer, Jr., chief of staff of the medical outpatient department of Hahnemann Hospital is dead today of blood poisoning. More than a quarter of a century ago his father, a noted Philadelphia surgeon on the staff of the same hospital, died of the same malady.

REVENGE BOMB PLOT SEEN IN ARSON CASE

Man, Dynamite Seized; Fire Trial Witness Believed Quarry

A bomb plot to wreak vengeance for testimony given at an arson trial that resulted in long prison sentences, was nipped today, Swissvale police said, when they arrested Dominick Parome, 32, as he carried a box filled with 31 sticks of dynamite, caps and fuses, ready for use. A second suspect fled.

Police said the two men, accosted at Monongahela avenue and Florence street at 4 a. m., evidently were en route to the home of Creto Prato at Church street and Braddock avenue. Prato turned state's evidence at the trial of five Rankin and Braddock men and one woman, charged with firing the home of Frank Getz, one of the defendants, and the home of Frank Nanci, in Swissvale. The Prato home, owned by the mother of the witness, was bombed September 12, a few days before the trial, after it had been announced Prato had confessed. Detectives said Parome was believed to be implicated in the bombing. Mrs. Rose Getz, said to be the brains of the gang, and her husband were sentenced to 10 to 20 years in the penitentiary.

County detectives who brought Parome and the bomb to detective headquarters, said the prisoner answered the description of one of the men sought in connection with the burning of five houses in White street, McKeesport, last April.

Two men went on trial today in connection with the fire.

Detectives are also checking on Parome's possible connection with a fire in Glassport a year ago and another fire in Swissvale four years ago.

RUNAWAY AUTO HITS 2 GIRLS

Two Homestead school girls were slightly injured when a runaway auto knocked them down as they returned from the Fifth Ward School at noon, before it crashed into a nearby dwelling and tore away a portion of the foundation and porch.

Mary Foreman and Dorothy Villige, both 11, were crossing Eleventh avenue and West street when the auto of Albert Weinberg, insurance agent, crashed into them and then struck the home of Mrs. Patrick Traynor, 1003 West street.

Weinberg told police he had parked the car in McClure street while making collections. Damage to the Traynor home was estimated by police at $100.

Burlesque Censor Balks on Encore

DETROIT, Nov. 16.—(AP.)—Detective Edward Crimmins made a hit with his interpretation of the dance he saw on the stage of a burlesque house. But he declined to encore an act featuring Gertie, red-headed ingenue, and a comedian. Mayor Frank Murphy will decide whether the police department is justified in recommending that licenses be refused three theaters.

Empty Cigar Box Theft Brings 30 Days

Andrew Klavon, 30, of nowhere in particular, made two mistakes when he picked up a case of cigar boxes outside the Federal Tobacco Company at 644 Grant street.

The first: He was caught, after a chase, on a street car, by two pedestrians.

He learned about the second in Central Police Court today after he had been sentenced to 30 days. The cigar boxes were empty.

WAR BOOK NETS MACKENZIE

LONDON, Nov. 16.—(AP.)—One of Great Britain's best known novelists, Compton Mackenzie, faced a magistrate in police court today on charges filed under the dreaded "official secrets act."

The charge was "unlawfully communicating" information gained in the government service.

Mackenzie was attached to the British Intelligence Service in Southeastern Europe during the war. He recently published a book, "Greek Memories," dealing among other things with his experiences in the intelligence service.

The volume was withdrawn from circulation on the very day of publication, however, and prosecution of Mackenzie followed.

After considerable documentary and other evidence had been submitted, the case was adjourned until November 24.

AMY CROSSES SAHARA

DAKAR, SENEGAL, French West Africa, Nov. 16.—(AP.)—Amy Johnson, Britain's daring woman flier, who is trying to beat the record of J. A. Mollison, her husband, from London to Cape Town, has successfully crossed the great Sahara Desert. She landed at Gao, on the upper Niger, yesterday and took off for Douala, on the Gulf of Guinea.

Miss Johnson made the 1,400-mile flight from Oran, Algeria, in a little over 13 hours. She took off today for Douala and hoped to make the 1,200 miles to the gulf by 6 p. m.

Mollison's record is 4 days, 17 hours, 19 minutes for the 6,200-mile flight to Cape Town.

When she reached Douala today she will have covered more than 4,500 miles of the distance and would be almost 24 hours ahead of Mollison's record at that point because she omittted one of his desert stops.

LONDON, Nov. 16.—(AP.)—J. A. Mollison, the British distance flier, was overjoyed today when told his wife had arrived safely at Gao, French West Africa.

Society Man Denies Charge of Typist

BOSTON, Nov. 16.—(Universal.)—Harold C. Chatfield, married, and socially prominent, today had denied charges brought against him by his former stenographer, Miss Cecelia M. Davis. Suing him for $25,000, Miss Davis alleges that Chatfield promised her a life job if she would give up all other friends.

SHOE SHINER'S DAUGHTER IN OPERA DEBUT

Father Sees Triumph Of Soprano in 'Rigoletto'

International News Service.

BOSTON, Nov. 16.—For 20 years, Billy Sabino ambitiously brushed the clothes of customers of a barber shop in a Back Bay hotel.

He watched his daughter, Josephine, grow from babyhood to girlhood, and then to young womanhood.

Every tip, Billy put away to give his "Little Joe" a musical education.

Twenty years. Brush, brush, brush. Always the coins to the right hand pocket of his white coat. It was dedicated to the operatic career of his favorite daughter.

At five years, "Little Joe" began to sing. At 17, she began to study in earnest. Mrs. Alvan T. Fuller, wife of the ex-Governor, was attracted by her voice and aided Josephine. Mme. Emilia Ippolito and Malatesta gave a helping hand.

Today, Billy Sabino was brushing again—brushing the tears from his eyes—tearas of sheer joy. An operatic triumph for his daughter had crowned his years of pinching and saving.

At the Boston Opera House last night, he saw his "Little Joe"—now 21—step into the ranks of American opera singers, carrying the soprano of "Rigoletto."

Back home in Rockland, the mother of the new star lay bedridden. But Billy carried "Little Joe" proudly home to her bedside with a detailed story of her glorious triumph.

ELECTION IN PA. TO BE PROBED

WASHINGTON, Nov. 16.—(AP.)—The House Campaign Committee, headed by Representative Ragon, Arkansas Democrat, today decided to investigate last week's elections in Pennsylvania and Delaware.

The committee will start its hearings tomorrow in the Philadelphia Federal Building. Philip Crook, assistant sergeant-at-arms, was given subpenas to serve in Philadelphia this afternoon on Gen. Edward Martin, state treasurer and chairman of the Republican State Committee; Blakely D. McCaughan, treasurer of the Republican State Committee; James W. Hazlett, Philadelphia Republican City Committee chairman, and John J. McKinley, Jr., City Committee treasurer.

This committee is empowered to investigate only elections to the House of Representatives.

Meanwhile, preparations went forward in Pennsylvania to contest the re-election of Senator James J. Davis. S. David Wilson, Philadelphia attorney and chairman of the Roosevelt Independent State Committee, said here last night he had been authorized by Lawrence H. Rupp, of Allentown, Davis' Democratic opponent, to institute the contest in the Dauphin County Court.

Weather Conditions.

It is raining this morning over the lower lakes and southwestward to Alabama and snowing in Indiana, as a result of relatively low pressure over Southern Ohio and Kentucky. The high yesterday over the Dakotas now extends from a center over Manitoba southward to the Western Gulf, with fair weather and temperatures ranging from zero in Minnesota to 20 degrees in Northern Texas. From four to seven inches of snow cover the ground in Missouri and Southern Illinois. It is warmer in the western plains and the Rocky Mountain district, owing to low pressure over the Far Southwest, which extends northward over Colorado and Wyoming and thence northwestward to the Washington coast. Light to moderate rainfall has occurred in the central valleys, ending in snowfall in the Central Mississippi Valley.

River Conditions.

The rivers are falling. Stage at Franklin is 2.3 feet. Lock No. 7 (Mon.), 12.0; Pittsburgh 12.3; Dam No. 4, 9.5; No. 8, 8.1; No. 10, 8.0, and No. 12, 8.8. The dams are up.

Walker's Finery May Be Sold for Hotel Bill

NEW YORK, Nov. 16.—(INS.)—The gay striped trousers and morning coat, the high silk hats and bright hued neckties which helped to make James J. Walker, former Mayor, a figure of sartorial elegance, were in danger today of going under the auctioneer's hammer, together with other personal possessions.

Strangely enough, they have been saved from that fate thus far only because they are already held by a hotel for nonpayment of rent.

However, the hotel lien was more technical than in most cases of the sort.

It was explained Walker, now on a foreign voyage, did not cancel his reservations, and therefore, owed for the apartment, but that the hotel did not expect him to pay in advance.

Nevertheless, under the law, the owners have an automatic lien on the property, and this stopped a deputy sheriff from seizing it on a judgment for nearly $500 obtained against Walker by interior decorators.

The decorators' lawyers said they would try to obtain the property for the sale through agreement with the hotel.

LINDBERGH GOT 14 NOTES, SAYS INSPECTOR

JERSEY CITY, N. J., Nov. 16.—(AP.)—The Jersey Journal, in the first of a copyrighted series of interviews with Inspector Harry W. Walsh, of the Jersey City Police Department, today had disclosed that Col. Charles A. Lindbergh received 14 notes from kidnapers and slayers of his infant son.

Reviewing early developments of the crime, the paper also quotes Inspector Walsh, a key figure in the long investigation, as saying he believed the baby was killed in the descent down the ladder from the Lindbergh nursery at Hopewell and that the United States Department of Justice secured the services of Morris Rosner to deal with the underworld.

DISCOVERY RETOLD

The interview told of the discovery of the empty crib by Betty Gow at about 10 o'clock the night of March 1. It continued:

"Col. Lindbergh immediately ran upstairs, saw the empty crib, and on the sill of the southeast window of the room found the first of 14 notes from the kidnaper.

"This is the first revelation there were that many notes. I am not at liberty to make public their contents, save the two that were photostated and broadcast on police posters to show the handwriting."

Then the inspector told of the first note's demanding $50,000 in ransom of $5, $10 and $20 bills and of its peculiar symbol—two blue intersecting skeleton circles with a third circle of solid red in the center, with three holes punctured in the symbol. He said all the 14 notes held the same symbol.

THINKS LADDER BROKE

Speaking of the death of the child, the paper quotes Inspector Walsh as follows:

"In brief, I believe that the ladder placed against the window by the kidnapers buckled and broke, and that as the criminal carrying the babe from the nursery lost his footing and was in imminent danger of being thrown he threw the babe to the ground to save his own worthless life at the expense of the innocent child's."

In supporting his theory, he said both Col. and Mrs. Lindbergh heard a noise between 9:15 and 9:30 and spoke of it at the time. A shaft of one section of the ladder was broken.

ROSNER'S APPEARANCE

The interview says that Col. Henry Breckenridge, close friend of Col. Lindbergh, telephoned Edgar Hoover, chief agent of the Department of Justice soon after the kidnaping and was told the "best informer at his command" would be sent to the Lindbergh home. Then it is stated:

"The following morning one Morris Rosner, a known character in police circles . . . arrived."

Walsh told the Journal Rosner was given $2,500 for expenses and that he operated between the Lindbergh home and New York for three weeks. He said the only persons he contacted were Salvatore Spitale and Irving Bitz, who "heralded their every movement through the public press and produced nothing of importance. By working confidentially they might have got somewhere."

Mackey, Once Tutor Of Lindbergh, Dies

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 16.—(AP.)—William T. Mackey, 50, Philadelphia educator who once tutored Col. Charles A. Lindbergh, died yesterday in the office of a tax collector at Woodbourne, a suburb.

Mackey, a cousin of former Mayor Harry A. Mackey, of Philadelphia, taught Lindbergh when he was taken as a boy of 14 to Washington, D. C., by his father.

Auto Crowded Off Road, Two Injured

When their automobile was crowded as they were on their way home to Munhall from Wilmerding, Mrs. Gertrude Quinn, 30, of 221 First street, and William Lacey, 27, of 806 East Eleventh avenue, were seriously injured. They were taken to Homestead Hospital.

Denny Methodist Supper Tomorrow

The annual church supper of Denny Methodist Episcopal Church, Thirty-fourth and Ligonier streets, will be held at 5:30 p. m. tomorrow. It will be sponsored by the Ladies' Aid Society of the Church.

DO HEADACHES DRIVE YOU CRAZY?

It's the worst kind of folly to dope and drug yourself every time you have one of those blinding, throbbing headaches. For drugs only relieve the pain for the moment, and in a little while the headache returns worse than ever and you have to drug yourself all over again. You've got to get at the cause.

Poisons created in your own body cause these severe headaches, and you must remove the poisons to get relief of a lasting nature.

By starting the new harmless Cream of Nujol treatment, today, you may free yourself from this constant torment.

This new form of Nujol is specially designed to rid you of poisons which very often cause this condition.

Cream of Nujol contains no drugs, and does not in any way interfere with work or play. It is delicious to take. Moreover, you can use this modern treatment at a cost of but a few cents a day.

Take Cream of Nujol night and morning. Begin this very night and give it a real trial. Buy it at any drug counter.

POLICE COURT WITNESS

THOMAS BARNETT TESTIFYING AGAINST 'BLACK PANTHER'

Tom Barnett, employe at the Spahr Street Y. W. C. A., pictured in Morals Court as he partially identified as a suspect Negro Earl Allen, 19, 509 Wall street, police-named "Black Panther" held for court trial for a series of attacks, purse-snatchings, robberies. This picture appeared in the Sunday Sun-Telegraph and some people who know him misunderstood, mistook Witness Barnett for the "Black Panther," which he isn't, of course.

DODGE DEALERS HOLD MEET

Three hundred Dodge Bros' automobile dealers attended a regional conference today in the Fort Pitt Hotel at which a 1933 sales campaign was discussed and the new Dodge six-cylinder car exhibited.

W. M. Purvis, assistant sales manager of Dodge Bros. Corporation, addressed the meeting.

The new cars, including different color specimens and several types, all at a low price, were enthusiastically received by the dealers. The conference concludes with a dinner tonight. Similar conferences are to be held in 30 other cities.

BURNS HERSELF TO DEATH

HOUSTON, Tex., Nov. 16.—(AP.)—After a quarrel with Antonia Castro, her common-law husband, Antonia Flores, 18, burned herself fatally.

Castro said the disagreement, which he attributed to jealousy, was brought to a head by his threat to leave her. Antonia poured oil on her dress and applied a match, he told police.

The couple was reconciled at a hospital before the girl died.

Cuban Government Spy Slain in Auto

HAVANA, Nov. 16.—(Universal.)—Rafael Raimundo, a member of the secret police, was shot to death in a downtown street by unknown assailants who fired from the sidewalk as he passed by in an automobile. He had been active in running down members of the Oppositionist party.

NEW CIPHER OFFERS TIME TEST

Here, Cipher Fans, is Cipher No. 11.

You may find it tough and you may find it easy. But the Cipher Editor thinks it'll take you not less than 1 hour 45 minutes to decipher it.

One warning—letter frequency won't help much. And if you need clues, just wait for tomorrow's Sun-Telegraph and you can have one—no more, no less.

Now, about all those ciphers you fans have sent the Cipher Editor: Some are very good and they'll be printed from time to time. It's always best to send the solutions with your ciphers, however.

Cipher No. 11

How True!

RYRYZ EMOPC DELKN DGPOV TABBJ QREAB ZLAAM

It's a slogan. Bogie one hour, forty-five minutes.

Army rules for ciphers require that the code take no more time to send and have no more letters in it than the uncoded message. Only ciphers following this rule will be acceptable, with few exceptions.

Yesterday's Cipher, No. 10, was easy. The answer, of course, was:

"Your ciphers are very interesting. Keep up the good work. The letter frequency table helps a lot."

Credit Ralph W. Stewart, of 2700 Broadway, for that one.

It was, of course, a pure simple numerical cipher—a transposition affair. With 26 letters in the alphabet, numbering was started with 1 at A and 26 at B, with alternate letters going up from 1 and down from 26.

STORE GROUPS' RENT THREATS CHARGED

That threats of bankruptcy liquidations have been used in many instances in efforts to force Pittsburgh property owners into reducing rents to certain small-store groups has been revealed by C. C. McKallip, realtor, active in downtown leasing.

In many instances McKallip says, the practice is a "racket." In other cases, rental reductions may be justified by the reduced earnings of the stores, he states.

MANY STORES VACATED

Hundreds of storerooms have been vacated in Allegheny County by concerns which have gone into voluntary bankruptcy, and in many cases this action has terminated long-term leases, according to McKallip. Other store groups have used the threat of going into bankruptcy as a lever to pry large rental reductions out of the property owners, McKallip declares.

To protect the owner, a special committee has been formed by the National Association of Real Estate Boards with the co-operation of the Building Owners' and Managers' Association, to investigate the actual financial condition of various store groups.

DEEP PROBE PLANNED

The realtors and building owners plan to hire the best accounting and legal talent to find out the facts about the companies operating the stores. Then, when an owner gets a request for a rent reduction with a threat of voluntary bankruptcy for the tenant attached, he may find out if the owners of the business are bluffing by getting in touch with the national committee through the local real estate board.

McKallip has been named on the national committee. L. T. Stevenson, of Pittsburgh, president of the national association, recently stressed the importance of prompt action on the problem.

Dormont Aids Rate War of Mt. Lebanon

Dormont Council has lent its financial support to Mt. Lebanon litigants, who have carried their protest against the South Pittsburgh Water Company's rates to the Public Service Commission. A contribution of $500, of which $100 is to be advanced immediately, was voted with the understanding that "it does not involve Dormont as a party to the litigation."

The action follows that taken by City Council, which offered litigants services of the city solicitor.

Serum Expert Wins Thanks of Borah

WASHINGTON, Nov. 16.—(Universal.)—Senator Borah called on Dr. Charles Armstrong, psittacosis expert of the Public Health Service, yesterday, to thank him for saving Mrs. Borah's life.

Serum from the blood of Dr. Armstrong, who survived an attack of parrot fever two years ago, was rushed to Mrs. Borah by airplane when she was stricken this fall.

ANSWERS MADE TO ATTACK ON CITY PAYROLL

Five letters from city department heads, answering charges by John D. Houston, wholesale grocer, that 35 per cent of the city payroll was graft, have been received by Council. The letters probably will receive consideration in budget sessions expected to start next week.

Among the communications was one from Controller James P. Kerr, who was asked whether, as maintained by Houston, his department was able to do the work now performed by Robert J. Alderdice, budget controller. Kerr replied that his office was able to furnish Council all information on the city's financial condition and needed no additional help.

BOND MATTER WAITS

Assistant City Solicitor Thomas M. Benner answer Houston's question as to what steps have been taken to collect on the bond of former Supplies Director Bertram L. Succop for losses the city may have suffered during Succop's term in office. Benner replied nothing could be done until the higher courts had disposed of Succop's appeal from conviction.

Supplies Director W. R. Dunlap denied charges by Houston that specifications were changed after bids had been received on the purchase of asparagus for city institutions. He gave Council details of specifications for diced carrots of which Houston complained and in a third letter, declared the James W. Houston Company had been dissolved in recent court action.

ANSWER WHARF CHARGES

Letters from Public Works Director Edward G. Lang and Budget Controller Alderdice concerning the charges of John Douglas, Jr., of mismanagement in operation of the wharves also are expected to be considered in the budget session.

Lang reported on the wharves as a whole and Alderdice discussed the position of city dockmaster.

INFANT DEATH RATE CUT

WASHINGTON, Nov. 16.—(AP.)—The remarkable decrease in infant mortality during the first 15 years that statistics have been kept was commented upon today by Willard C. Smith, of the Census Bureau.

A new low of less than 62 deaths per 1,000 live births occurred in 1931, as compared with 100 per 1,000 in 1915.

The year 1932, also, Smith said, is setting some excellent individual records in low infant death rates.

Smith stressed the fundamental importance of registering all infant births in the concerted efforts of physicians and welfare workers to whittle down the death rate.

FEDERAL JURY INDICTS JAIL FUGITIVE

The first returns made by the federal grand jury were 33 indictments naming 38 men and two women for offenses including violations of the prohibition, white slave, narcotic, counterfeiting, naturalization and motor theft laws. Twenty-three of the bills charged 28 men with dry law violations.

Weaver Mitchell, alias Willie Mitchell, 25, Negro, who escaped from the county jail October 12 and is now a fugitive, was indicted on a charge of transporting a stolen automobile from Germantown, N. C., to Pittsburgh. He was said to have escaped from a chain gang at Winston-Salem, N. C.

INDICTED FOR ESCAPING

Edward Heitger, 25, was indicted for escaping from the Beaver County Jail June 17, while serving a one-year term for violating the motor theft act. He was subsequently captured.

Domenick Sciotto and Frank Cambria were indicted on charges of passing a counterfeit $10 note. Mrs. Lillian Sharpe was charged with transporting a stolen automobile from Wellsville, O., to Midland, Pa., and concealment and sale of the car.

Mary Abbott, alias Marie Abbott, was indicted on a charge of forging prescriptions for morphine. Dorsey Lee Remsnyder, alias Tom Snyder, and John Bailey, alias John Hripko, were charged with violating the Mann act. Spiros Psaros, alias Speros Fisher, was indicted on a charge of giving false testimony in a naturalization hearing and unlawfully procuring citizenship.

Andy Kalumbas and Mike George Hazidakis, his alleged character witnesses, were indicted for alleged false testimony.

LIQUOR CASES

Abram Rein was charged with giving false testimony in the naturalization case of Ustin Lysenak.

Among those indicted on liquor charges were Albert Crane and the La Solidarila Association, charged with sale, possession and manufacturer of home brew and with conducting a club on Center avenue, McDonald, as a common nuisance.

Prison Grid Team Wants Police Game

JOLIET, Ill., Nov. 16.—The football team of Cellhouse E, of the State Penitentiary, is looking for but probably won't find any outside competition. The team has won over all other squads in the prison this season, but can't get away for any trips because some of the boys might not come back. Reports are they would welcome meeting some good police team.

FUNDS NEEDED TO SINK MINE AT COXTOWN

Father Cox says that a ridiculous situation faces the poor of Pittsburgh. With more unmined coal within its limits than any other city in the world, the poor are begging for fuel, Father Cox says that he has enough coal immediately under "Coxtown," his community town out on Kittanning pike, to take care of all of the needy in Pittsburgh for many years to come. He has many coal miners on his list of unemployed who would gladly dig this coal. They cannot get at it, however, without the sinking of a shaft. This, Father Cox says, will cost approximately $1,600.

The "father of the jobless" is looking for this sum for this special purpose and if he gets it, he says that not a single poor family of Pittsburgh will be without the warmth and cheer that a glowing coal fire will bring in winter time.

In the meantime, Father Cox is in need of funds to meet a desperate situation—his constantly growing bread line, his constantly increasing food basket demand from poor families and his plan for special Thanksgiving baskets.

He is trying to give twice and three times as much relief as he gave a year ago on less than half the income of that period. In fact, his relief funds are so small and so uncertain that he cannot figure 24 hours ahead. Yet, the long bread line is served at Old St. Patrick's every day and the baskets for the families are filled every day. None are turned away.

It is because Father Cox so urgently needs funds to continue his work, particularly on account of winter setting in, that the Sun-Telegraph has again inaugurated a subscription campaign for the benefit of his unemployment fund.

For every subscription for the Sun-Telegraph that he or his helpers turn in and for every subscription that comes in through the special Father Cox blank on this page, he will be paid a liberal commission. So if you want to help the "father of the jobless" in his efforts to alleviate distress among the poor and jobless, here is your opportunity. Incidentally, Father Cox will welcome more than ever donations of food, clothing and money to carry on a work of charity that seems to be more urgent and necessary every day.

Cudahy Lawyer Sues For Divorce Case Fee

LOS ANGELES, Nov. 16.—(Universal.) — Michael Cudahy, scion of the Chicago packer family, paid only part of the bill tendered after the divorce won from him by Mrs. Muriel Cudahy, it was charged in a suit on file in Superior Court.

The action was brought by Attorney William J. McNichols. He alleges Cudahy agreed to pay $2,000 for his divorce services, but still owes him $1,855.

Plant Recalls 200; Plans to Use More

FOLLANSBEE, W. Va., Nov. 16.—Follansbee Brothers Company today recalled 200 men to work, beginning next Monday. More men will be placed on the payroll as soon as raw material to supply various departments can be produced. About 500 men are expected to be at work within two weeks. The plant closed June 30.

Lincoln District To Hear Bus Plans

Lincoln avenue district residents tonight will hear details of the Community Service Association's plans to provide 13-cent bus fares at a mass meeting in the Remington School. The meeting will be held under auspices of the Lincoln Civic Club, with President O. C. Dixon presiding.

Leaders in the movement, including Executive Director C. V. Shoup, met yesterday with the utilities committee of the Wilkinsburg Chamber of Commerce in the Penn-Lincoln Hotel to explain the plan. A committee report is expected to be made to the chamber next week.

$50,000 VOTED POOR FOR SHOES

Shoes purchased by the city for distribution to the needy are of good quality, will last through the winter and can be re-soled. This information was requested by Councilman Charles Anderson yesterday when Council appropriated $50,000 to the Department of Supplies for purchasing shoes.

Councilman Anderson said that he had heard that shoes distributed in some parts of the county were not of as good quality as could have been obtained, and probably would not stand being re-soled.

Supplies Director W. R. Dunlap called before Council, stated that the shoes purchased on the first $50,000 appropriation some months ago were of good quality and no complaints had been made.

DIVORCE GIVEN EX-MARINE

Before going to France in 1918, Irvin F. Holsinger, of 6541 Ohio River boulevard, Ben Avon, gave his wife, Valarie Chase Holsinger, power of attorney to draw on a $2,300 estate, and when he returned found his wife living with another man, Holsinger told Judge Samuel H. Gardner, who granted him a divorce.

Holsinger joined the Marine Corps in November, 1918, following his marriage July 20, of the same year. He heard from his wife only once while he was overseas, he testified, and when he returned in June, 1919, found her, he charged, living in Brooklyn with a man named Walter Meyers. When Holsinger filed the suit he was living in Crafton. He charged desertion.

Republican Leader Here 'On Business'

No political purpose was connected with the stopover visit here today by George De B. Keim, secretary of the National Republican Committee. He said personal business brought him to the city and declined to comment on the national situation when questioned at the William Penn Hotel.

FAT GIRLS PLAY ALONE

There's no question about it, the slender girls, those with slim figures, are the popular ones. Fat girls are out of the picture.

But why be fat? There's no good reason for it now. Not when you can lose excess fat safely, surely and pleasantly.

A famous laboratory, working with specialists in weight reduction, has perfected a system which makes fat disappear in a few short weeks.

It is called the Harvin System and may be obtained at any drug store. Simply ask for a package of Harvin Salts. Take half a teaspoonful of them in a glass of water every morning and follow the Harvin Plan. Then watch fat melt away.

Harvin Salts hasten slenderness by stimulating sluggish glands—the cause of 80% of overweight. They also help by ridding your intestinal tract of waste and impurities, and by preventing excessive acidity.

Harvin Salts are as pleasant to take as an after-dinner mint and the Harvin Plan allows you to have the foods you enjoy most. Even sweets are not denied. Yet your weight is under scientific control at all times.

Start this pleasant way to a slender figure today. Ask at

Chesterfields are Milder—

Chesterfields Taste Better

To make tobaccos mild and mellow for Chesterfield cigarettes, just about four miles of warehouses are filled with mild, ripe Domestic leaf, stored away to age for two years.

The greater part of 90 million dollars is invested in these tobaccos. Is it surprising that Chesterfields are milder? That they taste better?

Everything known to Science is used to make Chesterfields right! They're mild—and yet They Satisfy.

MUSIC

Mendelssohn Choir

Carnegie Music Hall

The Mendelssohn Choir gave its opening concert in Carnegie Music Hall last night with Ernest Lunt conducting. One of its best audiences was in attendance; it was entranced by this music, by no means the most comprehensible and somewhat overpowering in its intensity.

Mr. Lissfelt

The choir on this occasion repeated the Brahms "German Requiem," first given here several years ago with the Cleveland Orchestra accompanying. Let us look forward to the time when our own orchestra will be available to assist at such important musical events, and this is no disparagement of the eminent accompaniment which Earl Mitchell played last night.

This Requiem has long been accepted as a masterpiece, but that fact does not forbid us enthusing again over the mighty fugue, "Then Shall Sound the Trumpet," over the beautiful and graceful melodies for solo baritone and soprano, and the infinite inventions in the development of the opening thought, "Blessed Are They That Mourn."

The choir's singing last night was again on a very high level. During the fugue, when individual choirs alone sustained the thread of music, they lost the quality and feeling so freely given when singing full voice and in unison with the entire choir. At times Mr. Lunt's striving for nuance was somewhat arbitrary. But on the whole the singing moved with more freedom than is usual, not excepting the choir's performance of the "Messiah."

Nelson Eddy confirmed our former impressions of this fine baritone and sang his difficult solo with much repose and real command of music. Ethel Philipsen proved also that she had given the soprano solo much thought.

TELL IT TO SALLY

Follow This Unusual Feature Day by Day

By SALLY MARTIN

People Who Are Frank Should Show Consideration

Do you think it's "big and noble" to tell folks the worst?

And are you surprised because they don't appreciate your "honesty?"

Bess does, and is. And maybe our answer to her may be good for what ails someone you know.

Dear Sally:

I want to ask you about something that puzzles me. It is: Why don't people like me better?

I have always been a frank person, and have tried to be honest. If I see something good about someone, I speak of it; and if I see something that I think could be improved, I speak of that, too. In fact, having been raised to be scrupulously honest, I usually am frank to say exactly what I think.

I have always been taught that the world needs honesty, and I believe that it does. There is so much hooey floating around that I should think it would be refreshing to people to meet someone who didn't "feed them a line." But people don't seem to like me, and really, I want them to.

If I see a friend wearing a hat that makes her look like a fright, I always try, tactfully, of course, to make her see that she is not doing herself justice, and try to get her to wear something different; something more suitable.

PEOPLE DISAPPROVE

But they always seem offended when I do that. Even my sisters, or my brothers, or my cousins are the same way. I should think that they would be glad to be told about things like that and not have people flattering them to their faces and laughing behind their backs.

I never laugh behind anyone's back. If I have something to say, I say it right out, honestly. And I am really trying to do these people a service by giving them an honest opinion of what they wear or think or do.

Can you tell me what is wrong? It has me puzzled.

ELIZABETH.

What's wrong?

You, sissy! Yes, I mean that, seriously. No, I don't mean that this world doesn't need honesty. It does. It needs it desperately. But it also needs kindliness and consideration—and humility.

For example, let's try some of your medicine on yourself, and see how it tastes. You say you believe in perfect frankness. Well, I'm going to give you some. In the first place, are you sure that it is "honesty" that makes you go around "telling people just what you think?"

SHOWS LITTLE TACT

Are you sure it isn't just an overgrown bump of conceit? A desire to puff yourself up and take other people down a peg? A lack of sympathy and real feeling for other folks? Think that over, Bessy, and maybe you'll have the answer to your puzzle about why people don't cotton to you.

And while we're at it, let me ask you this:

What makes you think that you always "know best" about what other people wear and say and do? What right have you to set yourself up as an authority and a censor?

As a matter of fact, your taste and your ideas have just as good a chance of being haywire as the tastes and ideas of the people you criticize.

So get wise to yourself, sister. Get human. Let other people be themselves. Tact and consideration can be just as honest as a meat-ax. Also a whole lot kinder, and a whole lot healthier and happier for you.

The Professional Beauty Has a Tough Job, Fay King's View

By FAY KING

Some plain girls envy the professional beauty.

But it seems to me that the professional beauty has a tough job.

She must master facial expression until she has the "deadpan" of a gambler. For it would never do to frown upon a rich bore, or smile too pleasingly upon a pleasant fellow who has no money, position or power.

The professional beauty who falls in love with a man of "no importance," according to the ratings of her rivals, is considered a great fool.

The success of a professional beauty is estimated by the importance of the men she attracts.

So eager is she to triumph in this that one begins to note the shrewd, cold calculation in her pretty face!

Heart of a Wife

Continuation of Love's Reawakening

By ADELE GARRISON

Madge Compelled to Reveal Knowledge

I have been swayed by many emotions concerning Lillian during my long years of friendship with her—love, admiration, pity, rarely irritation—but as she swept toward me with her demand that I tell her what I had been keeping from her, I felt fear for the first time.

"Lillian" You must believe me. I never thought of this possibility. What I kept silent about was another possible attack on the bank. I did not want you worried!"

"Will you tell me everything you know about this thing?" she demanded hoarsely. "What you thought can wait. My child has been kidnaped, and you stand there."

Mary sprang forward swiftly, and my heart was warm at the look on her face, impassioned, sympathetic. She was coming to my defense, but I shook my head at her.

"I will tell you everything, at once, Lillian," I said quietly.

"Hugh Grantland came to me the day following our dinner dance," I said measurely, "and brought me a queer letter or statement from Lee Chow. He gave it to me only on Lee Chow's condition that I say nothing concerning it to anybody. Foolishly I promised, but I am going to break my word now.

SHOWS LETTER

"The letter was a record of a conversation between Sam Brixton and Charles Owen while they were in a bedroom at The Larches, that was overheard by Lee Chow. It was because he forced himself to listen, against his instincts, that he did not want anyone save me to know."

"Charles Owen! Sam Brixton!" Lillian said hoarsely. "Have they dared? But—that can't be, for they have taken Carolyn, too. But go on! Hurry! What was in that letter?"

I drew it from a hidden pocket in my handbag, where I had kept it ever since Hugh had brought it to me, and handed it to her. Then I followed her in imagination through every well-remembered word of that conversation, where Owen had told of his failure with Marion and his resentment of my part in spoiling his plan, and Brixton's hesitating acceptance of the proposition to "leave everything" in Owen's hands. When she had finished it, she folded it and looked over at me with cold, accusing eyes.

"If I could have seen this when I started, it would have saved me hours of agony," she said.

"I don't understand," I said, and I was indeed bewildered, for to me this conjecture of Marion's being in Charles Owens power was most terrifying.

"If Charles Owens has them, with Sam's connivance, they will not be harmed," she said. "They will count upon our fear for their lives, but there will be no real danger, unless Owens kills Sam first. Sam is a villain, but he is not that kind of one, I am certain of it.

EXPLAINS ABOUT HUGH

"But, Madge, I cannot understand. This is not like you. This has been in your possession ever since that dinner dance, and you have done nothing to thwart these men. Or have you?" Something in my face evidently brought the quick, sharp query.

"What I could," I said, "or rather what Hugh could. You remember he left The Larches the next day?"

"Yes," she said breathlessly. "Go on!"

"Hugh went directly to the vicinity of the Brixton camp," I said, "prepared to watch every movement of the two men. He sent me a letter by Lee Chow which I received the very day we were leaving for the city. I tore it up, but I can repeat it for you."

"So Hugh, or one of his men, has been watching them every minute,' she said. "I might have known you hadn't altogether fallen down on the job. But Hugh must know about this at once."

"He does," I said. "I wired him before we left. Mary put the wire through."

"I can't forgive you, yet," she said, "but I can thank you. However, have you thought? Harry and Dicky must know of this. Do you want to tell them, or shall I?"

Contract Bridge

HOW TO PLAY and HOW TO WIN

By JOSEPHINE CULBERTSON

The Hidden Gems

"Full many a gem of purest ray serene
The dark unfathom'd caves of ocean bear;
Full many a flower is born to blush unseen,
And waste its sweetness on the desert air."

I am indebted to one of the finest English poets, Thomas Gray, for the splendid sentiment quoted above. Its application to Contract Bridge is that occasionally a hand is dealt in which one side may have the makings of a Small Slam and yet never enter the bidding. As proof of this, take the hand below, which was played in a recent team-of-four match in New York City, the four players ranking among 20 of the world's most expert.

North—Dealer.
Neither side vulnerable.

	♠ A J 6 5 ♡ 8 6 3 2 ◇ Q ♣ K Q 8 2
♠ 10 ♡ A Q 10 7 ◇ K J 6 2 ♣ 7 6 5 3	North West East South	♠ 7 4 3 ♡ J 5 ◇ A 10 9 5 4 3 ♣ A 4
	♠ K Q 9 8 2 ♡ K 9 4 ◇ 8 7 ♣ J 10 9

In one room, the bidding went as follows:

South	West	North	East
		Pass	Pass
Pass	Pass

No one can quarrel with this bidding. As a matter of fact, no player around the table had a sound opening bid, considering his position.

In the other room, however, the bidding assumed a different course. There it went as follows:

South	West	North	East
		Pass	Pass
1 ♠	Pass	3 ♠	Pass
Pass	Pass

The result was that the contract was defeated 1 trick, and thus North and South were minus 50 points.

When the play of the hand was over, the North player inquired why South found it necessay to open the bidding and thus present the partnership with a minus score on a hand which would have been passed out. That is probably true, but as a matter of fact, East and West, who never bid, were able to make a Small Slam on their holdings. The heart finesse is right, and West's hearts thus will produce 3 tricks, providing a discard for a losing club in the East hand. East and West thus need only to lose the Ace of spades.

It is difficult to find justification in any hand for opening the bidding, and certainly the bid of a Slam would be extremely difficult. Perhaps West, not vulnerable, should overcall South's Opening spade bid, which is highly questionable, with a bid of two hearts, but then if North Bids three spades, can East bid four diamonds? If he does so, I grant you that the partnership should reach a game contract in diamonds, but even the most enthusiastic Slam bidder would be loath to suggest that they should bid a Slam, which is only markable because of the remarkably fine fit of the East and West Hands.

Fashion Flashes

Quite a change from the ordinary capelet for evening wear is one of fringe. One attractive capelet is made entirely of row upon row of inch and a half silk fringe mounted on net, and cut on the lines of a nun's collar.

Rough treatment is being accorded satin with excellent results. A lovely ensemble for evening is of rough white satin and has a high waistline and a high neckline. It has a matching jacket with the armholes marked by huge wheels of silver fox.

Correct Manners

By MRS. CORNELIUS BEECKMAN

Name Succession

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

My husband's name is John Jones, Jr., but since his father died when he was a little boy, very few people know him as junior. In the event of a son being born, we would like to name him John Jones also, and we are puzzled whether it would be correct to call him John Jones, Jr., or John Jones, third? J.

You do not say if your husband's mother is also dead, and this fact would make the difference. If she is living, she is Mrs. John Jones, and your husband is John Jones, Jr., then your son would be John Jones, Third.

But if your husband's mother is dead, then your husband is now John Jones . . . not John Jones, junior . . . and your son would be John Jones, Jr.

For Loose Ends

A splendid manicure acid is made by putting one teaspoonful of lemon juice into a cup of warm water. It will remove stains from the fingers and nails and loosen the cuticle beautifully. Use on an orange stick having absorbent cotton wrapped around the end.

The Beauty Box

By HELEN FOLLETT

Ruptured capillaries that form tiny red lines on the skin can be treated successfully with the electric needle. Only an expert electrolysis operator should attempt to do the work.

Be generous with the healing cream that goes on the complexion just before you say "Now I lay me." Pat it under the chin; at that spot appear wicked little crinkles that are age-tattlers. Touch the lobes of the ears. Include the neck, even unto the nape at the rear, and sweep over the collar bones. Because of limited cream applications many complexions and neck surfaces appear to be divorced.

In cold weather it is not advisable to use water very hot upon the hands, especially if one is going out of doors. Cold water is hard on the skin surface at all times. A delightful lotion to keep hands in velvety condition is made by soaking 30 grains of gum tragacanth in seven ounces of rosewater for two days, adding one-half ounce of rubbing alcohol and one-half ounce of glycerine. Dries immediately.

The three-day liquid diet is a safe means of reducing. No solid foods except a few crackers. Take milk, buttermilk, clam broth, clear soups, unsweetened lemonade, fruit juices, tomato juice, anything that pours. Don't go on this diet oftener than once a month.

Household Hints

When the first course of the dinner is a cold one, save yourself a little extra confusion by having it on the table before the meal is served.

When making mint sauce, if the mint is dipped in the vinegar before being chopped, it will not turn brown, but will retain its bright fresh color.

Mud stains on cloth skirts, suits or coats can be removed with a slice of raw potato. Rub the potato on the stain with a circular movement and sponge afterwards with tepid water. When almost dry, press on the wrong side with a warm iron.

How to Keep Well

By DR. ROYAL S. COPELAND

Children Slow to Speak Not Mentally Backward

When a child does not talk at an early age, this causes its parents much unnecessary alarm. Mother and father are worried and sure something serious is responsible. This worry usually is aggravated by the fond grandparents, who are certain every one of their children spoke at an early age.

Dr. Copeland

May I assure all worried mothers that if a child eats well, sleeps well and is gaining in weight, even though it does not speak at an early age, it is quite all right. Really, there is no need for worry.

Of course on rare occasions there are disturbances which may delay speech. If these are ruled out and the child is found to be well in other respects, you need not be alarmed if it does not speak before reaching two and a half or three years of age. Though most children talk between the ages of eighteen and twenty-four months, a careful study of many children shows delayed speech to be a common occurrence among healthy and normal youngsters.

In some cases delay in talking may be traced to difficulty in hearing. In other cases, there is a lack of proper muscular action. Such children have delayed development of speech with no apparent reason. Boys seem to talk at a later age than girls.

Many of you know that some children learn to walk and talk at an early age, while others walk and talk at a late age. The children who appear to be slow in these matters are not mentally backward. In fact, statistics show that such children may exhibit an extremely high degree of intelligence in later life.

If your child has normal hearing and intelligence, do not be concerned about the delayed talking. It has the ability to speak, and it will make up later for any lack of early talking.

Do not force a child to learn to speak at an early age. Encourage talking, but do not scold or show impatience if the child does not talk. Forced training at this age may cause mental over-stimulation and be the forerunner of nervousness.

Every child should be examined at periodic intervals and all physical defects noted. Bad hearing and other abnormalities interfering with speech require treatment, and possibly special methods of training. These should be used, however, only in later childhood, the particular methods depending entirely upon the nature of the defect.

Often it is impossible to determine the defect until the child is five or six years of age. You will feel better if you talk with your doctor about the matter.

I once knew a little girl who did not utter one word till she was seven. But, you take my word, she has said enough since to square the account!

Answers to Health Queries

S. P. Q.—Recently a dietitian stated that everyone's daily diet should include pure grapefruit and that to all drinking water some lemon juice should be added. Will you kindly advise if this treatment could be injurious to some systems.

A.—Since each system is different it should be treated accordingly. On general principles I regard all citrus fruits as valuable.

* * *

Puzzled. Q.—Is milk fattening with the cream taken off?

A.—No.

* * *

E. Z. A. Q.—What causes noises in the stomach?

A.—This is probably due to gas, caused by a faulty diet and poor elimination. Send self-addressed stamped envelope for full particulars and repeat your question.

* * *

Q.—Is there anything that will reduce the bust?

A.—You cannot reduce any particular part of the body without reducing in general.

VETS HERE SHUN BONUS MARCH

D. J. The members of the unit, one of the original ones in the B. E. F., have decided more effective work for mutual assistance and relief can be accomplished by remaining intact here and providing for those veterans who are unemployed and in need of assistance, he said.

79 Radio Stations Operated by Police

WASHINGTON, Nov. 16.—(AP.)—Police departments over the country were reported today by the radio division of the Commerce Department to be operating 79 short-wave radio stations from headquarters to scout cars, an increase of 26 in the past year.

The division's annual report said also that amateur operators had increased from 22,739 to 30,374, and were performing a useful service during emergencies when regular communication systems had been destroyed.

Poor Farm Inmate Elected Prosecutor

TYNDALL, S. D., Nov. 16.—(AP.)—From ward at the county poor farm to state's attorney of Bon Homme County was the "promotion" of G. W. Kirschman after the votes of last Tuesday were counted.

Kirschman has been blind several years and the county has been taking care of him. He came to Tyndall about 25 years ago from Mason City, Ia. He was state's attorney in 1915-16. When he lost his sight he gave up his practice. He is a Democrat.

BEWARE Half-Cured COLDS!

They Expose You to a Weakened System and to the Possibility of Serious Complications!

If there is one thing that is a source of danger, it is a half-cured cold!

A half-cured cold is not only apt to recur again and again, but it is a constant drain on your vitality and exposes you to more serious trouble.

When you catch cold, be sure to treat it quickly and decisively. Don't depend on mere local or outside applications. Remember, a cold is an internal infection and requires internal treatment.

Don't put your trust, either, in a preparation that's good for a dozen things besides colds. Remember, a cold is a specific condition calling for a specific treatment. Many preparations that people commonly take for colds actually make relief more difficult because they are constipating and also make the system acid.

Fourfold Action Important

Because it does four things all at one time, the remedy to take for a cold is Grove's Laxative Bromo Quinine!

First of all, Grove's Laxative Bromo Quinine opens the bowels, gently but thoroughly—an important step in the relief of a cold. Second, it kills the cold germs in the system, drives out the poisonous infection and reduces the fever. Third, it relieves the headache and that grippy feeling. Fourth, it tones the entire system and fortifies against further attack.

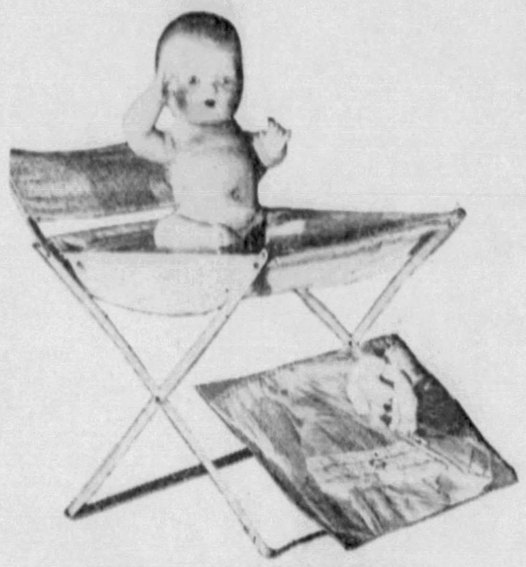
This is the treatment a cold calls for, the treatment wherein lies real relief and safety!

Absolutely Safe to Take!

Grove's Laxative Bromo Quinine may be taken with utter safety by young and old. It contains no narcotics and produces no bad after-effects. It does not upset the stomach, nauseate or make the head ring or swim. It's action is swift and certain, but harmless. Thousands, in every civilized country on the globe, look upon it as their sure relief for colds and grippe.

In the form of dainty tablets, Grove's Laxative Bromo Quinine is convenient and pleasant to take, as well as effective. Comes in handy, pocket-size boxes, cellophane-wrapped, and sold by every drug store in America. To have Grove's Laxative Bromo Quinine handy is to be forearmed against colds. Taken immediately at the first sign of a cold, a few of the tablets will usually expel it overnight. Good dealers do not try to substitute on Grove's Laxative Bromo Quinine.

The Sun-Telegraph Doll Lady Offers Your Choice of These Two Glorious New Dolls



THIS IS "DUCKY DARLING"

THIS IS "PRECIOUS BABY"

Read the Doll Lady's letter of response to her welcome in Pittsburgh:—

DEAR LITTLE GIRLS:

I had an idea that hundreds and hundreds of the little friends I made during my former holiday visits to Pittsburgh would be glad to know that I am here again. But I really didn't think that I was going to get such a rousing welcome.

Well, my first letter brought scores of joyful letters from little girls who were fortunate enough to get my dollies last year, and scores more who want to get a dolly this year. Yes, it seems that they have all been eagerly and patiently waiting for me. I'm mighty glad to be back again, and I hope I'll see a lot of my little friends of last year and make a lot of new friends this year.

Now, little girls, what do you suppose I have been doing since last Christmas? Making dolls—nothing else. There have been a lot of people out of work, but not in my doll factory. And wait until you get your hands on my new dolly—"Ducky." She's just a darling and the last word in dolls—has a rubber body, you can tickle her ribs, bend her legs and arms, turn her head and make her shut her eyes and go to sleep. But, best of all, you can give her a bath like a real baby, and when you get "Ducky" you get a bathinette that will hold enough water for a bath, also soap, sponge and powder and a complete outfit of clothes. "Ducky's" the darling of all dolls.

Yet it is kind of selfish for me to say all these things about "Ducky," because "Precious Baby," my other dolly, is really America's sweetheart. "Precious" is nearly 20 inches tall, has gorgeous clothes, a winning smile, sparkling eyes that open and shut, rubber hands and arms, rubber panties, and cries like a real baby.

This year you can get your choice of "Ducky" or "Precious." I really can't advise you which to select. I love 'em both. They're my babies. Perhaps you can get both. All you have to do this year to get either one of them is to secure three new six-month orders for the Daily and Sunday Sun-Telegraph. Last year you had to get four—this year only three. But the main thing is to start getting your subscribers now—before the rush—so that you can have "Ducky" or "Precious" long before the holidays are here.

Thank you for your welcome to Pittsburgh.

Yours sincerely,
THE SUN-TELEGRAPH DOLL LADY

ASKS CITY KEEP 'BLACK SQUAD'

A plea for retention of Pittsburgh's "black squad" of mounted policemen was voiced today by David G. McDonald, superintendent of the Bureau of Horses, in reply to a statement of Budget Controller R. G. Alderdice that the squad be disbanded as an economy move.

McDonald quoted Deputy Inspector John J. Hennessy, of New York police, as saying mounted police are indispensable in handling large crowds effectively.

Pittsburgh's squad, numbering 26, is the finest in the country, McDonald declared. The cost is only 41 cents a day per horse; the horses have an average life of 18 years and the depreciation is 6¼ cents a day per horse.

Mounted police are on duty from 8 a. m. to 6 p. m., and daily issue from 300 to 500 auto tags, McDonald said.

Public Safety Director James M. Clark and Police Supt. Peter P. Walsh joined in opposing elimination of the black horse troop, terming Alderdice's proposal "false economy."

BEAVER FALLS, Pa., Nov. 16.—Max Solomon, 76, president of Max Solomon, Inc., with offices and plants in Pittsburgh, died today of pneumonia at his home here.

Mr. Solomon was prominent in banking and business circles in the Beaver Valley and when a young man was a personal friend of Andrew Carnegie. He was a director of the General Brodhead Hotel Company.

He leaves his widow, Mrs. Amelia Solomon; a daughter, Mrs. Goldie Solomon Glick, wife of Attorney Peter Glick, of Pittsburgh, and two sons, Albert and Edward Solomon, both of Pittsburgh.

ENGINEER SHOT IN MINE CLASH

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., Nov. 16.—(AP.)—Christ Roberts, Springfield, a mine engineer, was shot through the shoulder and a number of others were reported beaten today in a clash between miners reporting for work at the Cora mine of the Peabody Coal Company and pickets of Progressive miners.

State highway police and sheriff's deputies restored order.

The Cora mine, opened yesterday, is the first to attempt operation in the Springfield area with miners of the United Mine Workers' Union since the start of hostilities in the Illinois coal field war. About 200 Progressive pickets were reported to have accosted the diggers.

WRIT GRANTED IN JOB TEST

Mayor Kline, the Civil Service Commission, and other city officials today were ordered by Judge James H. Gray to explain why they dismissed one of 31 firemen months ago.

Judge Gray signed a writ of mandamus which calls upon the Mayor either to explain the dismissal or reinstate the fireman, Delos Harvey.

Attorney Alexander P. Lindsay, counsel for Harvey, said this was a test case. Lindsay contends the men were fired for political purposes.

2 Hunters Burned To Death in Cabin

DANBURY, Wis., Nov. 16.—(AP.)—Dr. St. Clair Darden, 40, head of the Health Win Hospital at South Bend, Ind., and Frank Fritzer, 52, manager of the furniture department of a South Bend store, were burned to death in a fire which broke out in their hunting cabin while they were asleep last night.

GOLLMAR REPLY DEFENDS COSTS

The bill for posting election proclamations this year was $500 below that of former elections, Sheriff Frank I. Gollmar asserted today in answer to an attack by County Commissioners holding excessive the cost of printing and posting such proclamations.

Gollmar's bill of $2,893 for printing and posting was held up by the Commissioners until he explained.

The Sheriff declared the Commissioners had cut expenditures of his office "to the bone" in making up the budget.

Gas Drum Explodes In Crowd; 30 Burned

BOSTON, Nov. 16.—(AP.)—More than 30 persons were burned, none seriously, when gasoline exploded in a drum near the entrance to the East Boston tunnel.

A crowd was attracted as firemen were called to extinguish a fire in a gasoline drum. As the crowd pressed close, the drum exploded, sending flames high in the air and setting afire the clothing of many of the victims.

WELFARE AIDES HIT CALLOUS ATTITUDES

Goldenson Appeals for Renewed Courage in Fighting Suffering

With $1,288,413 raised toward the goal of $2,480,160, workers in the Welfare Fund campaign today entered their second week. At today's meeting it was reported the previous day's collections and pledges amounted to $47,868.

Today's luncheon was to be in charge of the Corporation Division, of which Frank R. Phillips is chairman. At the speakers' table were to be his vice chairmen, John F. Casey, F. J. Chesterman, H. L. Mitchell, A. K. Oliver, W. P. Snyder, Jr., James L. Stuart, W. B. Trainer, J. C. Trees and H. S. Wherrett. The Rev. Dr. L. H. Evans, pastor of the Third Presbyterian Church, was also to speak.

PLEA FOR COURAGE

Speaking at the luncheon yesterday Dr. Samuel Goldenson, of Rodef Shalom Congregation, said he had been told by a woman social worker that she feared people "were becoming tired of the depression." He said:

"That implies that people can become calloused and indifferent to human suffering. It means the loss of courage and the will to fight. It means resignation and the acceptance of a downward drift to degeneration and degredation.

"We must see that our people do not become tired of the depression. That is the doctrine

RADIO POLICE SEIZE SUSPECT

A Negro, one of three police suspect of planning to hold up the drug store of Samuel Rosenblatt, 5757 Ellsworth avenue, last night, was held by Squirrel Hill police today as they sought his two companions.

The suspect, Raymond Porter, 24, of 7416 Lemington avenue, carried a revolver when arrested, police said.

Two patrolmen in a radio car reported they saw the three men start toward the store after leaving their automobile. The officers, leaping from their car, ran toward the trio, capturing Porter. The other two fled in the machine.

Still, Mash Seized In Brookline Raid

Aldo Lolene and Frank Leonell were to be arraigned today before Alderman Edward W. Haas in connection with a raid on a dwelling in Mayville street, Brookline, which yielded Haas and Constable J. A. Realy a 100-gallon still and 32 barrels of mash last night, they reported.

Leonell, fleeing as the raiders forced their way into the house, was captured in a field. Lolene, occupant of the first floor, denied ownership of the moonshine plant found on the second floor.

3 CHILDREN EAT POISON; SURVIVE

Two small boys and their 2-year-old sister, taken to Montefiore Hospital after eating pills said to have contained poison, were expected to be released from the hospital today.

The children, Ronald Carpenter, 6; his brother, James 4, and their sister, Jennie, were reported to have eaten some pink pills while playing with other children near their home, 245 Dunseith street, last night. When their mother, Mrs. Frank Carpenter, learned that her children had eaten the pills, she sent her eldest son Richard, 7, in search of one for analysis.

He found one which a neighborhood druggist analyzed. The children, although apparently suffering no ill effects, were taken to the hospital by their mother, for observation.

Uncle Sam Is Becoming Addict To Moratoriums

—By ARTHUR 'BUGS' BAER—

Looks like we are going to take another habit-forming moratorium.

They gave us postponements in small doses until we got used to 'em. Congress is against absolute cancellation. But seems to have an annual craving for one-year moratoriums.

That's what the big medicine talk between Herbert and Alice's fifth cousin will be about. Franklin has put the conference off a week because he doesn't want Herbert to catch his cold.

The two Presidents will meet next Monday. We don't know who will be the third man in the ring.

There will be talk of everblooming reductions and self-supporting deficits. While cancellation will not be mentioned it won't fool the newspapermen who understand the language of flowers and eyebrows.

If this meeting turns out all right Mr. Farley may sign the boys up again. We suspect he will be coaching from the sidelines.

We have found out one thing about a debt. You cannot collect it with a lavish hand.

DUNN TO FIGHT UNDERMINING OF HOMES

Blind Congressman Will Demand Legislation

Matthew Dunn, blind Congressman-elect from the South Hills, will sponsor legislation to prevent coal companies from undermining homes not only in his own district but everywhere, he said today.

A move to curb the damaging and sinking of surface properties by coal mining operations, he believes, can get somewhere in the new Congress, in which he will have a seat.

PLEDGES ACTION

He said:

"One of the first things I'll do as a Congressman will be to submit legislation to correct this evil. People who buy homes have a right to see that no other agency destroys them. I understand that coal companies may own coal under them, but it seems to be against the first law of the land to injure another's property — particularly his home. If the home is not sacred, what can be?

"This strikes at a fundamental in our existence. It is hardly understandable that legislation to curb this undermining has not been passed before."

Congressman-elect Dunn, newly chosen by the Democrat landslide, and former state legislator, has a few other pet ideas he intends to impress on the new Congress.

FOR WELFARE BILLS

For example:

"I am going to do my bit to see that every man, woman and child gets food, shelter, fuel and clothing—enough to keep them fit. I am going to help get the soldiers' bonus — and if the country cannot afford it, see that veterans get jobs or food and shelter, and medical attention and clothing.

"And I'm interested in the abolition of child labor. Not only should children under 14, and preferably 16, be prevented from working, but I think the United States should refuse to buy from countries that allow children under that age to work.

"There are those who say that I won't get my say in Congress, because of the rules. Well, have you ever heard of a Congressman being taken out of Congress by police? Well, I'll get my say."

Dormont Buying Coal To Save Streets

Dormont borough today was to conclude an agreement for the purchase from the Pittsburgh Coal Company of unmined strata of coal underneath the borough, as a means of preventing recurrence of property and street sinking.

Lee Llewelyn, chairman of the councilmanic legal committee, announced an agreement with the coal company, but did not reveal the purchase price.

Street Improvement Pleas Being Checked

Eight requests from civic organizations and citizens asking street improvements have been sent by Council to the Public Works Department for reports.

This afternoon Council will conduct a hearing for fesidents of Mifflin Township on annexation of part of the township to the city.

RECOUNT AIDS SHENKEL VOTE

Jacob W. Shenkel, Democrat, today was piling up a lead to assure him election in the Sixth Legislative District, Returning Board figures showed. While running third on the Democrat slate, he has piled up a lead of approximately 1,500 votes over Patrick Cawley, Republican, and more than 1,600 over Dr. W. A. Renne, Republican. Thomas J. Gallagher, who had both Republican and Democratic nominations, polled 7,518 votes in 19 of the 82 districts. The votes for the others were John J. Kane, 5,024; Shenkel, 4,411; Cawley, 2,953; Renne, 2,794.

A recount was ordered in the First District of Rankin on request of the Democratic party, in connection with the fight in the Tenth Legislative District.

The Recount Board today continued its count of votes in the Second Ward, and was expected to begin recounting the vote in the Third and Fourth Districts of the Ninth Ward.

Attorney B. Robert Averbach, for the Republicans, said he would ask for recount of 15 boxes in outlying districts.

Fee May Be Asked On Dormont Rink

Ice-skaters who use the Dormont Borough pool this winter may be charged 10 cents fee, if a proposal made at last night's Council meeting is adopted.

Councilman John M. Lang, chairman of the park and pool committee, recommended the charge as a means of contributing to the borough relief committee. A report is due from the committee next week.

WILD CARGO

By FRANK BUCK

With EDWARD ANTHONY

CHAPTER XXX

One day—I'm not sure how long ago—a Malay got it into his head that climbing a cocoanut tree, with a trunk 35 to 40 feet long, was too much work. The nine or ten cocoanut trees that he possessed were used by him and his family for food and drink, and he didn't enjoy scrambling up one of the tall trunks every time a cocoanut was needed. He rather envied the commercial planters who raised their cocoanuts for conversion into copra, for these lucky people didn't have to pick their cocoanuts; they just let them ripen and fall to the ground.

This method did not suit the man who had only a few trees and had to conserve carefully his supply of the precious nuts. The way to make that limited supply last was to pluck each fruit as it was needed. This was jungle economy.

One day this native who didn't like to climb cocoanut trees got a bright idea. He would train a monkey to do the work for him. He would use a pig-tailed rhesus, for he knew that this species was strong enough and could be trained to do practically anything within monkey reason. His principal problem would be to overcome the savagery that is so typical of these simians.

MONKEYS TRAINED

The pig-tailed rhesus is a fierce little scrapper with vicious canine teeth almost an inch long that he does not hesitate to use. Once properly trained, however, he's like a one-man dog, graciously doing his master's bidding and ready to pounce upon anyone else for no reason at all. While the full-grown males (the ones used as cocoanut gatherers) seldom attain a weight of over 30 pounds, they are tough and sinewy and

Dropping of Traffic Plan Group Opposed

Effective accident prevention, speeding up of traffic and relief of congestion were pointed out today by the executive committee of the Better Traffic Committee as reasons for maintaining the Bureau of Traffic Planning, which the economy proposal of City Budget Controller Robert J. Alderdice would eliminate.

Meeting with the traffic flow sub-committee yesterday the executive committee called upon taxpayers to consider carefully the value received from tax dollars paid before approving Alderdice's suggestion.

SEEK WOMAN SUICIDE'S KIN

Morgue attaches today sought relatives of Mrs. Emma Denholm, 45, who, they said, ended her life last night by firing a bullet into her head in her room in the home of Alexander Yuill, 1805 Funston avenue.

Yuill told police the woman rented housekeeping rooms two weeks ago, saying she was a widow and had relatives in Ohio.

Deputy coroners found a note which read:

"God will take care of poor old mom and Rachel, if what I provided for them is not taken away from them. Will you please see that mother gets my trunk?"

The note, signed "Mrs. E. R. Denholm," requested a $245 funeral by a Homewood funeral home.

Four Temporary Dry Writs Granted

Temporary injunctions, pending final hearings, were granted in Federal Court on complaints filed by prohibition authorities against four places. They included first floor, 507 Fourth street, Ambridge, and first floor, 19 East Pike street, Canonsburg. The others were in Erie and Elk counties.

WILL ROGERS SAYS

CORONA, Cal., Nov. 16.

To the Editor, Sun-Telegraph:

Germany has always paid each of these other nations more than each of them paid us. But Germany has quit paying them. Now they say they can't pay us. What they mean is that they could pay us, but they would have to use some of their own money to do it with. And of course a thing as revolutionary as that never entered their heads. Now the big joke is that we had been loaning Germany all the money that they paid them, so that they could pay us.

Will Rogers

So it really wasn't Europe that fell down on the debts, it was us. It's all our fault. It was a wonderful idea, as the Republicans worked it for years, only we ran out of money and couldn't keep it going. But don't ever lay the fault on Europe for not paying us. They would start tomorrow if we would just loan 'em the money to do it on. Yours, WILL.

DOUBLE KILLING BLAMED ON JEALOUSY

Pair Found Dead in Room by Son of Victim

Relatives today claimed the bodies of Patrolman Charles B. Bloomer and the woman he shot dead, Mrs. Leona Williams—and they were taken from the morgue.

Mrs. Eva T. Bloomer, of 26 Millbridge street, identified the body of her husband, from whom she had been separated.

Mrs. Williams

A cousin of Mrs. Williams, Jennie Swigart, of 601 Sandusky street, acting for the woman's family, took charge of her body. She told Deputy Coroner R. D. Newman that Bloomer had threatened to shoot Mrs. Williams three times. She said they first met three years ago when a former husband of Mrs. Williams threatened her and she called a policeman. They had been friends since, although he sometimes beat her.

KILLS WOMAN, SELF

Yesterday, in a jealous quarrel, he killed her and then himself. Their bodies were found in her boarding house, 237 South Highland avenue.

Bloomer was scheduled to appear in County Court today to answer complaint of his wife that he was in arrears in payments to her. At a hearing last week, Bloomer said he was in arrears $240 because of cuts in wages. It was bought out that he was separated from his wife in 1925 when the court ordered him to pay $60 a month support for her and three children, Margaret, 17; Charles, 16, and Edward, 11. The case was postponed for a week to allow attorneys to find the extent of his wage cuts.

The bodies were discovered by Mrs. Williams' son, Robert, 19, of 280 Shady avenue, who said he had kicked in the bedroom door when no response came from his summons. He called police.

SHOT IN SLEEP

Reconstructing the crime, police said Bloomer probably shot the woman at close range while she slept.

Mrs. Williams has seven children by two marriages. Her daughter said she had applied for divorce from her second husband.

Bloomer had a night beat in the Squirrel Hill district. His police address was 280 Shady avenue. He was married and had several children, and while a clipping in his pocket revealed that he had applied for a divorce, it was not known whether it had been granted.

He had been suspended Monday night by Lieut. Michael O'Connor for sleeping on duty, the lieutenant said. He also had been suspended by Lieut. Zack Fleming in April, 1929, after he had been found in a Western avenue restaurant with Mrs. Williams, it was reported.

Several years ago he had been fired along with a Negro officer for robbing a drunken man in Manchester, police said.

Mt. Lebanon Opens Community Library

Formal opening of Mt. Lebanon's new community library, consisting of 6,500 volumes, donated by citizens of the township, was held last night following ceremonies in the municipal auditorium.

Speakers included James Bridges, chairman; the Rev. E. C. McCown, Louis C. Clark, chairman of the board of Township Commissioners; Mrs. Charles Goldthwait, president of the Mt. Lebanon Women's Club; Miss Kathryn Peoples, librarian; Dr. Thomas M. Heard, Jr., Charles Mason, George Seibel, Edwin B. Goldsmith, president of the Lions' Club, and Mrs. Ethel Evans, chairman of the board of trustees of the new library association.

Railways' Street Request Up to Board

City Council has referred to the Traction Conference Board the request of the Pittsburgh Street Railways Company to occupy a newly-improved section of California avenue near Sedgwick street, the improvement eliminating a dangerous intersection.

The Law Department was requested to amend the proposed ordinance to have the company state whether it would give up its franchise on the old route.

Detective Plays Dog, Rescues Police Owl

It would never have happened—this little South Side melodrama—if someone hadn't closed the aperture through which Lulu, pet owl of the South Side police, returns each dawn to her home in the attic of the station.

Maybe Lulu didn't get back in time. Anyhow, the screech owl was locked out, and found in her daily doze, on the branch of a tree behind the station yesterday. Hundreds of sparrows were attacking, flying in and out of the tree. Their pecks meant ultimate death.

Boys on the street, noting the owl's plight, threw stones at the sparrows. But they ignored them.

And so enters John Harkins, a precinct detective, who arrived on the scene. He saw the futility of stones. Now one of Harkins' extra-legal talents is barking like a dog. He barked at the sparrows and they fled. And the owl was recovered and put back in its hole in the attic. The owl, outside of some lost sleep, was unhurt.

EDITOR SCORES 'ALARMIST' CLAIMS

Rear Admiral Richard E. Byrd's statement here that the nation's tax bill amounts to $15,000,000,000 a year was challenged today by Harold S. Buttenheim, New York editor, in addressing the National Conference on city planning.

Buttenheim said the figures were grossly exaggerated, and added:

"The source of this estimate Admiral Byrd did not reveal, but I am not aware that any responsible and unprejudiced research organization has ever computed the combined collections of all governmental units in the United States in any one year at over $12,000,000,000. The actual figure this year is probably not over $10,000,000,000.

ALARMIST CLAIMS

"This exageration of $3,000,000,000 to $5,000,000,000 is a fairly substantial sum, even for a rear admiral and a National economy League which is bolstering up its alarmist exaggerations with the names of an advisory committee of eminent citizens who apparently have taken the trouble to check the statistics and the statements which the league spokesmen are making in their membership campaign."

Admiral Byrd spoke here Monday in launching the Western Pennsylvania branch of the National Economy League.

The league is designed to obtain a reduction in governmental expenses and is opposing immediate payment of the soldiers' bonus on the grounds that it would impose a greater burden on the taxpayers.

Buttenheim was one of several speakers who addressed the planning conference today. Others were J. Lionberger Davis, St. Louis, and Frederick H. Fay, of Boston.

FAVORS ECONOMY

Buttenheim said:

"I am, of course, in favor of elimination of waste and graft where such exist, but to allege, as does Admiral Byrd that 'state and local taxes must be cut $2,750,000,000,' and to assume that any such reduction could be made without greatly increasing unemployment, deepening the depression, and depriving the public of needed governmental services, is utterly to misrepresent the needs of the times."

In concluding, he said:

"We do not now need any large new capital expenditures for competitive manufacture; but we do need orders for our factories and jobs instead of doles for the unemployed. So we must turn to vastly increased governmental expenditures as the force which can bring hope and prosperity to our sorely harassed fellow citizens."

2 HELD AFTER FATAL HOLDUP IN CARRICK

Two men were held for court today as an outgrowth of last Saturday's attempted robbery of the Carrick car house and gun battle in which Elmer McCorckle, 32, of 401 East Belchrant street, was shot to death and Patrolman Howard Fiedler injured.

After a hearing in the South Side Police Court, Francis A. Jedlick, 29, of 2933 Brentwood avenue, and Walter Frielhofer, 38, of 830 Roll street, were held, the former on charges of larceny, entering a building, carrying concealed weapons and conspiracy. The latter was held on a conspiracy charge, which followed alleged implication in the plan to rob the car barn by Jedlick. Frielhofer, Jedlick told police, was the lookout.

Police charged that Jedlick and others robbed the Carrick car house March 11, getting $660 in cash from the lockers and $582 in car checks.

Patrolman Fiedler is in the Mercy Hospital. The second patrolman, George Stone, escaped when a bullet hit a service button.

WIDOW ACCUSES POLITICIAN

GREENSBURG, Pa., Nov. 16.—Declaring that she was afraid of "blackhanders" and withheld naming the slayer of her husband, Mrs. Pauline Masco, widow of Ralph Masco, today told a dramatic story in the second trial of Tony Alessio, Monessen politician, charged with the murder.

She declared Allesio hurried into the house about 20 minutes after the shooting inquiring what had happened. She said she accused him of killing her husband and declared he threatened her, saying:

"Keep quiet or I will shoot the entire family."

These explanatory remarks came from the witness during questioning by Assistant District Attorney Paul K. McCormick.

Man Lives Despite Injury Held Fatal

CHARLEROI, Pa., Nov. 16.—(AP.)—A man doctors say should have died several days ago passed his one hundred and twelfth hour of life on "borrowed time" today. He is Stephen Nandor, 28, World War veteran, who suffered a splintered skull in an automobile accident.

A brain specialist and members of the staff of Charleroi-Monessen Hospital maintain their vigil at his bedside, puzzling over a case they term new in the study of medicine and surgery.

Luzerne Slayer's Execution Delayed

HARRISBURG, Nov. 16.—(AP.)—A respite staying execution of Joseph E. Hudock, alias Joseph E. Hudak, convicted of first-degree murder in Luzerne County, was issued today by Gov. Pinchot.

Execution, set for the week of Monday, December 12, is delayed to the week of Monday, January 2, to permit hearing of an application for a commutation of the death sentence by the pardon plea.

Divorced

MRS. NELL Q. DONNELLY

KIDNAP VICTIM WINS DIVORCE

KANSAS CITY, Nov. 16.—(AP.)—Mrs. Nell Quinlan Donnelly, wealthy garment manufacturer who was the victim of $75,000 ransom, was granted a divorce in Circuit Court late yesterday from her husband, Paul Francis Donnelly.

Mrs. Donnelly said that her husband had been absent from the family home, in front of which she was abducted last December, and that he had been guilty "of acts of cruelty and neglect." Donnelly did not contest the suit.

Mrs. Donnelly was held prisoner more than 30 hours in a Wyandotte County (Kan.) cottage following her abduction, but was released voluntarily. Four of the kidnapers were given prison sentences.

World War Officer Awarded $9,77

Herbert Clyde Caldwell, of Mount Gretna, Pa., a veteran of the World War, was awarded a verdict for $9,773 by a Federal Court jury in a suit to recover on a $10,000 war risk insurance policy, heard before Judge Nelson McVicar. Caldwell claimed disability because of injuries he met in France while serving as a lieutenant.

It was the first of 31 war risk insurance suits listed for trial at the November Court term.

Pastor to Discuss German Conditions

The Rev. Dr. John Ray Ewers, pastor of the East End Christian Church, will speak on "Conditions in Germany" at a dinner of the Brotherhood of the Sixth Presbyterian Church tonight. He spent last summer in Germany. Mrs. Norval R. Daugherty, a reader, will give several selections, and a male quartet, directed by Chester Sterling, will furnish music.

WOMEN SOLVING ICE PROBLEMS

Women will have an important part in the future growth of the ice industry, according to three feminine members of the National Association of Ice Industries attending the national convention at the William Penn Hotel.

While male delegates heard their leaders predict increased business for next year, perfected business-getting programs and organized committees, the feminine importance was being stressed in an interview.

These three leaders were Mrs. Elva Unger, general manager of the Wabash Ice and Fuel Company, Wabash, Ind.; Mrs. Harriett Gray, manager of refrigerator sales department and supervisor of employes' training, Polar Ice and Fuel Company, Indianapolis, and Miss Eleanor Bennett, home service manager, New England Cities Ice Company, Boston.

Mrs. Gray, who has her own tool kit, and doesn't hesitate to visit homes and repair locks or hinges, or retouch the paint, was confirmed by her two associates when she said:

"The ice industry has only recently recognized the importance women can play in sales work. Women know the feminine mind and can speak on food matters, proper refrigeration and even menus in building good will. The industry thus offers women a new field of endeavor."

VETS CALL BYRD FENCE JUMPER

Rear Admiral Richard E. Byrd and the National Economy League, were assailed by members of the McGrail-Coyne Post, No. 223, Veterans of Foreign Wars, last night.

Byrd was described as a former service man who "had jumped to the other side of the fence."

The sincerity of the league was Warfeld because he charged it concentrated upon a proposed reduction in expenditures for veterans. Warfield said:

"The great majority of veterans are taxpayers and the veteran is just as interested as any other citizen in the economical administration of federal expenditures. However, he naturally resents this discrimination against his disabled and needy comrades.

"The National Economy League would do well to turn its attention to other phases of government activities where the opportunities for the elimination of waste and abuses are far greater."

Audit Costing County Additional $25,000

The County Commissioners have made another $25,000 appropriation for the audit being conducted by Main & Co. The auditors have been at work nine months and the total amount appropriated is $150,000.

Athlete's Injuries Bring $950 Award

Fred Bair, high school athlete, of Homestead, was awarded $100 in his $15,000 damage suit against Max Baer, a dentist, of 1920 Murray avenue, that grew out of an automobile accident at Forbes and Dallas avenues, September 11, 1929. The jury awarded Bair's father $850. At the time of the accident, Bair testified, he was a member of Homestead High School's track team.

Tear Gas Explosion Scatters Policemen

A score of patrolmen and two lieutenants fled the North Side Police Station last night when a tear gas cartridge exploded as Michael Dougherty examined it.

John Bray, radio scout car patrolman, had handed Dougherty the cartridge, requesting a new one. When the cartridge exploded the station house was quickly emptied. Bray received a new cartridge.

WILD CARGO

as quick in their movements as if built on springs.

Our work-loathing native—an ingenious chap, like many other men inspired by laziness—evolved a method that gave rise to a whole army of "cocoanut monkeys" and it is no longer necessary for a Malay to shin up his trees unless he's an exercise fiend or lacks the price of a pig-tailed rhesus or the resourcefulness to catch and train one.

The system is simple. It works like this:

Around the neck of the fruit-plucking rhesus there is a collar to which is fastened 50 to 60 feet of sturdy twine. The monkey's master leads him to the tree that is to be worked and sends him scampering up it. The monkey selects a cocoanut, plants himself on it and waits a few seconds for his chief below to see if it's the fruit he wants.

LOOSENS COCOANUTS

The native looks up, and if the cocoanut doesn't seem ripe enough he jerks the twine and the monkey hops aboard another nut. If there isn't a jerk of the cord he goes to work. Grabbing a branch overhead for security, he starts whirling the cocoanut around with his feet. He continues this treadmilling process, spinning the cocoanut around and around until he has twisted it off the tough stem and sent it toppling to the ground.

All of which is by way of introducing the theme of jungle first-aid that, in the course of some animal-collecting activities of mine a number of years ago, got itself all tangled up in the cocoanut-gathering method practiced by those ingenious Malays and their clever simian assistants.

I was in Sumatra, on an animal-collecting trip, and we were headquartering at Domji.

One day, after tramping 12 miles through heavy brush and jungle, I wound up with my assistants (Ali, my Number One Malay boy, and three Batik boys) in a clearing on the outskirts of a native kompong. We were fagged and thirsty and I was delighted when I noticed a cocoanut grove in this clearing. There is nothing quite so refreshing as a drink of fresh cocoanut milk after a wearing trek. I decided to buy some of the fruit and rest my party before pushing on further in quest of the animals we were after.

A REVIVING BEVERAGE

Usually when one buys a cocoanut in the United States it contains but a small quantity of milk. A nut that is just taken from the tree is an entirely different proposition. It is full of fluid and makes an excellent drink, one that is reviving and safe. There are very few places in Asia where one can drink water that hasn't been boiled, and when such water is unavailable there is nothing like a drink of cocoanut milk.

There is a way of knocking off one end of the nut with a parang so that the result is a pleasant natural drinking-cup brimful of liquid refreshment. It is a knack that one cultivates and I am now as adept at it as any native. The trick is to nick the "eye end" of the nut so accurately that not one drop of the precious fluid is lost. To spill any of the contents is to write oneself down as an amateur.

In the center of the grove there was the usual nipa-palm shack. I sought out the native who made his home here, noticing with pleasure as I came up to the hut that he had a cocoanut monkey tied outside. I know nothing more amusing than the sight of one of these clever monkeys plying his trade.

The native readily agreed to sell me some cocoanuts. He brought out his long "tree line" and attached it to the monkey's collar. Then he walked his simian fruit-gatherer over to a tree that was well clustered with the refreshing nuts.

By way of showing that he was a real pig-tailed rhesus with all the savagery of his species, the monkey turned and glared at us two or three times, displaying a formidable set of canine teeth.

The monkey scrambled up the tree and went to work. At last he finished his job, that of plucking five cocoanuts — one for each member of our party — in the manner I have described earlier. The job was not an easy one either, for several times the native was forced to jerk the string to indicate that the cocoanut on which the simian was preparing to work was not the one wanted.

One of the Batik boys had never seen a cocoanut monkey operate before and he was fascinated by the whole proceeding. He stood around at the base of the tree to get a good look at the smart little rhesus as it slid down the trunk after performing its job.

Without warning, the simian, as it scampered to the ground, whirled around and made for the boy. There was enough slack in the rope to give him his chance and he sank his teeth in the calf of the Batik's right leg. When the boy reached down in an effort to shake off his assailant, the vicious rhesus got him by the wrist. As I reached the scene (I had been resting in the shade of a nearby tree) the monkey tore a sizeable piece of flesh out of the inside of the wrist, the blood spurting out in all directions. The animal's master got his savage charge under control and tied him up before any further damage could be done.

In an instant I clamped my fingers firmly around the Batik's arm to stop the flow of blood and yelled to the horrified owner of the cocoanut grove to get me some water and cloths.

Ohio Church Calls Johnstown Pastor

MARTINS FERRY, O., Nov. 16.—St. John's Lutheran Church has extended a call to the Rev. Paul W. Heist, of Johnstown, Pa. The pulpit is vacant due to the death of the Rev. J. C. Twele.

441 MILLIONS IN YULE CLUBS

NEW YORK, Nov. 16.—(AP.)—More than $441,000,000 will be distributed within the next two weeks to 10,500,000 members of Christmas clubs by 7,000 banking and other organizations, it was announced today.

Herbert F. Rawll, president of Christmas Club, Inc., said that the average distribution would be $42 per person against $47 per depositor last year. Banks affiliated with other organizations will make similar distributions. The grand total has not been determined.

Of the $441,000,000 Rawll estimated that $167,500,000 would be used to purchase Christmas presents; $123,500,000 for permanent investment or saving; $48,500,000 to take care of year-end bills and other commitments; $44,000,000 for taxes; $26,500,000 for mortgage interest and similar charges; $22,000,000 for insurance premiums and the balance of $9,000,000 for education, charity, travel and similar purposes.

Constable Arrested Over $1 Bet Girl Won

VINELAND, N. J., Nov. 16.—(INS.)—Miss Hilda Olsen, a stenographer, who bet Constable Pasquale Fiorelli $1 that Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt would win the election, caused the constable's arrest today when he failed to pay the bet.

He was set at liberty in $500 bail by Justice of the Peace Harry B. DeWitt for a hearing November 19, when a six-man jury will decide the case under the contract law.

When CHILDREN

—don't gain weight
—don't grow strong
—don't keep well

The stomach is not to blame when a child is finicky about food. Nor is every sluggish girl or boy constipated. Instead of a lot of medicine, give a little pure fig syrup. You'll see a change in twenty-four hours! In a couple of weeks, your youngster will have the appetite of a young animal!

It's true, mothers, for it's Nature. California fig syrup is bottled health for the little ones.

For Any Sluggish Child

Pale, sickly children whose tongues are always coated, and who are never really hungry, are suffering from stasis. That means a sluggish colon; a colon clogged with waste. They need the "California treatment." You can give this treatment yourself, anytime, anywhere; it's simple. Every druggist has California fig syrup all bottled, with full directions for a babe of two years or child in his teens. Its delicious taste makes it delightful to use; no child ever tired of it.

Start tonight, giving enough to cleanse the colon of every bit of poisonous waste. Then a spoonful or so, every other day, until the child's appetite, color, weight, and general health tell you all sluggishness or constipation has been conquered.

When a bad cold or severe sickness has sapped a child's strength and stamina, remember California fig syrup.

IMPORTANT!

If you want to get real results, get the real California fig syrup. Do not accept any bottle which does not say CALIFORNIA fig syrup.

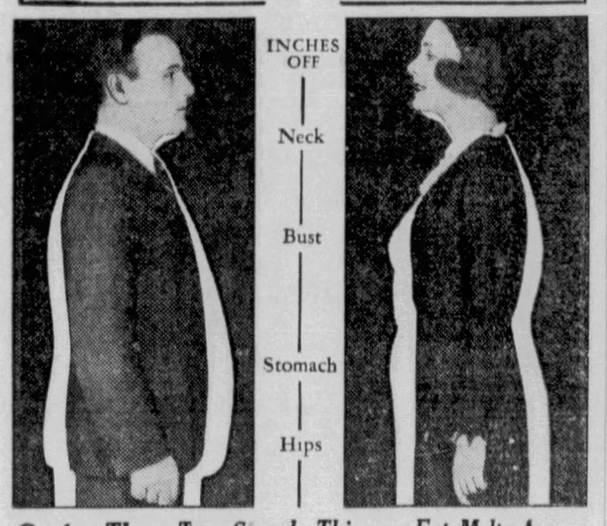
Simple to Lose a Pound of Fat a Day on a Full Stomach



Do Just These Two Simple Things—Fat Melts Away

Here is a quick and easy way to take off a pound a day—four to seven pounds every week!—with never a hungry moment. A way any doctor will tell you is safe and sure.

This is what you do: Take a teaspoonful ordinary Jad Salts in a glass of water half hour before breakfast every morning. This reduces moisture-weight instantly. Also cleanses your system of the waste matter and excess toxins that most fat people have, and banishes puffiness and bloat.

Then do this about eating. FILL YOUR STOMACH—eat your fill—of lean meats, vegetables like spinach, cauliflower, cabbage, tomatoes, etc., and lots of salads. Eat a lot. Eat all you can hold. Don't go hungry a minute. Cut down on butter, sweets and desserts, bread. Eat any fruit for dessert.

That's all you do. Fat seems to melt away. The coarse lines of overweight give way to the refined ones of slenderness. You lose as much as a pound a day. You feel better than for years. For in this treatment you achieve two important results. The Jad Salts clear your system of toxins. *The diet takes off fat with food that turns to energy instead of weight.

If you're tired of being embarrassed by fat, try this way. You'll be glad that you did. You can get Jad Salts at any drug store.

*Note particularly—the salts are urged purely as a poison-banishing agent—not as a reducing. The change in food does the work.

WASH OUT YOUR K-I-D-N-E-Y-S— SLEEP FINE

No More Getting Up Nights

So you feel achy all over, miserable and blue? Your head feels "crowded" your nerves quiver, you have pin-and-needle cramps—your appetite has gone and you feel weak as a cat. Don't fill your stomach with tonics or laxatives or rheumatism remedies. How can they help if it is your kidneys.

The job of the kidneys is to strain the uric acid and other poisons out of your blood. They purify your blood, that's it. Now you must not let these acids stay in the kidneys or they'll get back in the blood and poison your whole body. That's why your kidneys must pass 3 pints of "water" a day. Let them fail and you know it. Your appetite goes back on you, so does your pep, your sleep, and your nerves—your back hurts, your ankles and feet may swell up and you feel cranky and sick.

Now see what a wonderful change takes place after you start on Foley Pills. Kidney action increases at once. Out go those acids. Burning stops. Sleep is sounder, and none of this getting up business. You feel like "somebody."

Your druggist has Foley Pills. Sells a lot of them, because most people know how good they are. Don't cost much either—but they certainly do a grand job. If they don't, your money back any time you want it. ©1932

Patricia Pitt

Patricia Pitt's Sprightly Comment on Pittsburgh's Society Happenings

The highlight of social news for today is a betrothal, word of which reached me late this morning. One of Sewickley's young sons is engaged to an eastern girl.

The Eugene C. Wordens, of New York and New Canaan, Conn., are announcing today the engagement of their daughter, Jeanette, to William Arrott Adams, son of Mrs. Samuel Adams, of Sewickley.

Mr. Adams is a member of the class of 1930 at Williams College. His fiancee has been studying sculpture under Alexander Archipenko, the Russian artist, ever since she was graduated in 1930 from the Lennox School.

The wedding is to be soon—in December. * * *

This faring forth to the East for football games did not end with the Yale-Princeton 7-7 game the past week-end! Many will be at the Yale-Harvard game this Saturday.

Many to See Game

Among them will be young Mary Louise Ellis, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. C. J. Ellis, of North Negley avenue, who is a student at Connecticut College.

Mary will go to the dances and other affairs, always attending such a notable game.

She'll not be home for the brief Thanksgiving holiday, but will go to Taunton, Mass., to be the guest of a classmate, Eugenia Brownell, who'll have a house party.

* * *

Tickets and tables for that near-at-hand benefit, the supper-dance and bridge to be given Friday night at Longue Vue Country Club by the West Penn Cot Club, are going fast.

Tables Taken

Mrs. A. P. Burchfield has made reservations, and so have Mrs. Robert T. Eastelle, Mrs. Stanley Smith, Miss Mary Burchfield, Mrs. C. F. C. Arensberg, Mrs. T. Clifton Jenkins, Mrs. J. S. Green and Mrs. F. J. Chesterman.

* * *

A group of post-debs, Madelaine Alexander, Mary Elizabeth Floyd, Mary Franklin Robinson and Katherine Collin, will attend the Yale-Harvard game, the big event of Saturday for ever so many smart folk. Four Sewickley boys who also are going to the game are Thomas Standish, Jr., J. Judson Brooks, Jr., Charles J. Ramsburg, Jr., and Alexander M. Brooks.

* * *

Harry A. Azinsky, assistant concertmaster of the Pittsburgh Symphony, which will open its concert series Sunday evening at Syria Mosque, will give a violin recital at the Woman's City Club rooms, William Penn Hotel, this afternoon in behalf of the Symphony. Accompanying the violinist will be Julia Katz Golomb.

Reception for Parents At Pitt on Friday

Approximately 2,000 new members will be added unofficially to the faculty of the University of Pittsburgh Friday evening when Chancellor John G. Bowman will hold his anual reception for the parents of members of the freshman class in Soldiers and Sailors Memorial Hall.

At this time parents will go into conference with the faculty members who are advisors to the students concerning the work and attitude of the students. After an address by the chancellor the students' grade cards will be given to the parents, who will then have an opportunity to meet administrative officers and members of the faculty.

The University Orchestra and the Women's Glee Club will provide the music for the evening. Students of the university invited to act as aides are Miss Frances Abes, Miss Eve Amundson, Miss Mary Blackburn, Miss Evelyn Blaisdell, Miss Genevieve Blatt, Miss Elaine Blauvet, Miss Jessie Bissett, Miss Lois Booth, Miss Lois Boggs, Miss Florence Bowman, Miss Ruth Bowser, Miss Eleanor Brankstone, Miss Phyllis Cook, Miss Agnes Calabrese, Miss Edith Carpenter, Miss Elizabeth Cassel, Miss Helen Chalker, Miss Mildred Clark, Miss Yetta Cohen, Miss Kathryn Cronister.

By NANCY JANE

There's a bit of humor now and then in taking pictures.

Patricia Pitt's cameraman and one of the society editors were out at the Fisher home to take a picture of Mrs. Gordon Fisher, Jr., her little girl, Mary Arnold Fisher, and her baby, Gordon Fisher III, who'll go to the Junior League Children's Hour Saturday morning in the P. A. A.

"Will you get your little brother to look at you?" the society editor asked Mary.

And Mary leaned down and kissed him!

Brown-eyed Patricia Humphreys, the Alan S. Humphreys' daughter, who'll also attend the Children's Hour, five one-reel educational movies, introduced all her family of dolls before having her picture taken.

In the picture of dancing debs on this page, the girls are having a struggle, you can see, to keep from laughing and to hold their pose for the picture. The reason? A gallery of giggling sister debs, waiting their turn to be photographed.

The debs this year are cuter than ever. Or do we think that each year?

Classes in Expression Being Conducted at Woman's City Club

By MRS. CHARLES M. BREGG

There's a course of classes at the Woman's City Club on Tuesday and Friday mornings, members of which will be much more definitely articulate when the course is ended. At any rate, it won't be Miss Maud Miner's fault if they aren't. Just sitting in on this particular group is fascinating; to be one of them is a privilege.

Miss Miner calls it a class in the philosophy and technique of self-expression. She explains that she doesn't expect to make public speakers of her pupils—if they make the necessary adaptation themselves all the better. What she does is to teach them to know their mental attitudes as related to every-day life in all its activities for the purpose of effective expression. Right under their very eyes personality is developed, self-consciousness is replaced by self-confidence in a marvelously forceful, albeit absolutely gentle, way and the students grow in sympathetic understanding of others because they understand themselves.

Miss Miner holds that her method is practicable and workable at any age, but the earlier the better. Her keen insight into and analysis of her pupils' frailties and habits, not only of speech but of character as it is reflected in their speech; her kindly, gentle way of pointing these out and overcoming them are little short of psychoanalysis. And her method of teaching is quite as remarkable as it is original. Miss Miner stresses the necessity of a definite objective, of limitless faith and the importance of particularizing rather than generalizing. Any repression, she says, is due to lack of directed thought at some previous time.

Yesterday's lesson was on stating an opinion and one scarcely realized until Miss Miner pointed them out how many facets this commonplace sounding subject may present. On Friday morning the emphasis will be on stating a wish. In addition to the group work, each member of the class is given a private interview.

SIMPLICITY IN DESIGN AND FABRIC INSURES SMARTNESS

Sketched in Paris

Paris Bureau,
Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph.

PARIS, Nov. 16. — The Paris dressmakers have learned at least one important lesson this year; that the simplest costume is often, after all, the smartest one. In previous seasons more than one designer has fallen by the wayside in an extreme effort to be different, when the most obvious and simplest type of dress would have made him into a success—a process in the making and planning and wearing of clothes which is repeated at least once in the life of every woman who plans her own clothes.

* * *

THIS KNOWLEDGE of the value of simple clothes has always been one of the outstanding virtues of Jane Regny, the Paris designer of sports clothes. She knows, as well as any of her neighbors, not so much what to put on a dress as what to leave off.

* * *

WITNESS TWO of the Regny dresses that are being worn all over Paris today, and which are sketched here. The suit is a 1933 version of the old familiar Norfolk—skirt that is amply full by means of plaits, yet straight and slim, and jacket that follows classic lines, with plenty of pockets. The whole costume is made of a warm, light-weight jersey in a color which is neither beige nor gray, but a little of each.

* * *

THE OTHER Regny costume is more brilliant in color, but equally simple and practical in design and fabric. The fully plaited skirt, of loosely woven wool, is the color of wine dregs; the knitted sweater, with its white vestee of crepe de chine, is bright yellow.

PLANNERS SEE BRIGHT FUTURE

Pittsburgh and other large centers will be healthier and better places to live in by 1982, it was asserted by speakers at a civic dinner in the Hotel Schenley last night. The dinner was in connection with the National Conference on City Planning being held in the Schenley this week.

Thomas Adams, Harvard University professor, and Louis Brownlow, director of the Public Administration Clearing House, Chicago, speaking on "Community Life Fifty Years from Now," agreed that many changes in city life are likely to take place, but said their nature will largely be determined by long-range plans agreed upon within the next decade.

Are your teeth only 1/5 protected?

Use SQUIBB'S— the 5-way dentifrice

NOW— a new size at 25c to meet a growing demand —in addition to the over-size tube at 40c

1 It cleans effectively and safely.

2 It polishes well and safely — with complete freedom from grit.

3 It prevents bleeding of the gums the safe way — by keeping them healthy, and avoids using dangerous astringents. Frequent bleeding of the gums no dentifrice can cure. The dentist should be consulted.

4 It is economical because it gives greatest protection. Squibb Dental Cream is sold at the lowest price manufacturing cost permits. Its use is true economy.

5 It combats the germ acids that cause tooth-decay.

You have a right to demand a dentifrice that will benefit your teeth, not in one or two ways only, but in every way that can contribute to oral health. That is why millions are choosing Squibb Dental Cream. It is really five dentifrices in one.

In the Squibb scientifically balanced formula all the purposes of an effective dentifrice have been served. Each ingredient is carefully selected and repeatedly tested. When you buy such a product as a dentifrice, you can only take the manufacturer's claims on faith. But in buying Squibb Dental Cream you need have no doubts. It contains the Priceless Ingredient — the Honor and Integrity of its Maker.

Visit your dentist regularly. And give your teeth all-round protection by brushing them at least twice a day with Squibb's.

Edna Oliver Gets Big Role

BY HARRISON CARROLL
(Copyright, 1932, King Features Synd., Inc.)

HOLLYWOOD, Nov. 16. Just to chalk up another mark for Hollywood's "over 40" brigade, Edna May Oliver figures largely in R-K-O's plans for the coming year. As a starter, she will play one of the most important roles in Richard Dix's new picture, "The Great Jasper."

Hailed widely for her fine performance in "Cimarron," the veteran actress has not always had the best stories to follow up this success. Now, however, with Marie Dressler, Alison Skipworth and Henrietta Crosman looming importantly on the Hollywood horizon, R-K-O has decided to do something about it.

Edna May Oliver

The first result is the role of the seeress in "The Great Jasper."

Though the studio still is seeking a leading woman for Dix, this film is due for early production. It will have little Dorothy Wilson, former stenographer, in the cast and will be directed by J. Walter Ruben.

HOLLYWOOD BY NIGHT

Want to look in on the stars celebrating Armistice night? Better try the Cocoanut Grove where the Thalians are giving their annual party. It's 11 o'clock and you can just barely move on the dance-floor. There is Mary Pickford getting up to waltz with Johnny Mack Brown. Virginia Valli and Charlie Farrell won't brave the crush, however. Charlie is still under the weather. Phil Harris starts to sing into the microphone and the dancers pack around the orchestra. Colleen Moore and Merwyn Leroy try vainly to break away but finally give it up. Tall John Wayne, dancing with Josephine Saenz has better luck.

Get to the edge of the floor and work your way around. That large group is Frank Borzage's welcome home party to his wife, who has just returned from Honolulu. The couple tete-a-tete are Raquel Torres and Charles Feldman. Evelyn Brent and Harry Edwards again. You see them everywhere. And incidentally, how about someone signing Betty for a picture? Louis B. Mayer has another big party, among them the William Goetzes and Ricardo Cortez. There are Reginald Denny and "Bubbles." Also Bebe Daniels and Ben Lyon.

Evelyn Brent

Now the dance is over and Ben Bard is on the platform to introduce the entertainers. Ruth Roland sings. There is a dance by Billy Taft (he brought Rochelle Hudson to the party). And a real surprise. Martha Sleeper does an exhibition dance with a professional partner. And does it marvelously well. The orchestra plays a song written by Cherry Sale. She is Chic's daughter and looks just like him. Charles Irwin comes in as relief master of ceremonies. Helen "Boop, Boop a Doop" Kane makes a hit. More entertainers. And then Buddy Rogers fairly stops the show.

Faith

Barbara Stanwyck has a lotta faith in her husband, Frank Fay, to permit him to hold her aloft like this with a tempting pool beneath his feet.

Plays and Players

By WILLIAM J. LEWIS

"The Cat and the Fiddle," chorusless operetta coming to the Nixon next week, has a book by Otto Harbaceth and music by Jerome Kern, whose tunes have graced such musical successes as "Show Boat," "Sweet Adeline" and "Sally." The production played for a year in New York, from whence and elsewhere, has come radio acquaintanceship with some of its more popular musical numbers. These include "The Night Was Made for Love" and "She Didn't Say 'Yes'." Other songs that have been heard are "Try to Forget," "The Love Parade," "A New Love is Old" and "One Moment Alone." There will be three matinees, Wednesday, Thanksgiving Day and Saturday. The public sale of seats begins tomorrow.

Pittsburgh isn't the only town that is to have a revival of "Cradle Snatchers," which will have Blanche Ring in the leading role in the Pitt next week. New York, town of its original success, will witness a second production of the comedy's hit tonight, with Florence Moore featured. "Cradle Snatchers" will require the appearance of all the femmes among the Edwin Vail Players, Betty Hanna, Ella Ethridge, Kathryn Meskyl and Grayce Thorson. To make Thanksgiving Day complete for his customers Eddie Vail is going to let them have "Cradle Snatchers" without the usual holiday bulge on admission.

Katharine Cornell has chosen for the premiere of her new play, "Lucrece," the same theater in which she first appeared in "The Barretts of Wimpole Street," same being the Hanna, Cleveland. The date, Tuesday, November 29, for an engagement of five days only. This will be followed by a week in Detroit, where she got her early training on the stage under the late Jessie Bonstelle, and another week in her home town, Buffalo. The date for New York premiere has not been selected.

The musical version of "Cyrano De Bergerac," now on view in Boston for the first time on any stage, has been retitled "Roxanne." . . . Another Boston musical hit is "DuBarry," with Grace Moore of the Metropolitan Opera in the principal role . . . Leslie Howard, who has been in Hollywood too long for the good of the stage, is threatening to write a play in order to get himself back of the footlights again, with London as the preferred place . . . Beatrice Lillie's little playmates this season are to be Clark and McCullough, in a revue, "Walk a Little Faster," that will open Friday in Boston. . . . The Central City (Col.) version of "Camille," with Lillian Gish, folded after a brief week in New York . . . "The Giant Swing," screen adaptation of the W. R. Burnett novel, will have Sally Eilers and Norman Foster opposite each other.

Alice White Wins Important Role

Taking another step toward regaining her position as a screen star, Alice White today agreed to enact an important role in Paramount's "Luxury Liner." In "Luxury Liner," which B. P. Schulberg is producing, she will appear with George Brent, Zita Johann, John Halliday and Richard Bennett.

BITS OF LIFE

All in a Day

BY MARK HELLINGER

SUE WAS AN ambitious kid. Where she came from and who her people were, I have no way of knowing. But she was, somehow, different from the rest of the kids in the follies ensemble. There was always more reserve about her. More natural charm. And, perhaps, more ability. Her ambition, like so many others, was to become a star of the stage.

Now, meet the man in the case. He—let's say he was George—was a retired Army officer. George was old enough to have been Sue's grandfather. For Sue was in the neighborhood of 20. And George had already passed 50.

But how are you going to figure these things? The man had breeding and poise. He could talk, and he had a vast amount of personal charm. Moreover, he was a perfect gentleman.

And so, after four or five meetings, Sue fell in love. George beat her by five meetings because he had fallen in love the very first time he saw her. But he had to wait. And wait he did.

Then, when he called for her at the New Amsterdam one night, he told her his story.

"Sue," he said, "I love you. I can't offer you money and I can't offer you youth. All I can give you is my heart and the love I bear you.

"Dearest girl, I am asking you to marry me. Perhaps it's a futile want, but I had to tell you. What is your answer?"

The girl stepped close to him.

"George," she responded simply, "I'm looking for happiness. I think you can help me find it. I want to remain on the stage because I think I can get somewhere in the profession. If you'll agree to that, I'll marry you.

"For I love you, George. More than you know." . . .

For three years, Sue and George were ideally happy. She respected her husband—and he loved his wife beyond all belief.

Sue was out of the Follies now. She was playing small parts in various productions. Sue's roles were by no means stellar. But she was learning. And she was happy.

George's health began to go. The war had left its mark on him. Doctors told him that he would have to leave for the West at once. And rather than tell the girl he loved the true state of affairs, he told her that he had received an offer of a fine job in Denver, Col.

Ever try to lie to a girl who loves you? Toughest thing in the world, my friends. She knew that George was lying. She knew the true reason why he had to go to Denver. She had seen it coming for some time. But did she tell him? Not that girl.

A few days later, she kissed him goodbye. Both of them were laughing merrily as the train pulled out. And both of them were crying the minute their backs were turned . . .

She was worried about her husband. She knew the state of his health and she knew that he had very little money to carry him through. So she pulled the strings as best she could.

She arranged matters so that George would be offered a job as the assistant manager of a Denver theater. His duties were to be light—practically nothing. And for a good reason. She herself was to send the money for his weekly salary. And the regular manager was pledged to secrecy.

Soon there came a letter from George. It was typical of him.

"My own dearest," it read. "What do you think has happened? I'm in the show business now myself!

"For some unknown reason, as I have already written you, my other job didn't pan out. And all of a sudden, from out of a clear sky, came an offer for me to manage one of the theaters out here.

"So your husband is now a manager. You'd better not play this town because I'm liable to cancel you at any time. I'm feeling fine and, aside from missing you, I'm very happy tonight.

"Write you more tomorrow. Be good, darling. And God bless you." . . .

Let's draw the curtain over another year, which doesn't bring us many moons from the present time. Sue had progressed rapidly. She had been given a real chance in a fairly important production. And this was the opening night.

As she enacted her role, Sue didn't know that George was in the audience. She had not heard from him in several days, and she had wondered why. For she had no way of knowing that he intended to be present on her opening night just to surprise her and hold her in his arms once again.

When the final curtain fell, George wended his way backstage. It took several minutes. At last he stood before her door. He knocked. She opened the portal, and they fell into a long embrace.

As they sat down to talk, George noticed a letter Sue had been writing. A puzzled feeling came over him. The letter was addressed to his boss, the manager of the Denver theater.

His hand moved toward the letter. It was unsealed. He shook it and a money order fell out. A money order for the amount of his salary. Suddenly the truth dawned upon him.

George stood up. He looked ashen. And tired. And old.

"George," Sue cried. "What is it?" What's the matter, dearest?"

He passed a hand across his forehead. And he smiled. A wan smile.

Tired, Sue dear," he replied. "Long journey here, you know, and the thrill of seeing you again. I'll be downstairs, honey. Be downstairs waiting for you."

He stumbled from the room. And the next day Sue had a note.

"It was a wonderful thing you did for me," it said, "but I cannot go on like this. I have too much pride.

"Your life is still before you. Mine is behind me. Take the freedom I now give and live your life to the utmost. And remember that I have always loved you." . . .

* * *

Sue never saw her husband again. Nobody did.

The girl had to go back to work. But there was something wrong with her. The sparkle was gone. She was dismissed from two plays during the rehearsal periods. Something had gone wrong somewhere. And people didn't know what had happened.

It was only recently that she rehearsed a love scene in a new play. The director was peeved. There was something missing.

"Stop," he shouted. "Miss Sue, what's the matter with you? You don't seem to realize that the woman you're portraying is supposed to be in love. Do you understand? In love.

"What's the matter with you? Don't you know what love is?"

She shrugged her shoulders.

"No," she replied. "Maybe you're right. Maybe I don't know what love is." . . .

New Player Ready For Debut

Verna Hillie, one of the five finalists in Paramount's "panther woman" contest, will make her screen debut in a small role in "Madame Butterfly" with Sylvia Sidney, Cary Grant and Charlie Ruggles.

Jack Oakie Signed For New Talkie

Jack Oakie, fresh from "Once in a Lifetime," has been signed by Joseph I. Schnitzer for the leading role in "Tar and Feathers," soon to be made for RKO Radio release. Vivienne Osborne will play opposite Oakie and James Cruz will direct. The story, by Frank O'Connor, deals with the adventures of a girl who disguises herself as a sailor and accompanies her sweetheart on his battleship from San Francisco to Shanghai before she is discovered.

RKO Signs Menjou For New Film

Adolph Menjou has been signed by RKO Radio Pictures to play the lead in "Now You See It," an original by Fulton Oursler, suggested by the life of Houdini. Menyou's character in the picture will be that of an escape artist and "handcuff king" who devotes himself to the "debunking" of spiritualists and mediums.

New Talkies On Way

The famous comedy team of Marie Dressler and Polly Moran is featured in "Prosperity," coming to the Penn Friday. Marie and Polly are seen climbing out of the depression.

"A Bill of Divorcement," with John Barrymore, Billie Burke and Katharine Hepburn, will be on view in the Warner for a week beginning Friday.

Opening Friday in the Davis "Thirteen Women," with Irene Dunne, Ricardo Cortez, Myrna Loy and C. Henry Gordon.

Show Girl Clicking In Pictures

Another former New York show girl is making the grade in talkies. June Brewster, a graduate of Earl Carroll "Vanities," has been given her third important role in a RKO Radio Pictures' production. She supports Harry Sweet and Harry Gribbon in "Havana Hot Shot," a comedy slated for production next week.

YOUR FOODS ARE SCORED!

Exacting scientific tests determine whether foods do or do not go into KROGER Stores

KROGER FOOD FOUNDATION scientists test foods and rate them on score-cards to be sure they measure up to Kroger Standards

The next time you go to buy canned peaches—or any Kroger foods—remember that they have been scored and approved for quality by The Kroger Food Foundation. In fact, Kroger foods are bought on exceptionally high standards, and always tested by The Kroger Food Foundation to see that they measure up.

For instance, when a shipment of peaches comes into a Kroger warehouse, several cans are selected at random—stripped of their labels—numbered—and sent to The Kroger Food Foundation for testing and scoring. Watch. The scientist punctures each can with a sharp instrument, to which is attached a gauge for measuring inrush of air (good point), or outrush (bad!). Next, he separates the peaches from the syrup—weighs them—makes sure that one is in proper proportion to the other—measures the sugar content of the syrup. Now he examines the peaches. Are they uniform in size, in shape, in color? Are they firm—free from bruise-spots and blemishes? Have they the true peachy flavor of tree-ripened fruit? And are they tender? Yes, The Foundation even tests and scores them on this delicate point—with a unique machine that records tenderness! After the peaches are scored on all these points, the score-card tells whether they do or do not go into Kroger Stores.

In the last eight weeks, The Kroger Food Foundation has made 1440 such tests on foods—from gelatin to noodles—to make sure that they measure up to Kroger standards, to insure that you are getting full quality-value and more dollar-value for every penny you spend in Kroger Stores.

PITT HOPES MIKE WILL REGAIN FORM

PITT SUPPORTERS ARE hoping that Mike Sebastian, southpaw halfback, will hit his stride again Saturday against Carnegie Tech. It has been an in-and-out season for the Sharon lad. He has looked like a star one minute and the greenest of greenhorns the next, though in doing so he has not differed greatly from many of his teammates. Sebastian rose to the heights against Notre Dame, but in the game with Penn a week later he did not have a good day, his fumbling on several occasions possibly depriving the Panthers of touchdowns. In addition, he didn't do so well at handling punts.

Mike Sebastian

Mike wasn't much better against Nebraska last Saturday. In 12 times at carrying the ball he gained a grand total of 10 yards, and as a safety man he got Pitt in hot water several times. Twice opposing ends slipped past him to down Husker punts very close to the Pitt goal line. There is no doubt about Mike's ability when he is in stride, but when he has an off day there is little that can be done about it. When he is on, there are few halfbacks in the country that can match him in brilliance. Good or bad, however, Sebastian is one football player that can get the fans excited every time he gets hold of the ball.

PITT PLAYERS ARE still discussing the Nebraska game as one of the oustanding instances of pointing in their experience. They insist that when it comes to pointing for a particular team, Nebraska folk can show the way to the remainder of the football world. There was one event the Cornhuskers wanted to win this year above all others. That was the Pitt game. And they prepared for it.

In bright, lasting paint on the front of each Nebraska player's locker was the legend, "40-0," reminiscent of the Cornhuskers' defeat here last Thanksgiving Day, the worst trimming in their history. These signs went on the first day of spring training and stayed there. The idea was that the players must not forget. And they didn't.

FOR A WEEK before the game classes were cut 50 per cent, and the extra half hour of each period was given over to pep meetings. Miniature panthers hung by their necks from trees and doorways all over the campus. Friday night a life-size replica of the traditional Pitt mascot was taken at the head of a huge "funeral" procession to the busiest street intersection in Lincoln and there burned.

The Nebraska team itself was kept in strict seclusion for three days preceding the meeting with the Sutherlands, and, according to the Pitt gridders, the Huskers came on the field wrought up to such a pitch they would have attacked even live panthers.

PANTHER DRAWBACKS HAVE included the selection of plays and poor work at the guard positions. It is no secret that the Pitt guard play at times this season has been below the high Panther standard, and the results may be noticed in the infrequent touchdown excursions of the Southerland halfbacks. A shift at one of the guard positions for Saturday would not be surprising, with Kenny Ormiston, local boy, the favored one to break into action. While on the subject of the guards, a pat on the back for Joe Tormey, who has played fine ball at center since he returned to the lineup, would not be out of order. The Erie Irishman again was the outstanding Pitt lineman last Saturday, his play being far above the otherwise mediocre work of the Pitt forwards.

Dick Harlow

THERE IS AT least one football veteran who is refreshingly different from most players and coaches of the bygone, in that he doesn't sigh for the old days and tell you that the present game is not to be compared with that of the past. He is Dick Harlow, Western Maryland coach, and former mentor at Penn State.

Much water has gone under the bridge and football has seen many changes since Harlow was turning out great teams on Mt. Nittany before the war, yet he does not hesitate to express the opinion that the gridiron pastime of today is a decided improvement over the sport in its earlier forms.

"TALK ABOUT THAT old iron-man game and the age in which it was played may be all right for some of the romantic old-timers," says Dick, "but I'd much rather have my own boy play football as it is today than throw him into the game as it was in my playing days."

Asked if he considered college football over-officiated, Harlow said there are good and bad officials and the good ones are not over-officious. The Western Maryland coach, by the way, occupies a high place among the country's ornithologists and is the author of more than one internationally respected pamphlet about birds.

IT DEVELOPS THAT when Muddy Ruel was released unconditionally by the Detroit club recently, it was done at the request of the veteran catcher himself. Ruel sent a letter to President Frank Navin, telling him he desired to become manager of a Class AA club and pointing out that he could not negotiate for such a job so long as he was tied up with the Tigers. So Navin gave the old catcher his freedom and it is expected that Ruel soon will get a pilot's post in the American Association with either the Toledo or Minneapolis club.

THE ST. LOUIS club of the National League will be a sort of home-coming center next year for "most valuable" players. The signing of Rogers Hornsby and the deal in which Bob O'Farrell was acquired put four former winners of that away on the Card roster.

Hornsby was voted the most valuable player while with the Redbirds in 1925 and again while with the Cubs in 1929. The honor was bestowed on O'Farrell in 1926, on Jim Bottomley in 1928 and on Frankie Frisch in 1931. Hornsby and O'Farrell also formerly managed the club on which they are now to be teammates.

THE PROSPECT THAT Nel Tarleton, British boxer, would be seen in this country as a contender for the world featherweight championship, has faded out. For one thing, Tarleton no longer is British champion, and for another thing he is out of commission with an injured hand.

Jimmy McLarnin

In addition to losing the British title to Seaman Watson last week, Tarleton suffered an injury to one of his hands and has canceled his proposed trip to the United States. He was to have met Baby Arizmendi, Mexican miller, in Los Angeles on December 13. It is now planned to match Arizmendi with the winner of the Kid Chocolate-Fidel La Barba bout in New York on December 16.

ANOTHER FISTIC NUMBER added to the canceled list is the proposed match in which Tony Canzoneri was to have gone out of his class for a meeting with Jimmy McLarnin. A hitch over the weight question caused the bout to be called off. Canzoneri stood pat on a demand for a limit of 144 pounds, but McLarnin refused to come in lower than 147. Following the cancellation, Tony left New York for a month's vacation and will not fight again until January.

POLO TILT CARDED

The 107th Field Artillery polo team will meet the Charleroi Veterans in a return engagement at the Hunt Armory, East End, Saturday night. The Veterans defeated the Artillerymen, 14 to 11, at Charleroi on Armistice Day.

DADO BEATS CASANOVA

LOS ANGELES Nov. 16.—(AP.)—Speedy Dado, flashing Filipino bantamweight, won a ripping 10-round decision over Baby Face Casanova, of Mexico, before 10,000 persons here last night. The victor weighed 117 pounds, a half pound less than his opponent.

HUNK FAVORS BADGERS OVER CHICAGO

ANDERSON'S CHOICES

Michigan over Minnesota.
Wisconsin over Chicago.
Purdue over Indiana.
Ohio State over Illinois.
Northwestern over Iowa.
Notre Dame over Navy.
Kansas State over Kansas.
Iowa State over Drake.
Nebraska over Oklahoma.
Ohio U. over Ohio Wesleyan.
Michigan State over Detroit.
Marquette over Washington and Jefferson.

By HEARTLY W. (HUNK) ANDERSON
Notre Dame Football Coach

The fighting Gophers of Minnesota will make a last desperate effort to stop the championship-bound Michigan team Saturday as the Big Ten season comes to a close.

Hunk Anderson one of the greatest backs in the country by throwing those touchdown passes of his this year to pull more than one game out of the fire.

Michigan should win, though, with a man like Harry Newman to throw passes, even if Minnesota should stop the Michigan running attack. Newman has stamped himself

Bernard, at center, is the spark plug of the Wolverine line and is right in line for all-Western or all-America honors, a fit successor to other great Michigan pivot men.

There will be some other great games in the conference Saturday. Wisconsin and Chicago both are out of the running for titular honors. But, believe me, they will play a ball game. Stagg will inspire his men for their last game of the season. Doc Spears, of Wisconsin, has done wonders at Wisconsin, and I'm sure he will bring the Badgers to a peak for their last game. I pick Wisconsin to win by a comfortable margin, but not until they know they've been in a ball game.

INDIANA FACES TEST

The annual battle for blood between Indiana and Purdue will occupy the attention of Hoosier fans Saturday. This game is one of those which can go either way, no matter how good or how weak the two teams are. I pick Purdue on its record. Indiana is great defensively and better than usual offensively, but it will take a great offense to score on Purdue. No one has scored through the line on the Boilermakers this year, and while the backfield has been getting a lot of credit, the Purdue line, headed by Paul Moss, has paved the way.

Ohio State, which came along fast after losing to Michigan, is a heavy favorite to win from Illinois, but not until Zuppke's boys have made a good showing. Illinois played inspired ball against Chicago, and they will come to a peak again for this game. But Ohio State will be too strong for them.

Iowa is another team which has come along in great style despite a lack of material. Northwestern will let down enough Saturday after our game and the rigorous schedule they have played to make Saturday's game interesting, and Iowa will be steamed up to a fare-thee-well, but Northwestern should nose under the wire victorious by a close margin.

NOTRE DAME FAVORED

We still have three games to play—Navy, Army and Southern California. If we win one out of the three we'll be lucky. I know the dangers of picking your own team to win, but I think we'll take Navy. They gave us a tough battle last year, and they didn't look any better beforehand than they do now this year. They develop slowly and then open up with more stuff at the end of the season than they have shown all the first part of the year.

Kansas State should take Kansas, although the latter team has shown a great deal of improvement in the past few weeks. Nebraska will be much too powerful for Oklahoma and will win easily.

Jim Crowley will have his Michigan State team steamed up by enough to beat Detroit. Marquette should make a comeback and win from Washington and Jefferson.

West Liberty Asks Charity Game With Jackets

WHEELING, W. Va., Nov. 16.—(AP.)—West Liberty State Teachers are ready to play a football game with Waynesburg, or some other leading school, for charity.

Coach Harry Sweeney notified Wheeling relief organizations last night that the Teachers will play a post-season game with "any suitable opponent."

He suggested Waynesburg as one of the three unbeaten and untied teams in the East. Sweeney said his eleven would defray its own expenses.

The Teachers complete their 1932 season Saturday against Cedarville, while Waynesburg has a game with New River State Teachers.

THREE PANTHER REGULARS MAY BE BENCHED

By JESS CARVER

It's rather early for such an important decision, but Bobby Waddell, the football coach out at Carnegie Tech, has decided upon the eleven he'll start against Pitt's unbeaten Panthers in the nineteenth annual battle between the Plaid and Blue and Gold in the Pitt Stadium Sat'day afternoon.

The important part of Coach Robert's decision is seen in his choice for left halfback, a position in the Tech lineup that was left suddenly vacant this week when Midland Bill Spisak turned up, or rather, turned down, with a busted up shoulder. Tom Coulter, the Canuck track star, who's big enough that he looks like an all-American, but who never played American football until this fall, has been named to go in Midland Bill's place. What a spot for Mister Coulter!

TOM ON SPOT

Big Tom underwent his baptism of fire as a varsity performer against Xavier in Cincinnati last Saturday and on a run around end, he scored one of his team's touchdowns. Running the ends against Pitt, and being smacked by the powerful Pitt line, however, will be something different. Of all the ball players who'll be on the field Saturday, Coulter's job will be the toughest. Left halfbacks always are on the spot, for usually, the left half is the ace ball carrier, the star of the team. Grange was a left halfback and so was Welch, Schwartz, Flannagan, Cagle, Elder, Uansa, Davies, West, Kirkland and other famous ball toters of history.

Coulter may not be the only unfamiliar starting figure out there Saturday. Not by a long shot. There are sure to be some strange faces on the Pitt team. Paul Cuba, left tackle; Cheesio Onder, right guard, and Bobby Hogan, quarterback, are due for a session on the bench. Cuba has been showing the effects of the tough schedule, while Onder and Hogan have been disappointing. Hogan came through once, against Notre Dame, but otherwise, he's been just another guy in uniform.

SUBSTITUTES SET

In the places of this trio who have come under Coach Sutherland's fire, will be Meredith, at tackle, Ormiston at guard and Miller Mungas or Rocco Cutria at quarterback.

The practice sessions at both schools are remaining absolutely secret, Pitt's workouts always are, but Tech has clamped the lid on so tight that even the ball players have to identify themselves before they can get past the student patrols.

This afternoon, Coach Waddell plans to complete his work on the attack planned for use against the Panthers and to begin strengthening the defense.

The Tipoff

Not so many years ago, hardly long enough to age a cheese, a certain big university underwent about as sea-rony a football season as ever was. Boy, it was a pip. For obvious reasons, I'm going to omit real names in this yarn, but don't think for a minute it's all the hoorey.

The coach appeared on the scene (and by the way, it happened to be his last) early in the fall, called his aides together and announced that the lateral pass never had been called into wide enough usage, and that Blank University was going to have a lateral passing team that fall. Yes sir, dear old Blank was going to lateral pass 'em to death. So a chap who'd played and coached Rugby in Canada was secured to teach the Blank backfield men how to handle the ball and the practice proceeded.

After two or three weeks of drill, during which the line was almost completely forgotten, the coach figured his team was ready for scrimmage. One of the pet plays, the play in fact, which the coach counted on for a lot of scoring, was a triple lateral, with an end the last man to handle the ball. In case he should be boxed, he was to shout "I'm boxed," and another man was to take the ball.

The scrimmage opened and what a mess! All you could hear was ends yelling, "I'm boxed!" all over the field. A play would start on the 40-yard line and the ball toting team would wind up back on the 10, or worse. It became very evident that the lateral pass and Blank University were not going to mix.

So three days before the season opened, or thereabouts, the coach walked into the dressing quarters and announced that the lateral pass was out, that it was the bunk and that good old Blank would go back to the system it had used under him in seasons past.

Blank took a smacking around in the first game, and on the Monday following, our coach appeared on the practice field, rubbing his hands together and with a knowing smile, informed his assistants and the players that the Rockne system was THE system after all, and that Blank was going to ape Notre Dame.

About all the coach knew about the Rockne system was that the backfield men did some hopping around, so what do you think he had his backs doing? No foolin', this is a true story. He had 'em playing leap-frog. Absolutely, had 'em hopping over one another and hippety-hopping all over the field. Needless to say, the Notre Dame system at old Blank proved even more of a flop than did the lateral passing game, so, now but this—on the Monday after the first tilt in which the Notre Dame style of play was used . . . in went the Warner double-wing buck system.

That was too much for one of the assistants—the chap who told this story. Blank was booked to play an intersectional game the week following against a mid-Western team, which had a scoring record about as impressive as Blank's. This assistant went around betting 5 to 3 that he could pick the score of the game. He found lots of takers, and after having his wagers, announced the score would be 0-0. He said:

"I didn't think this other club could score, and I knew derned well we couldn't. We couldn't even score against our freshmen."

The game wound up exactly as my friend predicted—a scoreless tie. Blank gained 58 yards from scrimmage and the opposition gained 23. Over the week-end, the assistant coaches trembled in their boots for fear on Monday they'd have to start teaching the Culbertson system, which probably would have been as effective as any of the others.

SCHOOL STARS WITH SEALS

Now for your City League all-scholastic football teams for the season which ends with the intersectional playoff game between Westinghouse, champion of Section I, and Perry, champion of Section II, on Friday.

Julius Levin, editor of scholastic sports for the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph, has selected his teams, and will anounce them as a feature of the weekly radio program of the Trained Seals of the Sports Department over WCAE at 7 o'clock tonight.

Players selected on the first team, as well as Coach O. H. Burton, of Westinghouse, and Chester A. Smith, of Perry, have been invited to participate in the broadcast, and will receive membership cards in the Trained Seals of the Air Club.

Listen in on the announcement of the team and then read about it in tomorrow's Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph.

Gledhill Beaten In Tennis Tourney

SYYDNEY, Australia, Nov. 16.—(AP.)—Keith Gledhill, a member of the United States lawn tennis team now touring Australia, was eliminated in the second round of the New South Wales title play by Jack Crawford, famous Australian player, 7-5, 6-2, 3-6, 7-5.

Ellsworth Vines, Jr., American and Wimbledon champion, continued his unbeaten string by winning from Ray Dunlop, 8-6, 6-2, 6-8, 6-8, 6-4.

The Vines and Gledhill matches were postponed from yesterday because of rain. The other two members of the team, John Van Ryn and Wilmer Allison, won their second round matches yesterday.

Play also began in doubles with Vines and Gledhill defeating B. Moore and D. Thompson, 6-4, 6-3, 3-6, 4-6, 6-4, and Van Ryn and Allison winning from D. Crystal and J. Rodgers, 6-2, 6-2, 6-1.

Sun-Telegraph Seals Hosts At Pitt-Stanford Game

Ask Pop Warner.

Is there any football question you'd like to have answered by a nationally famous coach?

Ask Pop Warner, Stanford coach, and former Pitt mentor.

It may win you a pair of tickets for the Pitt-Stanford game at the Pitt Stadium, Saturday of next week.

Send in your questions, one in each letter, and Warner, upon his arrival with his squad to meet the Panthers, will sort through the list and pick out the 10 which appeal most to him and answer them during a radio broadcast over a national hookup through WJAS the night before the game. The fans who submit the lucky 10 queries will receive two tickets each to the grand gridiron finale.

Pop Warner

Announcement of the winners will be made by Harry Keck, sports editor, during the weekly radio program of the Trained Seals of the sports department of the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph over WCAE one week from tonight, allowing time for proper distribution of the tickets before the game.

The deadline for the receipt of entries in the contest is next Tuesday midnight. Address your queries to Pop Warner, in care of the sports department of the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph, and read tomorrow's issue for another important announcement in connection with the contest.

Giants Would Play Rams for Charity

NEW YORK, Nov. 16.—(AP.)—Tim Mara is ready to give Hiker Joy, assistant coach at Fordham, a chance to prove his assertion that college football is superior to the professional brand.

Mara, owner of the New York Giants, of the National Professional Football League, has offered to match his team against Fordham on any suitable date, the proceeds of the game to be turned over to the Mayor's fund for the relief of the unemployed.

Joy, who played pro-football for some years after his graduation from Holy Cross, was quoted as saying a good college eleven would "run those pros ragged."

FRENCH RIDERS WIN

BERLIN, Nov. 16.—(AP.)—The French team of Brocardo and Guimbrettiere last night won Paris' six-day bicycle race.

Marquette Stops Wash-Jeff Passes

MILWAUKEE, Nov. 16.—Despite the trickiness of the Washington and Jefferson foward passing attack, the Marquette University varsity was able to break up the overhead maneuvers of the Prexies as staged by the freshman eleven in a dummy scrimmage yesterday.

Coach Frank J. Murray had ordered a heavy workout against the W. & J. offense, but biting cold weather and a frozen field militated against his plans. Nevertheless, the frosh were able to give an apt demonstration of Coach Hank Day's pet offensive tactics and defensive assignments were handed out.

WASHINGTON WINNER

The Washington Trade School advanced a step nearer to the local soccer championship yesterday when it defeated Connelley at the new Leslie High School field, 2-0.

STRUTT BACK IN UNIFORM

Several new developments were apparent yesterday as the Dukes continued preparations for the game with Catholic University in Washington, D. C., Friday night. Art Strutt, stellar sophomore fullback, was again in uniform and was permitted a light workout; Dick Nussbaum captured the right halfback berth made vacant by the Ben Pawlina injury and two other shifts were completed.

Steve Marin, former halfback, will now fill the fullback post in the second string backfield. George Chacko will take over Marin's duties at right halfback. In the first string backfield, it is a toss-up whether Al DeLuca, who has the benefit of experience, or Jim McDonald, the fastest man on the squad, will get the left halfback assignment.

Larry Sullivan again is slated to start the game at quarter, although Joe Cutrona has shown sufficient improvement to gain that distinction if need be. Silvio Zaninelli remains the first-string fullback. No line changes were in order.

Special defensive maneuvers have been ordered for Dutch Bergman's Cardinals. The Dukes intend to take no chances with their Washington opponents and would like revenge for the 20-to-12 defeat of last year.

Tomorrow morning the Duquesne party will entrain for the national capital.

P. I. A. A. to Hold Examinations Here

With C. Lawrence Walsh in charge, football and basketball officials desiring certificates as P. I. A. A. officials will take examinations here Saturday morning. The session will get under way at 10 a. m.

The examinations will be given in the North School, Eighth avenue and Duquesne way.

KANSAS BOXERS WIN

KANSAS CITY, Nov. 16.—(AP.)—Kansas City amateur boxers won all seven matches from an Indianapolis team in an inter-city show here last night.

SCHOOL ELEVENS TO RESUME OLD RIVALRIES THIS WEEK

CITY LEAGUE TITLE GAME ON FRIDAY

By JULIUS LEVIN

Football battles that carry with them unusual sectional appeal feature the program offered the followers of the scholastic sport in Western Pennsylvania.

While many of the schools will remain idle this weekend in order to complete their seasons on Thanksgiving Day, followers of the high school elevens will have an opportunity to see several ancient gridiron rivalries resumed.

CITY TITLE AT STAKE

The championship of the City League will be settled Friday afternoon when Westinghouse and Perry clash for the right to ascend the throne vacated by South Hills. The game will be played on the Peabody Field.

C. Lawrence Walsh, supervisor of athletics in the city schools, today announced the officials for the game. George McLaren will referee, Henry Blum will serve as umpire and W. D. McClure as linesman.

Westinghouse is representing Section I while Perry is the standard-bearer of Section II. Should Westinghouse win the decision over the North Siders, the Silver Lakers will have set a new record for city football championships with a string of five.

Perry High is making its first bid for the city crown. Both teams have been working hard for the game and unless something unforeseen occurs in practice, the rival elevens will take the field with every regular available for service.

AVALON AT BELLEVUE

Bellevue and Avalon, neighboring rivals, renew a fued of long standing at Bellevue. Regardless of the number of games lost during the season, the two teams usually display their best form when opposed to each other.

Out at the Frazier street grounds in Oakland, the Catholic high school championship of the Greater Pittsburgh district will be settled Friday afternoon when Central Catholic High clashes with St. Justin's. Both teams have enjoyed successful seasons.

The program arranged for Saturday likewise shows a flock of battles between old rivals. McKees Rocks and Stowe Township renew grid relations at Stowe Township in a game that promises to prove a thriller from start to finish. Neither team has enjoyed much success so far, but this does not detract from the interest the valley fans are showing in the contest.

MUNHALL AT HOMESTEAD

There is no love lost between Homestead and Munhall and these staunch rivals clash Saturday afternoon on the Homestead Field. Homestead has a better record than Munhall, but the latter team is all set to take a fall out of Bill Campbell's Blue and Gold combine. This game is the feature attraction on the schedule of both teams.

Ambridge High, leader in the race for class A championship, winds up its campaign by opposing Ellwood City at Ambridge Saturday afternoon. A victory for Ambridge will give the Bridgers their eighth straight class A triumph.

Two Class AA Conference battles also are listed for disposal Saturday, Clairton invading New Kensington, while Washington is the attraction at Wilkinsburg.

COMMITTEE TO MEET

The football championships of the W. P. I. A. A. L. will be decided at a meeting of the football committee, headed by John G. Hulton, superintendent of Latrobe schools, to be held in the Fort Pitt Hotel a week from Saturday. There is a possibility of post-season games being ordered in all three classes.

New Castle and Jeannette are undefeated and untied in class AA, Ambridge and Beaver Falls in class A and Freedom, Glassport and Springdale in class B.

YALE DRILLS ON PASSES

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Nov. 16.—(AP.)—Yale spent most of its practice period yesterday drilling on passes and Coach Mal Stevens went into the backfield to demonstrate how to throw them. The Elis also went through a defensive session against Harvard plays.

Andy Callan, slightly injured in the Princeton game, replaced Joe Crowley at right halfback.

Eastern Briefs

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., Nov. 16.—(AP.)—Speed was strongly emphasized in Harvard's preparations for the Yale game as the Crimson went through a long session yesterday divided between attack and defense. Every member of the squad was in uniform, but Coach Eddie Casey did not take chances of injuries by ordering contact work.

PROVIDENCE, R. I., Nov. 16.—(AP.)—A light drill, mostly given over to signal practice, marked the start of Brown's preparations yesterday for the Colgate game.

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 16.—(AP.)—Pennsylvania went back to fundamentals yesterday with the start of practice for the Cornell game. The tackling dummy and charging machines were used for most of the drill.

NEW YORK, Nov. 16.—(AP.)—Fordham held a lively defensive session against Oregon State plays put on by the freshmen. The Rams had no trouble stopping the running attack but failed to diagnose several passes.

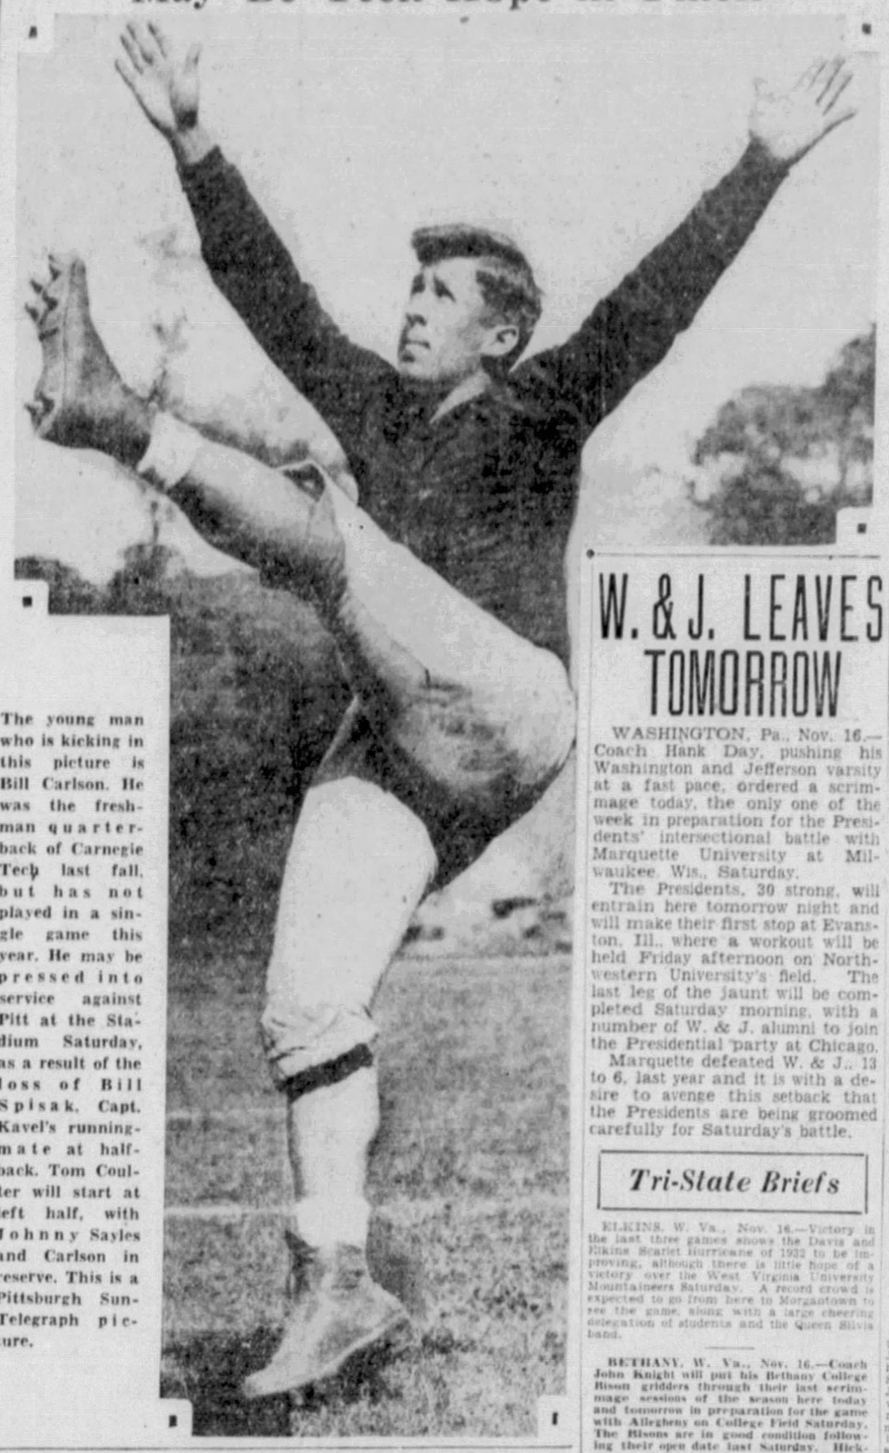
FRANK WALSH WEDS

CHICAGO, Nov. 16.—(AP.)—The marriage of Miss Mabel Donaldson, of New York, to Frank Walsh, Chicago professional golfer and runner-up to Olin Dutra in the 1932 P. G. A. championship tournament, became known today.

GRIMES UNDER KNIFE

ST. LOUIS, Nov. 16.—(AP.)—Burleigh Grimes, the Cubs' spit-baller, will undergo an operation here today for removal of his appendix. Dr. Robert F. Hyland, the Cardinal club physician, will perform the operation.

May Be Tech Hope in Pinch



The young man who is kicking in this picture is Bill Carlson. He was the freshman quarterback of Carnegie Tech last fall, but has not played in a single game this year. He may be pressed into service against Pitt at the Stadium Saturday, as a result of the loss of Bill Spisak, Capt. Kavel's running-mate at halfback. Tom Coulter will start at left half, with Johnny Sayles and Carlson in reserve. This is a Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph picture.

SPORT VIGNETTES

If you think the football rules are complicated for the fans, how about the players and coaches? . . . When Varner, of Ohio State, kicked off and ran down the field and recovered the ball in the end zone for a touchdown against Penn at Columbus last Saturday, the Penn players gave the officials an argument on the ruling, and, after the game, both Penn and Ohio State players admitted they didn't know the rule that applied to the play, which is that everybody is onside on the kickoff and it is a free ball, which may be recovered by either side . . . Coach Harvey Harman, of Penn, explained the happening by saying that both of his backs who were on the ball called it and stood around doing an Alphonse and Gaston act until Varner pounced upon the oval . . . The same play occurred in a recent high school game here . . . Dr. J. W. Wilce, former coach of Ohio State, said it was the first time he ever had seen a player kick off and retrieve the ball for a touchdown in a college game, and he's been around for a long time.

Penn's utter collapse against the Buckeyes, following its good game against Pitt at Philadelphia, the week before, was pitiful. . . . One of the Philadelphia scribes wrote the team was asleep throughout the afternoon, whereas there never was a more wide awake eleven than the Quakers who came close to tying the Panthers in a free-scoring batile. . . . Penn had a net loss of 12 yards to show for its rushing game against Ohio State and returned six punts for a total of only three yards. . . . Can it be that Pitt's attack of sleeping sickness when it played Penn was infectious and the Quakers came up with a bad case of it?

Speaking of the depression and retrenchment, they appear to have affected even the good old game of golf. . . They're about to elect a gent named Cutting president of the U. S. G. A. . . . Ernie Maurer, who recently got a decision over our Tony Marino in Toronto, hails from Detroit and is the flyweight champion of Michigan. . . . He has not been beaten, his record showing 27 victories and three draws. . . . Lew Raymond, matchmaker at the Arena, has sold himself on the idea that Jack King will be the first man to defeat Ted Yarosz, in their bout at his club, Friday night.

When Lafayette and Lehigh meet on the gridiron at Easton, Pa., next Saturday, it will mark their sixty-sixth clash, the first having been staged in 1884, making this one of the oldest football rivalries on record . . . Lafayette leads with 36 victories to 24 and five ties, and since 1918 Lehigh has won only one game—that of 1929, when the score was 13-12 . . . Don't think a lot of football fans from the Pittsburgh district won't take in that Notre Dame-Navy spectacle in Cleveland's beautiful new Stadium, Saturday . . . They're looking for a crowd of 80,000 . . . The game will bring about a duel between two former pupils of the late Knute Rockne, Hunk Anderson, present Irish mentor, and Rip Miller, tutor of the Middies.

Harvard vs. Yale, at the Yale Bowl, Saturday . . . Harvard always goes better against Yale in the Bowl than it does on its own field . . . Since Percy Haughton took over the Crimson coaching reins in 1908, Harvard has won seven games and tied one out of 11 at New Haven, and failed to score only once, while, at Cambridge, Harvard has won only four times and has been held to two scoreless ties in 11 games, while it has been held scoreless six times . . . Kick that around, as the coach said of the football.

Stanford, which plays Pitt in the closing game of the season here, Saturday of next week, paid the penalty for three successive defeats when it played to only 2,500 persons as it defeated the California Aggies, 39-0, last Saturday . . . However, next Saturday, it will play California before a capacity crowd of almost 80,000 at Berkeley.—HARRY KECK.

Sharkey Boycott Plot Revealed

NEW YORK, Nov. 16.—(INS.)—Efforts to boycott Jack Sharkey, world heavyweight champion, were seen here today, following announcement that Max Schmeling, former champion, would meet Max Baer, of California, in 1933.

The Schmeling-Baer bout was announced in Paris by Joe Jacobs, manager of Schmeling, and at the same time Madison Square Garden promoters here said Baer had declined to meet Primo Carnera, giant Italian, in New York, despite the fact the winner was promised a fight against Sharkey in June of next year.

Jimmy Johnston, of the Garden, charged Jacobs was working hand in glove with Baer's managers in an effort to extract a huge purse from the Garden for a fight against Sharkey.

Jacobs sent word that the Schmeling-Jacobs fight was scheduled for New York, but if negotiations for it fell through he had offers for the meeting of the German and the Californian in Florida, Los Angeles and Chicago.

ALVIS PREDICTS DEFEAT FOR YAROSZ

TONIGHT'S FIGHTS

Maxie Rosenbloom vs. John Henry Lewis (non-title), 10 rounds, San Francisco.

Ernie Maurer vs. Dario Moreno, 10 rounds, Detroit.

By HARRY KECK,
Sports Editor

Just a letter from Ray Alvis, who is by way of being manager of Jack King, the Little Rock welterweight, who boxes Ted Yarosz at the Arena, Friday night. He writes:

"Hold everything. Will arrive Thursday with Jack King and leave Saturday with the scalp of Ted Yarosz dangling from the belt of this fellow King. King, much as it may pain the folks of Pittsburgh to know it, and not Yarosz, will be the next welterweight champion. Jackie Fields will hold on to the title for awhile yet, and, when he gets ready to chuck it, Mr. King will be ready to pick it up on the first bounce.

(Alvis also manages Fields, in conjunction with a fellow named Jack Kearns.)

FORECASTS VICTORY

"How many fights has this Yarosz fellow had without suffering a defeat? Oh, well, let it go. It doesn't matter, or it won't after Friday night. If his manager ever made a chump match this is it. He should have known better after having seen King whip Billy Holt, Tiger Joe Randall and Jimmy Belmont, three good fighters, in a row in your town. Chalk it up. Get down a bet for yourself. Yarosz' first defeat, like prosperity, is just around the corner, which will be turned Friday night."

It seems Mr. Alvis is a bit lacking in confidence. What he ought to do is to hire himself a press agent to ballyhoo his fighters. He'll never get any attention for them this way.

W. & J. LEAVES TOMORROW

WASHINGTON, Pa., Nov. 16.—Coach Hank Day, pushing his Washington and Jefferson varsity at a fast pace, ordered a scrimmage today, the only one of the week in preparation for the Presidents' intersectional battle with Marquette University at Milwaukee, Wis., Saturday.

The Presidents, 30 strong, will entrain here tomorrow night and will make their first stop at Evanston, Ill., where a workout will be held Friday afternoon on Northwestern University's field. The last leg of the jaunt will be completed Saturday morning, with a number of W. & J. alumni to join the Presidential party at Chicago.

Marquette defeated W. & J., 13 to 6, last year and it is with a desire to avenge this setback that the Presidents are being groomed carefully for Saturday's battle.

Tri-State Briefs

ELKINS, W. Va., Nov. 16.—Victory in the last three games shows the Davis and Elkins Scarlet Hurricane of 1932 to be improving, although there is little hope of a victory over the West Virginia University Mountaineers Saturday. A record crowd is expected to go from here to Morgantown to see the game, along with a large cheering delegation of students and the Queen Silvia band.

BETHANY, W. Va., Nov. 16.—Coach John Knight will put his Bethany College Bison gridders through their last scrimmage sessions of the season here today and tomorrow in preparation for the game with Allegheny on College Field Saturday. The Bisons are in good condition following their open date last Saturday. Hickman and Greskovich, veteran guard and fullback, respectively, are the only men now on the injured list.

NEW WILMINGTON, Pa., Nov. 16.—Coach John Laether's Westminster College football team ends its long 10-game season Saturday at Beaver Falls, meeting Howard Harpster's great Geneva College team. The Titans will be the underdogs in the game with the Covenanters, but will present the best offense and the best defense of Titan teams in recent years.

GROVE CITY, Pa., Nov. 16.—When Coach Bob Thorn issued the call for varsity basketball practice 25 aspirants for the Grove City floor team reported for the first drill. Thorn gave the boys a long workout, and at the close had a fair knowledge of the first-year prospects. Several freshmen are candidates for the center position, left vacant when Bill Hamilton did not return to school this fall.

Fight Results

At Arena, North Side—Joey Zelano won by a technical knockout over Paul Monar, 3 rounds; Dominick Mancini knocked out Young Conrad, 3 rounds; Petey Jahn defeated Jackie Huffner, 4 rounds; Steve Senich knocked out Tommy Thompson, 3 rounds; Frankie Portland won by a technical knockout over Mickey McCune, first round; Billy Criggan won by a technical knockout over Joey Reynolds, 3 rounds; George Schier defeated Johnny Brusky, 4 rounds; Young Bissell defeated Harry Kline, 4 rounds; Pep O'Brien defeated Swede Anderson, 4 rounds; Hal Finney defeated Glenn Morgan, 4 rounds; Billy Nichy defeated Jimmy Smith, 4 rounds; Billy Clair knocked out George Tucker, first round; Red Bruce defeated Frank Kladdick, 4 rounds.

At Stevens Point, Wis.—Charley Crocker defeated Joey Thomas, 8 rounds.

At Clinton, Ia.—Young Stanley knocked out Kid Panko, 4 rounds; Bill Connell knocked out Jerry Kucera, 6 rounds.

At Enid, Okla.—Young McCook knocked out Terry Riley, 2 rounds.

At Los Angeles—Speedy Dado defeated Baby Face Casanova, 10 rounds.

At Milwaukee—Johnny Datto knocked out Frankie Check, 4 rounds.

At New York—Pete Sanstol won by technical knockout over Sergio Radam, 4 rounds; George Fletcher defeated Tony Cirola, 10 rounds; Davey Devlin and Joe Comforti drew, 6 rounds.

WILDCATS BOOK D.-E.

MANHATTAN, Kan., Nov. 16.—(AP.)—Kansas State College officials announced last night that an intersectional basketball game has been scheduled here for December 15, between the Wildcats and Davis and Elkins College of Elkins, W. Va.

FELDERS AT Y. M. H. A.

The Y. M. H. A. will open its basketball season on the Y. M. H. A. floor tomorrow when it meets the Jeannette Felders. The Y. Varsity B. team will meet Holy Trinity in the preliminary.

Between Rounds

Max Elling boxes General Burr, of Aliquippa, in the first bout at the Arena, Friday night, but he'll be damned if he'll fight the General's whole army. Fritzie Zivic and Jerry Clements are in the second bout and Red Bush and Carl Montebano in the semi-final.

Figure out this one on the back of your tax receipts: Davy Grove had Pee Wee Jarrell on the floor twice, the bell saving him, in their semi-final bout at Motor Square Garden several weeks ago, marking Jarrell's first appearance here. Grove wanted to fight Ted Yarosz here, but was ruled out on the ground that he didn't measure up, yet Jarrell, after one showing in a preliminary, comes back in a wilding against Eddie (Kid) Wolfe, who held Yarosz to a draw and has the satisfaction of having had Yarosz turn him down for a third meeting. Maybe it's all right, but it sounds a bit of all wrong, Wellington, old thing. Either Grove should have got that Yarosz match, or Jarrell doesn't rate the Wolfe feature.

Barney Ross boxes Johnny Farr in Milwaukee, November 25. Tuffy Griffiths is in with John Schwake in St. Louis, November 28. Frankie Battaglia and Georgie Nichols are slated to battle in the Chicago Stadium, November 30.

Glen Morgan, welterweight, formerly of Norfolk, Va., is Irish Kane's newest local boxer.

Bill Simendinger is going to Cleveland over the week-end to line up battles for his hiffers, who include Patsy Hennigan, Don Asto, Frank Novak, Tiger Joe Randall and Eddie Hebner. Hebner is temporarily on the sidelines due to a bad ankle.

Vince Dundee has been nursing a sprained back, which accounts for the fact that he has not been boxing recently. He is almost ready to go again.

Jack Portney, of Baltimore, would like to get apes at our Joe Marcus, Johnny Datto, Charley Baxter, Battling Gizzy and any other lightweights they can dig up for him. He holds wins over Steve Halaiko and Eddie Cool, as well as over Louis (Kid) Kaplan, the former feather-weight champion.

Ray Winbus has been signed to box Max Elling in the second bout and Lloyd Clemepts to meet Jack Collins in the opener at Motor Square Garden Monday night.

Importance of Scouting Stressed by Harpster

By Howard Harpster

Geneva College Coach; All-America Quarterback at Carnegie Tech, 1928.

In this age of highly developed football, there is one phase of the game which is of great importance to all teams, yet it comes up for discussion only on rare occasions. I refer to the practice of sending out scouts to watch future opponents play, so as to get their formations and style of attack. This information is of invaluable assistance to a coach in working out a proper defense.

If the scouts come back and volunteer information that the next opponent has a fine running attack, but doesn't have any one who can throw a forward pass, the defense set will be one which has been worked out to concentrate on stopping a running game. On the other hand, if a team's passing game is so well developed that it depends largely on passes, then the defense will be set to watch for a passing game rather than a running type of offense.

H. Harpster

Without scouting there is little doubt that the games each Saturday would produce much larger scores than they do. If each team entered the game knowing little or nothing about its opponent's type and style of offense it would not be set for any certain type of play, with the result that before the defense could accustom itself to the task at hand, the offensive team would be able to put over quite a few surprise plays.

RECALLS N. Y. U. GAME

As it is today, with the highly specialized scouting systems, whereby a team will send out four or five scouts to watch a certain opponent, with each scout having a certain assignment to watch, the defensive team is ready for any play the offensive players attempt, for their scouts have drilled them in the rival team's method of attack.

The best piece of scouting work, with which I ever came in contact, was that done by New York University in 1926, when its scouts got the Carnegie Tech plays. The New York team had three scouts watching Tech in each of its first five games, with the result that the scouts knew every play we attempted and likely figured out a few that we might attempt later on in the season.

These plays were given to their freshman team two weeks before the game and the freshman players had the names and numbers of each of the Tech players stamped upon the front of their jerseys, so that, no matter what formation we used, each of our players could be picked out. The New York varsity scrimmaged against this Freshman Carnegie Tech team for two weeks and by game time knew exactly what to expect from each formation.

VIOLETS CALL PLAYS

On the opening kickoff, the writer returned the ball and was tackled by the late Al Lassman. While lying on the ground, Lassman looked up and said:

"Hello, Harp, how are you?"

And so it was with everyone on our team. The New York players not only could tell who was in certain positions on various formations, but they even knew the nicknames of our players as well. Their center would look over at Mamby and say:

"Hi, Bill!"

Someone else would call out:

"Watch Letz."

Then we would hear:

"This is the end-around, watch Mef, over there."

Our team was very much upset, for, when we would call a certain signal, the New York boys would guess the play and call it out. We made very little progress in an offensive way, and lost the game, 6 to 0, on two field goals by Ken Strong.

GOPHERS CUT GRID PRICES

MINNEAPOLIS, Nov. 16.—(AP.)—Quarterback Jerry Griffen and Center Roy, of Minnesota's gridders yesterday missed practice for the second straight day, being confined in the student infirmary. Griffin is under observation because of slight symptoms of appendicitis and Oen is recovering from a bruised groin. Francis Lund, found to be suffering a slight rib fracture, probably will play against Michigan nevertheless, Coach Bierman said.

The university cut Big Ten football game ticket prices for the first time since its stadium was built in 1924. Five thousand seats in the curved end will be placed at $1.65, including tax. Ordinarily the seats would command $2.75, as in other parts of the stadium.

BEAR, CARDINAL FRAY SELLOUT

SAN FRANCISCO, Nov. 16.—(AP.)—With nothing more at stake than the settlement of an annual rivalry, Stanford and California will meet at Berkeley Saturday in a football game that will draw the largest crowd, the most money and will cost the highest price for tickets of any contest played thus far this season.

The crowd of 79,403 fans, which is all that Memorial Stadium holds, will pay approximately $389,000 to watch the thirty-eighth annual encounter. Taxable tickets will net the government around $35,400.

The game, played alternately at Stanford and California, has been a sell-out since 1923. At Stanford it draws more customers because the stadium there seats 88,000.

Besides the seats in the enclosure, space will be sold on Tightwad Hill, overlooking the stadium, and the Saturday mecca of small boys and others not holding heavily of the coin of the realm. This space will cost 40 cents per foothold, so the government will not profit thereby.

Because of this hill, probably the largest crowd ever to watch a football contest turned out to watch this "big game" in 1928. More than 20,000 were counted on the hill and with nearly 80,000 in the stadium resulted in a total throng of better than 100,000 fans.

Jordan Withdraws From Cue Tourney

CHICAGO, Nov. 16.—(AP.)—Charles Jordan, of Holl, wood, Cal., winner of the 1932 Western sectional pocket billiard title, has been forced to withdraw from play in the world's championship tournament at New York next month because of business reasons.

His place will be taken by James F. Mills, San Jose, Cal., second place winner in the Western sectional championship.

ETNA-RANGER GRID BATTLE POSTPONED

By TOM BIRKS

The Lightweight Conference football game between the Rox Rangers and Etna Sycamores, scheduled tonight at Greenlee Field, was postponed this afternoon because of rain. The contest will be played at Greenlee Field tomorrow night.

Sunday two games will be played in the West Penn Conference. The East Liberty Papales will travel to Olympia Park, McKeesport, with an idea of tying up second place in the league standing. The J. P. Rooneys will endeavor to bring their greatest season to a close by beating the Bellaire Eagles at Greenlee Field.

Pittsburgh fans will like this Bellaire team. It is the classiest looking outfit that has graced the Conference since its inception.

Ducky Holmes, former West Liberty star, is the featured member of the backfield. He is a real ball carrier. At McKeesport he was hurt in the first play of the game, so local sandlot followers had little chance to see him in action.

Charley Edwards, former Pitt quarterback, and Charley Tully, star lineman with the Panthers two seasons ago, will be here with the Eagles, and will be out to avenge the defeat handed them by the Rooneys two weeks ago in Bellaire.

CURRY TO TEST SWITCHMEN

Soccer has another banner attraction listed at South Park for Sunday when the Union Switch and Signal eleven, Central League champion and last season finalist in the West Penn Cup competition, meets Curry in the first round of the National Amateur Cup tourney. While these outfits are playing at the park, De Marco and McDonald, two strong Panhandle League clubs, are booked to clash at McDonald.

With a powerful punch, it is quite possible that Curry will extend the Central League champion. A number of the players that carried the Red and White to the league championship last year have left the team, among these being Angus McNair, now doing his stuff with the Akron Goodyears.

Curry surprised the fans by eliminating the Shannon Zoneys from the National Challenge Cup competition last Sunday. When Johnny Jaap signed with the Zoney team it was figured that the former American Professional League star would give the Shannoites the necessary edge.

Jaap did his part, but the other members of the forward line could not take advantage of the openings and Curry won.

TOM ARMOUR, WATROUS WIN

PINEHURST, N. C., Nov. 16.—(AP.)—Al Watrous and Tommy Armour yesterday led 53 other professional best ball teams down the home stretch to capture first money in a preliminary to the thirteenth annual mid-South open tournament. They carded 68-63—131 for the 36 holes.

Approximately 120 golfers are expected to tee off for the 36-hole open tournament today.

The closest to Watrous and Armour, Mike Turnesa and Tony Manero, of Elmsford, N. Y., were three strokes behind with 68-66—134.

On the heels of second money winners came three teams with 135. One was composed of Herman Barron, Port Chester, N. Y., and Tom Creavy, Albany; one of Tom Kerrigan, Mt. Vernon, N. Y., and Johnny Farrell, Mamaroneck, N. Y., and the other of Clarence Owen, Greenville, S. C., and Henry Picard, Charleston, S. C.

Ayton Leaves U. S. For Scotland Home

CHICAGO, Nov. 16.—(AP.)—Laurie Ayton, for 13 years golf professional at the Evanston Golf Club, today was on his way home to native St. Andrews, Scotland.

Ayton, with his wife, daughter and son, Laurie, Jr., will sail for Scotland Friday. He gave up his place at Evanston, to take charge of property affairs at St. Andrews, following the death of his father. Laurie, Jr., is a former Illinois junior golf champion.

Pawlina, of Dukes, Undergoes Operation

An operation was performed on the broken leg of Ben Pawlina, Duquesne University halfback, in Mercy Hospital this morning, and he was reported resting comfortably. He probably will remain in the hospital for at least six weeks.

The leg was broken during the game with South Dakota State at Forbes Field on Armistic Day.

BROWN ON MEND

PARIS, Nov. 16.—(AP.)—Panama Al Brown, bantamweight champion who was taken to a hospital here Monday night with influenza following his second round knockout of Spider Pladner, today was reported recovering and probably will leave the hospital Thursday. Brown said he plans to go to Panama for the Christmas holidays, his first return there in four years.

GRIDIRON COVERED

CLEVELAND, Nov. 16.—(AP.)—A huge tarpaulin, hauled in two trucks, arrived here yesterday from the Notre Dame field house at South Bend, Ind., and was immediately placed on the playing field of Cleveland Stadium to insure dry footing for the Notre Dame Navy football game next Saturday.

ENGLAND, WALES TIE

CARDIFF, Wales, Nov. 16.—(AP.)—England and Wales today played to a scoreless tie today in their annual soccer match. Neither has been defeated in international competition this year.

Schmidt's Career Full Of Color, Fight

By CHARLES J. DOYLE

Baseball and its Boswells would be lax in their duties were they to fail to hold a "wake" over Charley Schmidt, former Detroit catcher and brother of Walter Schmidt, longtime brilliant Pirate maskman, who died Monday. Pittsburgh lovers of the game have more than a passing interest in the departed athlete, inasmuch as Charley was Hughey Jennings' mainstay behind the bat when the Tigers collided with the Buccos in the world series of 1909.

Schmidt, you might say, was the John L. Sullivan of baseball. John L., as you all know, took on all comers and won all his battles. Charley Schmidt did not choose his opponents and he was open for all engagements on or off the stage. Moreover, if you can rely on those who were close to him, "Schmitty" never lost a bout. As the fellow said, he ad libbed the rules as he went along.

FOUGHT JIM FLYNN

Charley once carried his fight skill into the roped arena; he fought Fireman Jim Flynn, but apparently that end of the game did not hold much interest for him; it is very likely that the rules cramped his style.

This chronicle of the colorful diamond character will not attempt to relate all of the high spots of his rainbow-like career, as to do this the space alloted to a large pamphlet or book would be required. Only a few of the classic performances will be told.

To get a bona fide union label on the lithographs concerning "Schmitty" it is best to start with one of his first controversies. The tale, the locale of which was the mining district of Arkansas, was told me by Brother Walter.

Charley and his kid brother followed the exacting coal mining pursuits near their home town of Coal Hill, Ark., when they were boys. Coal Hill had its strikes, and during some labor trouble, Charley and Walter came out of the pits with the union men. Both went to other union fields for employment. Meantime, non-union workers were imported in their home and trouble arose.

The toughest egg among the strikebreakers had the local boys all bluffed, but Schmitty was due home over the weekend and they figured he would take care of the bully. The latter had heard of Charles and had said he would make short work of the town hero.

CURED TOUGH GUY

Schmitty arrived on schedule and soon had the slant on the situation. He immediately set out to find Mr. Tough Guy. The latter was whittling with a jackknife at the station when Charley accosted and challenged him. Apparently the surprised bully was scared by the appearance of the active giant and he offered some sort of an alibi. But Schmidt wanted action and he demanded:

"Never mind the alibi. Let's go. I'll give you that knife for an edge!"

And the other hard-boiled egg, so the story goes, took the next rattler out of town.

Charley's taming of Ty Cobb has been told many times and doubtless has been distorted. Ty was a flaming youth from the South when he and the Arkansas coal miner met on the Tiger team. Charley was of a laughing nature and he liked to josh the Georgian. Brother Walter states that Ty challenged Charley. The challenge was accepted and Ty finished second. The next day he issued another defi and once more he was spanked down. Tyrus still thought he had a chance to lick Schmitty and he asked for a third bout. He was obliged; licked for the third time, and was asked by Charley to become the latter's roommate. Ty accepted.

Charley once acquired a cub bear. As the cub grew, the pilot fooled around with it at the ball park. He would wrestle it much to the delight of the fans and players. But in time the cub became a bit mean and dangerous. Eventually, Schmidt was forced to send it away.

The bear was crated and carted to the freight station for shipment. In some manner it broke out of its prison and caused a panic in the neighborhood. Some thoughtful person notified Schmitty, who rushed from his home to the scene. The bear, when it saw Chas., rushed back into its cage.

Schmidt was a coach for the Dodgers in recent years. One day he stopped at an out-of-town news stand on Broadway. A sign over the stand invited you to purchase a paper from your home town. Charley asked for a Coal Hill, Ark., sheet and received a sarcastic reply for his pains. Angered he pointed to the sign. The fresh dealer retored:

"We can't get a paper for every yokel in the United States."

Less than a minute later, according to Dazzy Vance, who told the tale, the wise city feller was looking at the wreck of what had been a fine newsstand. Schmitty had tossed it into the subway.

Glazer Is Named Dartmouth Leader

HANOVER, N. H., Nov. 16.—(INS.)—Phillip Glazer, massive right tackle from Memphis, Tenn., will captain the 1933 Dartmouth football team. Glazer was named to succeed Capt. Bill Hoffman, of Lockhaven, Pa., who played beside him at right guard for two seasons.

He is the fifth consecutive lineman to captain the Green eleven, Dick Black, the veteran fullback in 1928, being the last backfield leader.

STAKE RACES DROPPED

NEW YORK, Nov. 16.—(INS.)—Decision to abandon five stake races, including the Keene Memorial, as part of a curtailment program for 1933, was announced today by the Belmont Park race track. In addition to the Keene, the stakes dropped were the Spindrift, Speed, Maturity and Debut.

M'COOK VICTOR

ENID, Okla., Nov. 16.—(AP.)—Dude McCook, Enid bantam, knocked out Terry Riley, of Omaha, Neb., in the second round of a scheduled 10-round bout here last night.

W. & J. RETURNS TO PANTHER SCHEDULE

Pitt and Washington and Jefferson will resume a football feud of 30 years' standing on September 30, 1933, at the Pitt Stadium. The date of the game, which will be the first on Pitt's 1933 card and for which negotiations have been under way for several months, was agreed upon today by the athletic officials of both schools.

It will be the first time since 1929 the two old rivals have met on the gridiron. There was to have been a game in 1930, but W. & J. authorities released Pitt from this date in order that it might take advantage of an opportunity to meet Ohio State at Columbus.

RELATIONS CORDIAL

Despite the fact that alumni of both schools were urging the return of Washington and Jefferson to the Pitt schedule, it was impossible to agree upon a date for either 1931 or 1932. Because of this interest, however, negotiations were continued, finally resulting in the scheduling of next year's game.

The feeling between the two schools always has been most ardent, and at no time during the discussions concerning the game has there been any disagreement except over the date.

The signing of Washington and Jefferson as the opening opponent is in line with Pitt's policy of discontinuing all so-called minor games from its schedule.

THIRTY-FIRST CLASH

In 30 games between the football teams of the two institutions, Pitt has won 15 and lost 13 games, and two have ended in scoreless ties.

The 1933 Pitt schedule:

September 30—Washington and Jefferson at the Pitt Stadium.
October 7—West Virginia at Morgantown.
October 14—Navy at the Pitt Stadium.
October 21—Minnesota at Minneapolis.
October 29—Notre Dame at South Bend.
November 4—Nebraska at the Pitt Stadium.
November 11—Duquesne at the Pitt Stadium.
November 18—To be filled.
November 25—(Permanently open).
November 30—Carnegie Tech at the Pitt Stadium (Thanksgiving).

SIX KNOCKOUTS MARK SHOW

Six of the 13 pro boxing bouts staged at the Arena on the North Side last night, featuring amateurs making their professional debuts and novice pros, wound up in knockouts. Two of them were clean-cut affairs. All bouts were scheduled for four rounds.

Billy Clair, 160-pounder, of Pittsburgh, stopped George Tucker, of Wilkinsburg, in the first round in one of the two matches to end in the initial stanza. In the other, Frankie Portland, of Ambridge, weighing 135 pounds, won by a technical knockout over Mickey McCune in the first frame.

Paul Monar, 112, of Homestead, lost on a technical knockout to Joey Zelano, of Emerson, Pa., in the third round; Dominick Mancini, 126, of Pittsburgh, stopped Young Conrad, of Duquesne, in the third round; Steve Senich, 126, of Homestead, knocked out Tommy Thompson, of Conneaut Lake, in the third round, and Billy Criggan, 135, won by a technical knockout over Joey Reynolds, in the third round.

The results of the other bouts follow:

126-pound class—Petey Jahn, Pittsburgh, defeated Jackie Ruffner, New Kensington.

135-pound class—George Schlee, North Side, defeated Johnny Trusky, Braddock; Young Bordell, New Kensington, defeated Harry Fine, Pittsburgh; Pep O'Brien, New Kensington, defeated Swede Anderson, Homewood.

147-pound class—Hal Finney, Pittsburgh, defeated Glenn Morgan, Pittsburgh.

160-pound class—Billy Nichy, North Side, defeated Jimmy Smith; Red Bruce, Pittsburgh, defeated Frank Kladdick, McKees Rocks.

Miss Fiers' Horse Victor in Show

KANSAS CITY, Nov. 16.—(AP.)—The old grey mare is passe where owners of blooded horses gather, but at the American royal horse show today many of them are wondering if Sweetheart On Parade is what she used to be.

Sweetheart On Parade is a grey mare of seven summers and she is defending the championship of five-gaited saddle horses, which she won last year. She is owned by Mrs. W. P. Roth, Redwood City, Cal., and in the arena tonight will perform in a field of 16 rivals for top honors in the mare division or the semi-final event leading to the grand championship.

Should Mrs. Roth's entry repeat her 1931 performance, she will find among her rivals for the $4,000 stake, King Genius, a sorrel stallion owned by Miss Mary Gwyn Fiers, of Oklahoma City. King Genius ranked next to Sweetheart On Parade a year ago, and last night won the stallion division stake.

FORMER GRIDDER DEAD

ROCHELLE, Ill., Nov. 16.—(AP.)—T. F. Healey, attorney, who was a member of the Notre Dame football team in 1905 and 1906, died yesterday after a brief illness.

U.S. Economy Broadcast On WCAE

An address by Dr. Nicholas Murray Butler, president of Columbia University, before the National Economy League in New York tonight, is scheduled to be broadcast over a coast-to-coast NBC-WEAF network, with WCAE as the Pittsburgh outlet, from 9 to 9:30 p. m. Dr. Butler is introduced by Mrs. Geline MacDonald Bowman, of Richmond, president of the National Federation of Business and Professional Women's Clubs.

Dr. Butler

Rear Admiral Richard E. Byrd, who was in Pittsburgh Monday in connection with the opening drive of the league's Pittsburgh branch, is national chairman of the organization.

The Northeastern final Atwater-Kent auditions, during which 30 singers adjudged winners in various district auditions throughout this portion of the United States will come to the microphone, will be broadcast over an NBC-WEAF network tomorrow afternoon from 1 to 2 p. m. and from 4 to 5 p. m. The 30 singers include the two Western Pennsylvania winners, Lura Stover, of Pittsburgh, and William H. Stine, of State College.

The program, not carried locally, may be heard through Station WEAF, New York, operating on a frequency of 660 kilocycles.

Program Pointers

Five civic and educational leaders of Pittsburgh are listed to make microphone appearances in behalf of the Welfare Fund today: Blanche Ring, stage star, appearing here next week, WCAE at 2:30; Bishop Alexander Mann, KDKA at 4:45; The Very Rev. J. J. Callanan, of Duquesne University, WJAS at 5; Joseph A. Beck, attorney-at-law, KQV at 7:45; and Mrs. Isabel B. Darragh, of the Charities of the city of Pittsburgh, WWSW at 8:20.

Miss Ring

Angelo Patri, child psychologist, discusses "On Time," stressing the importance of regularity in the life of a growing child and methods for encouraging punctuality, during his "Your Child" talk on WJAS at 7:45 tonight.

"Man-Eating Cannibals," the story of British colonization in the Solomon Islands in 1840 climaxed by the dramatic rescue of a small boy from the native ceremony, the Voda, is enacted during the broadcast of Captain Diamond's Adventures on KDKA at 8.

A variety presentation, including old-time songs and group singing by the audience as well as the entertainers, is the "Corn Cob Pipe Club" offering on WCAE at 10.

Dr. Jacob Gould Schurman, former Ambassador to Germany, friend of President McKinley and chairman of the first commission to govern the Philippine Islands after their acquisition from Spain, speaks on "The Philippine Question" at 8:30 over KDKA.

Scrappy Lambert and Billy Hillpot, as "Trade" and "Mark," return to the Columbia network and WJAS tonight at 8:45. A novel feature of the new broadcasts will be the inclusion of an original limerick by Hillpot on each program.

Listening In

About Gene.
A Talented Countess.
'Cheerio' Announcers.

Gene Byron (Gene's a girl—and a charming one, too), is one of radio's most popular, yet least publicized, actresses. You've heard her often in principal roles on the "Show Boat" and cigaret dance hour dramatic productions. Gene left London, Ont., and her native Canada, for New York three years ago to seek a stage and radio career—and found success awaiting her in both mediums. During the three years she has spent in the eastern metropolis, Gene has been featured in numerous and varied roles on the air, and on the stage has appeared in "Reborn," "Unsophisticated" and "Gasoline Gypsies"...

Miss Byron

The sponsors of that daily Home Circle program, beginning next Monday, will give prizes totaling $1,000 each week to listeners submitting the best statements on "How to Improve Advertising Over the Air"...

Lawrence Andrini, of the "string wizard" Andrini Brothers, expected back in town today with his wife, the former Olga Leone, Corona (N. Y.) violinist... The newlyweds, who trekked altarward last Saturday, will live in Mt. Washington...

The Four Mills Brothers are off the air at present because two of them had their tonsils removed... Dale Wimbrow is substituting.

Have you noticed that the "Cheerio" program, said to be the "Alma Mater" of many well-known NBC announcers, has a new "voice"? It belongs to Lyalle Van, a descendant of an old Dutch family and the newest member of the NBC announcing staff... Some who started their careers with "Cheerio" are Patrick J. Kelly, supervisor of announcers; John S. Young, Ed Thorgerson, Kelvin Keech, Ford Bond and Charles O'Connor... They all return to "Cheerio's" Little Red School House once a year for a reunion.

Countess Olga Albani, who's known for her singing, plays the piano, harp and mandolin... Clyde Doerr, the saxophonist, made his Broadway debut with Ziegfeld's "Follies" 13 years ago... Al Bernard, with a record of a quarter of a century as a minstrel man, made his radio debut on WEAF in 1922... Thomas Belviso, NBC musical director, organized the first Yale band at the New Haven campus.

School Grid Stars With Seals

Announcement of the Sun-Telegraph selections of City League all-star scholastic teams and brief talks by the members of the first team are highlights of the Trained Seals' program over WCAE tonight at 7 o'clock.

The announcement—in line with the closing of the league's season Friday, when Perry and Westinghouse meet in a playoff game—is made public for the first time via radio, the complete story of the choices, with reasons, appearing in tomorrow's Sun-Telegraph.

Additional features of the program are microphone appearances by the coaches of the Perry and Westinghouse elevens. Harry Keck, sports editor, is master of ceremonies, and Julius Levin editor of scholastic sports, who made the selections, introduces the speakers.

Mark Shields, political editor of the Sun-Telegraph, reviews and analyzes the latest local and national political developments during his weekly talk from the studios of WCAE at 6 o'clock tonight.

Staged under the direction of Jane A. White, assistant curator of education at Carnegie Museum, an entertaining program for the children is listed on WCAE at 4:45.

Louis L. Kaufman, Globe-Trotter of the Sun-Telegraph and Hearst Metrotone News, flashes the latest news to WCAE and WJAS dialers at 9:05 a. m., 12:15 p. m., 2:15 p. m. and 6:30 p. m. direct from the Sun-Telegraph editorial rooms.

'Dorothy Vernon' Dramatized

The "Sheer Romance" dramatization presented over an NBC-WJZ network from the studios of KDKA at 6:30 tonight deals with the romance of Dorothy Vernon, of Haddon Hall, and Sir John Manners, ancestor of the present Dukes of Rutland.

Ornan Morgan, pioneer radio singer and winner of the first prize for tenors at the National Eisteddfod held in Youngstown in 1925, presents a quarter-hour recital from KDKA at 5.

ABORT that Cold
(with lemon juice)

Sometimes you get colds that just hang-on for days. That is because the remedy used does not drive the cold symptoms from the system. Try cold abortion and you'll find those stubborn colds broken-up and gone within a few hours. To abort a cold, squeeze two full-sized lemons in a glass of very hot water, to be taken preferably at bedtime. Two hours before, start taking a tablet of Pape's cold compound each hour. After the third tablet take the lemon juice and hot water without sugar, and go to bed, well-covered. Sound sleep will follow, and the cold will be aborted by morning. The lemon juice treatment never fails, but you must have the cold compound to clear the head, dry the nasal passages, and allay any fever. Any druggist has Pape's cold compound; it is perfectly safe, and a tablet will check a cold at any time.

STOCKS DRIFT AS TRADING SLOWS UP

NEW YORK, Nov. 16.—(A.P.)—Stocks were a bit unsettled today, but trading during most of the session was too dull to afford much idea as to what the market's intentions really were.

Although a few issues were affected by special developments, of a dividend or earnings nature, leaders on the whole remained in the trading area they had occupied earlier in the week and the market appeared to be retaining its professional aspect. Wheat's early steadiness helped keep traders cautious.

Ordering of the regular quarterly dividend of American Telephone had been anticipated in well-informed Wall street brokerage quarters. While the company's earnings, equivalent to $5.92 a share in the first nine months or about $1 less than dividend requirements, made it necessary for the company to dip into surplus, it was held that the company was well able to do this. On December 31, last, it had more than $50,000,000 cash and temporary cash investments of about $240,000,000.

Early reports of carloadings by individual roads indicated that a fairly sharp seasonal falling off might be registered for last week. New York Central's loadings were 82,788 cars against 91,698 the week before. Loadings for the week ended November 12 were 22.9 per cent below the corresponding 1931 figure. For the previous week, the margin of decline was 13.7 per cent. St. Paul loadings for the week were 20,703 against 22,372 the previous week, the margin of decline from corresponding 1931 levels being 25.8 and 22.7 per cent, respectively.

Reports that loan requests upon the Reconstruction Finance Corporation were declining somewhat further were well received, particularly the statement that the nation's banks which in the past year had borrowed approximately $900,000,000 had already repaid more than a quarter of these loans.

SAME DIVIDEND ON A. T. & T.

NEW YORK, Nov. 16.—(AP.)—The American Telephone and Telegraph Company today declared a regular quarterly dividend of $2.25 a share on the capital stock, thus maintaining the $9 annual rate.

Though earnings fell short of covering the dividend by about $1 a share for the first nine months this year, Wall street through recent weeks remained steadfast in its belief that the regular dividend would be ordered.

As of December 31 last the consolidated balance sheet showed cash of more than $50,000,000 and temporary cash investments of $239,289,893, a total of about $289,529,000.

For the first nine months this year American Telephone's net income was equal to $5.92 a share compared with $7.01 a share in the like 1931 period.

In telephone losses the company has been showing to better advantage during the past few months, although October failed to show a continuance of the trend toward reduced station losses, reported in August and September.

GRAIN PRICES AGAIN LOWER

CHICAGO, Nov. 16.—Grain prices averaged lower early today. Liverpool cables reported the new British preferential tariff exerted a disturbing influence, and Argentine crop reports were construed as bearish. Opening unchanged to ⅛ cent lower, wheat afterward declined all around. Corn started unchanged to ⅛ up and subsequently underwent a decided sag.

Price setbacks in wheat were later curbed to a noticeable degree by unfavorable reports from domestic winter crop territory southwest except in the immediate section around Salina and Topeka, Kan.

Corn and oats lacked aggressive support from buyers. Provisions were neglected.

Bethlehem Silent On $20,000,000 Suit

NEW YORK, Nov. 16.—(INS.)—Officials of Bethlehem Steel Corporation declined to comment today on a $20,000,000 suit by two small stockholders for an accounting.

The suit, which named as defendants Charles M. Schwab, Eugene G. Grace, Alvin Untermeyer, Percy A. Rockefeller and others, alleged that officers and directors used $20,382,614 of corporation funds to buy 221,200 shares of the corporation's own stock for "undisclosed purposes."

DEBT SITUATION DEADLOCKED IN U. S.

By MERRYLE S. RUKEYSER
Universal Service.

NEW YORK, Nov. 16.—The worldwide deflation of assets in the last three years without a corresponding decrease in liabilities has tended to put the economic machine out of kilter.

To the extent that the price level has fallen, the real value of debts, as expressed in gold, has correspondingly risen. The lack of balance between debt service and current income constitutes a factor making for continued deadlock.

Mr. Rukeyser

Though America is a world creditor, individual Americans are also harassed debtors to the tune of many millions.

Curiously enough, the trumpets have been blown chiefly in behalf of the strongest debtors, including the government of France, with its vast accumulation of gold, which would simplify the transfer problem in connection with meeting the letter of the revised debt contract with the United States Treasury.

DOMESTIC DEBT HUGE

Even the less well circumstanced debtor governments are scarcely facing the immediate plight of individual and corporate debtors at home, who would be among the American taxpayers saddled with the cost of war debts from which foreign governments are seeking to get out from under. A high-powered propaganda machine, working on schedule, is tending to divert American attention from the domestic debt problem to the inter-allied debt situation.

As far as the domestic situation is concerned, domestic debt has been variously estimated at upwards of $125,000,000,000. The realistic minded open market has already drastically written down corporate debt in bond quotations to something like its present value, but institutions and individuals are still trying to lull themselves into believing that urban real estate mortgages are worth their face value. This unrealistic view ignores the vast decline in the reproduction cost of improved real estate and the tremendous decline in rents.

This policy of ignoring realities has caused wholesale foreclosures in our great cities. Creditor has pressed debtor, and landlord in turn has sought to impose on tenants in many instances higher rents than present incomes will support. As a result, there have been numerous defaults on leases, and two or more families have huddled into inadequate space, thus creating an apparent exaggerated surplus in housing. As a result of this abnormal situation, the real estate world, living from day to day, is highly uncertain.

ADJUSTMENT NEEDED

There should be no wholesale repudiation of mortgage contracts. On the other hand, where necessity impels, voluntary scaling down of high interest rates will enable properties to adjust themselves to existing conditions. The alternative to such voluntary adjustments will be the wholesale conversion of mortgages into equities through foreclosure proceedings.

After such expensive and painful operations, the new owner is likely to find himself facing the same operating difficulties as the old. In this world of enlightened self interest, it would be futile to expect owners of good mortgages to scale them down. What is suggested is that holders of depreciated mortgages recognize the condition, and act accordingly, instead of seeking to keep up fiction.

The Reconstruction Finance Corporation could quicken this process of readjustment through stipulating that title companies, insurance companies and banks, which receive aid from the government agency, should pass along the assistance through voluntary adjustments with their own debtors. The British and French conversion operations suggest a technique for inducing creditors voluntarily to exchange inflated mortgages which are insecure under present conditions, for revised mortgages, with lower interest rates, which would assure safety of principal and regularity of income under existing conditions.

R. F. C. GRANTS B. & O. LOAN

BALTIMORE, Nov. 16.—(AP.)—Approval of the $31,625,000 loan from the Reconstruction Finance Corporation today had cleared the way for the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad to offer a plan for refinancing its bonds maturing next March 1.

Announcement of the loan to the railway was made here late yesterday, and at the same time the refinancing plan was made public.

Under its terms, bondholders of the $63,250,000 issue maturing in March, according to officials of the company, will receive 50 per cent in cash and 50 per cent in the company's refunding and general mortgage bonds.

The plan would become effective when substantially all the bondholders have assented to the proposal.

The Interstate Commerce Commission gave its approval to the loan to the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad last August.

A Story of the Conflicting Natures Of Different Generations

Elizabeth Enjoys Herself While Louisa Senses A New Danger

CHAPTER XXIV.

So Elizabeth began to look over the golden frock. Was it pretty enough? Was it smart? She had been "going out," of course, for some years, staidly, with Louisa. Dinners, concerts, theater, bridge. But this would be quite different—a dance.

Could she still dance, she wondered? She had never danced much, at home, before. Lennox had taught her, really. She remembered the dances on shipboard, the colored lights.

She hummed under her breath, she turned her slim body and spun silently about the polished floor, the frock over her arm. Her eyes laughed, her mouth curved. Thirty-one! surely, not such a great age, Lennox—you wouldn't want me not to have a little good time?

She felt achingly tender toward Lennox, as if he were a dear, younger brother, 10 years away—10 years away.

Joyce, running down the corridor, stopped at her mother's half-open door and looked in.

She saw a stranger.

She leaned there, fascinated, her blue eyes fixed, her dark hair falling.

Elizabeth looked up, saw her. Elizabeth stopped dancing. She asked, with an effort, her breath coming fast, "You wanted me, dear?"

"No—I——"

Joyce turned, in a sudden hot embarrassment; fled down the hall. It was as if she had seen her mother standing on her head!

JOYCE IS PUZZLED

There was a window seat at the end of the hall. Joyce clambered upon this and looked through the wide sheet of plate glass. She saw trees, lawn, a small, ornamental pool; she saw the westering sun. Her chin in her hands, she pondered on the revelation she had had of her mother. For the first time she considered her mother, gravely, as a person. Hitherto, she had taken her for granted; background, merely, part of her little world, not an important part. Now she saw her altered, young, dancing, her lips contoured to a smile.

There was resentment in the child's heart. What right had her mother to hide the playing person from her? She felt, instinctively, with the wordless insight of childhood, that the woman with whom she had lived for 10 years, whom she called by the most intimate name in any language, was a complete stranger to her. Silent, gentle, unassertive, colorless, she had moved in Joyce's neighborhood, contributing nothing definite to the child's life. Now, secretly, she had blossomed into a creature of infinite possibilities. With such a person a little girl might run and dance, sing and play. Why had she never before revealed herself? Why had she hated it so that Joyce had seen her? Had not the song died on her lips, the dancing feet ordered themselves to decorum?

The problem was not to be solved. Joyce left the window seat feeling herself cheated. Her fairy tales came to her assistance, she found the explanation. Perhaps, thought Joyce, she's under an enchantment? Or was the other the spell?

HAD BEEN HERSELF

Elizabeth moved about her room, putting out golden slippers, stockings. She was deeply confused. What must the child be thinking?

But she was conscious that her emotion went deeper than the mere embarrassment of having been found in a ridiculous situation by her daughter. For a few moments she had not been Elizabeth Sheldon, widow and mother. She had been herself, younger than youth, a clear flame of unthinking happiness, virgin and innocent. Upon this momentary mood the child had been an intruder.

Dinner was an austerely silent meal. Louisa asked one question only.

"What time will Fred call for you, Elizabeth?"

She murmured, her eyes on her untouched plate, "I think—at nine."

Louisa explained carefully, answering Joyce's gesture of astonishment.

"Your mother is going out—to the Country Club—with Uncle Fred."

Silence descended again.

As soon as she decently could, Elizabeth escaped upstairs. The joy had gone from the golden gown, yet she knew when she had dressed and was looking in the mirror that she was lovely. She was like a daffodil.

She heard Joyce come up. She turned from the glass and went to the child's room to say good night to her. She lingered a moment by the window seat in the hall. The night sky had a luminous, dark pallor, a green star trembled over the pool. In Joyce's room the child was setting things to rights, over-slim in her little petticoat. She watched her mother come in with amazement. She thought, she is under a spell—she is.

DAUGHTER INTERESTED

Elizabeth kissed her. Joyce asked, in a little voice, "What will you do at the Country Club, Mother?"

"There's a dance."

After a minute, Joyce said, shyly, "I'd like to see you dancing, and hear the music."

Elizabeth put a bare arm about her daughter. She thought—I love her—oh, I love her. This was Lennox's child and hers. Yet not hers. She had an impulse to laugh, to weep, to hold the child to her heart, to call out to her, to plead . . . cannot you love me, Joyce? Cannot we break through this barrier between us?

She arose, left the room.

On the way downstairs she heard Van Alstyne's car drive up. The door was open into the small library, Louisa was sitting there, in the big chair with the attached reading stand. Elizabeth went in, a cloak clouding her goldness. "Good night, Cousin Louisa."

Louisa raised her eyes from the page.

"Good night, Elizabeth."

The dark eyes fell to the interrupted paragraph. Elizabeth stood, irresolute. She wanted to ask, oh, why are you so implacably my enemy? Why must you always resent—?

Fred's voice in the hall.

He was announced, came in, spoke to Louisa. "Ready, Elizabeth?" he asked.

A NEW DANGER

The door closed behind them. Mrs. Sheldon lifted her eyes from the printed words which held no meaning for her. She stared straight ahead. She was seeing Elizabeth in the golden gown, under the dark, soft cloud of cloak. She was thinking. Why should she have all these things—youth and beauty and the capacity for happiness, when Lennox was dead?

She laid the book aside and went, as she always did, to Joyce's room, to sit beside her for a little while.

"Wasn't mother—beautiful?" Joyce asked, dreamily.

Louisa stiffened in her chair. She was very quick to scent the new danger which threatened her security. "Yes," she said, briefly, and in a moment, her hand touching the child's, she was talking of Lennox, of Joyce's father. "You must remember him always and love him."

"What's wrong?" Fred asked, in the car, at the wheel.

"Oh, nothing."

"Mrs. Sheldon annoyed?"

"I suppose so. She doesn't like me to be gay, you know."

"And this is being 'gay'? Oh, Elizabeth, wake up! You're a grown woman—a young woman—is there any reason on earth why you should shut yourself up the way you do, fetch and carry for that old person whose life has been lived?"

"She is Lennox's mother."

RARE ENJOYMENT

"Ah—Lennox—" He was silent for a while. He had loved Lennox well. He added, gently, "Lennox would be the last to wish you to—"

"What?"

"Live as you do—"

They were silent, each with his own thoughts. She was angry, at herself. Why had she done it—oh, not deliberately—given him that impression of self-sacrifice, a chosen martyrdom? Lennox's mother. As if it were not. Why couldn't she be brave and say, I'm afraid of her. But then he'd ask why.

The car swung around the drive, came up to the lighted clubhouse.

"I believe I'm nervous!" Elizabeth said.

He understood and answered. "No, you're not. You only think so."

As he helped her from the car he laughed into her eyes, "Cinderella! But you'll not escape me at midnight!"

When she came into the big room, when her feet touched the shining floor and the music was in her ears, when Fred's arm went about her, swung her out, easily, lightly, the nervousness left her. She held her head high, she was young, she was beautiful, she was guided, held closely to the sound of violins. She laughed a little, her cheeks flamed suddenly.

Fred was forced to relinquish her many times. There were partners and to spare for her. Older women, out on the veranda or stopping to look in from the doorways, nodded, with satisfaction, whispered, without malice.

Hours later, Van Alstyne stood with her on the porch of her mother-in-law's house. One light burned in the hall and made a path for her reluctant feet along the painted boards. She was thanking him.

"Every Wednesday night," he said firmly, "and every Saturday. And you'll come to the tennis matches, and I'll teach you to play golf—"

"Oh—no—"

"Elizabeth," he asked, with an exasperation which amused her, "will you never learn sense? What is there to stop you if you want to come?"

He took her hands, drew her a little nearer. She braced herself, instinctively. Her lips formed the inevitable, terrified negative. Laughing, he let her go again.

She let herself in, went up the the creaking stairs. In her bedroom she took off and carefully closeted the golden gown. She looked at herself in the mirror, tired, flushed, still lovely. He had seen her so, down there, on the porch. Later, in bed, she thought, rebellous as a child . . . why shouldn't I? There's no harm in it—

She fell asleep to the remembered sound of violins.

Synopsis

Mrs. Louisa Sheldon idolized her son, Lennox, who died from pneumonia a few days after his marriage to Elizabeth, originally picked by his mother as an ideal wife. Before her idol's death, Mrs. Sheldon had been shocked to learn that he and Elizabeth had plotted to marry before the time which she (Louisa) had stipulated. She forgave her boy—but never Elizabeth—for that. Louisa went abroad with Elizabeth soon after the latter became a widow. In England, Elizabeth's daughter, Joyce, was born and, as years pass and the family is back in New York, the child becomes more and more the image of her father. Louisa moves to mould Joyce just as she did Lennox. Elizabeth has never thought of remarriage until, after 10 years, Fred Van Alstyne, college chum of her late husband, invites her to a club dance.

Now Go On

"Elizabeth, will you never learn sense?" he asked.

SUN-TELEGRAPH-WARNER THEATERS JUNIOR KOMIC CLUB

Mildred Rotthoff, assistant cashier of the Rowland Theater, was back on the job again Saturday and conducted the regular meeting of the Sun-Telegraph-Warner Theaters Junior Komic Club.

The meeting opened with all the members singing "America" and reciting the club pledge. Then the Rowland Junior Komic Club Orchestra of more than 50 pieces played several selections which included "A Shanty In Old Shanty Town" and "Goofus."

While the stage was being cleared of the music stands and chairs used by the orchestra the members, led by Miss Mildred Rotthoff, sang several popular songs accompanied by the organ. Some of the songs sung were: "I Don't Know Why," "Let Me Call You Sweetheart," "Somebody Loves You," "I Just Couldn't Say Goodbye."

RANGERS SURPRISE

The surprise which was promised the members last week was the vaudeville act known as the "Texas Rangers."

This act consists of four young men who specialize in the singing and playing of the old-time cowboy songs. These boys make up the act: Ross Scalise plays the banjo, his brother Jim plays the guitar and mouth organ, Sam (Curly) Curotoli plays the guitar and Mike (Gigolo) Gigliotti plays the violin and also acts as the master of ceremonies.

When the curtain was raised the "Rangers," all dressed in their cowboy costumes, rushed out on the stage shooting their pistols and yelling like a bunch of Indians. After all this noise, which, by the way, brought all the members up out of their seats, the "Rangers" started their part of the program by playing "Red River Valley."

Then Jim Scalise with words and music told the members all about the "Bir—ming—ham Jail." This brought many laughs from the children as well as the grownups who were in the audience.

Once again, as a unit, the four boys played that old favorite—which will be remembered well by mother and dad—"Hand Me Down My Walking Cane."

"Gigolo," as he is known to many, then sang "The Gay Caballero," accompanied by the other three "Rangers."

A tune that was popular in what is now termed the "gay nineties," and which tells all about a famous train wreck, was then offered by the entire group. This was the "Wreck of the Old 97."

"Curly," to the accompaniment of the strumming guitars, offered a wild dance which the master of ceremonies described as an old Indian war dance. It was very realistic and the only part missing was the ceremonial fire and the victim who was to be burned at the stake.

The "Rangers" again working as one struck up "Golden Slippers" another of the old-time lively tunes. Ross Scalise then gave his interpretation of how a cowboy would have danced the "Charleston" if that dance had been know 20 years ago.

Scheduled as the last number was another old-time favorite which "grandpa" use to sing to "grandma" long, long ago. This was "She's Coming Round the Mountain," but these versatile youngsters made such a hit that although it was time for the picture to start, Miss Rotthoff found it impossible to get the youngsters quiet, so she called the "Rangers" back and for an encore they played "Turkey in the Straw." Although shouts of more, more were heard throughout the audience, the members quieted down and the regular show began.

TODAY'S BIRTHDAYS

Congratulations to the following boys and girls, all members of the Sun-Telegraph-Warner Theaters Junior Komic Club, who are celebrating their birthdays today:

What Are Politicians and Why?

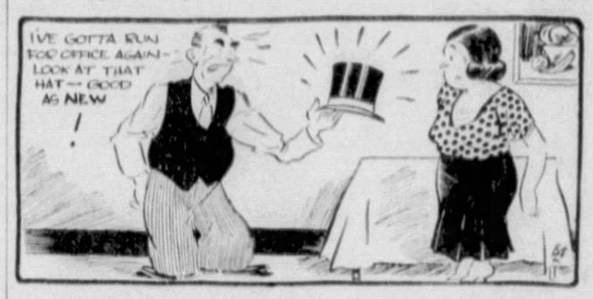
If you think that an election changes politics any then you are brushing your wisdom teeth against the grain.

The ins are merely out during alterations. And the outs are the boys who are going to do the work. Just like a baseball game. Each side takes a turn at the bat and then goes out and kicks the clover around.

One taste of public office is a habit. From then on you are a confirmed statesman. There is nothing you would not do for the people. Nothing is too good for the people. There is nothing they cannot have. And nothing is what they get.

Whether it is Republican or Democrat, fusion or reform, the answer is always a bushel basket of almonds, pecans and other abbreviated retorts. When your man is in office he is as affable as a hog in a wallow and will promise you anything he doesn't want. He claims the cares of state are whitening his brow, reducing his weight and shortening his life.

But the minute he is defeated he starts digging tunnels in an effort to get back again.



All politicians and race horses will go back into burning stables. The only difference is that the hoss will listen to reason and a blindfold.

We don't know the lure and fascination of public office. There must be some unknown magnetic force that drags the incumbent around by his ears. He ain't happy unless he is gazing at you intently through a glass door that the sun can't penetrate.

Does he want the office because he gets a motor car with a low number? Does he hanker for power because he rates a salute from the municipal police? Or does he run again because he figures he should get at least 10 years of wear out of an expensive high silk hat?

There is something elusive in the problem and we hope that Prof. Einstein gets to work on it. We all know that a little power is a dangerous thing and you lose it on a hill. Why do so many men go into politics when they can do better at some trade? Uncle Joe Cannon never did guess the answer. All that he knew was that few die and none resign.

Tax Reduction Demanded

The People Will Be Slow to Accept Excuses for Failure to Reduce the Levy.

The temper of the people in regard to taxation is shown in headlines from yesterday's Sun-Telegraph. Here are some of them:

"1,600 Hear Byrd Call for U. S. Economy Crusade"

That article dealt with the demand for a drastic reduction in the expenses of the federal government.

"League to Demand Legislature Cut Tax"

That was a report from Sharon about the plans of the Tax Justice League to conduct a great demonstration for tax relief at Harrisburg.

"Wage Tax Bill Killed in East"

That told how the Philadelphia City Council was compelled by the angry populace to reverse itself after it had decided, in a desperate effort to save the city from threatened bankruptcy, to impose a tax of one-half of 1 per cent on earned incomes. The Council proposed to impose the tax under the authority of an act passed by the Legislature at the special session, empowering Philadelphia and Pittsburgh to tax anything not already taxed by the state. The uprising of the people of Philadelphia should serve as a warning to Pittsburgh Council to proceed slowly in the exercise of the new power.

"Cut in School Tax Rate Balked by Delinquency"

The Board of Public Education has again fixed the levy at 11¾ mills, over the protest of the Pittsburgh Real Estate Board. The protest would have been much more vigorous, and many others would have joined in it, but for the fact that the people have faith in the Board of Education and believe it has made an honest effort to trim the budget to the lowest figure consistent with the maintenance of good schools.

"Tax Cut Group Organizes"

A committee has been formed under the chairmanship of W. P. Witherow to advise Council as to possibilities of economy in the municipal government and new sources of revenue.

Council is to receive the budget estimates from Mayor Charles H. Kline in a few days. Action will be taken on next year's tax levy within the next few weeks. The citizens will be angry if they fail to get a reduction from the present rate of 23 mills on land and 11½ on buildings.

Philadelphians are telling their Council in no uncertain way that the budget must be balanced, not by increasing taxes, but by reducing expenses. That is the demand in Pittsburgh, too.

"Estimate Dockmaster Gets $217 Monthly"

That is one place in which the pruning knife can be applied. The article to which the headline related stated that the city dockmaster, although, according to report, he does little or no work, visiting the dock only once or twice a month, is estimated to have received $17,800 in fees since 1926.

"Police Bureau Cuts Urged by Alderdice"

The Budget Controller recommends that some of the police stations be done away with, that the black horse troop of mounted officers be abolished, and that the Traffic Planning Bureau be eliminated, that traffic policemen be removed from corners regulated by signal lights, and that the lighting power of some of the electric street lamps be reduced, and some of the lamps dispensed with altogether.

And Alderdice's recommendations are a reminder that Controller J. P. Kerr has said he needs no assistance and that John D. Houston has urged Council, in consequence, to abolish the position of Budget Controller as superfluous.

Houston says 35 per cent of the jobs on the city payroll are unnecessary. That may be an exaggerated estimate. But it unquestionably reflects popular feeling.

The people expect Council to apply the pruning knife remorselessly. They will be slow to accept excuses for failure to reduce the tax rate.

Direct Vote Proposed

The Fitness of the People to Choose Their President Has Been Demonstrated.

When Congress reconvenes in December next, Senator Norris, of Nebraska, chairman of the Senate Committee on the Judiciary, will renew the effort he began several years ago to amend the Federal Constitution so as to permit the people of the United States to elect the President and Vice President by direct vote instead of by the indirect, archaic and useless method of voting for presidential electors.

If Congress will submit such an amendment to the several states, at its next session, it can and doubtless will be ratified without delay. The legislatures of 43 states meet in 1933. The consent of only 36 will provide the necessary three-fourths required to complete ratification.

When the Federal Constitution was adopted, the framers sought to prevent a wave of popular enthusiasm from sweeping into the presidency "a demagogue or military leader who might subvert the political institutions of the new republic."

To protect the presidency against such an invasion, the framers worked out a plan for selecting the President by presidential electors chosen by the various states.

It was expected that the legislatures would choose the electors, who would then meet in each state at the Capitol, and, after careful deliberation, choose for President the man they believed to be best fitted for the office. The candidate receiving the next highest number of electoral votes was to be Vice President.

By 1800, the development of political parties demonstrated one weakness of this plan, and four years later the Twelfth Amendment was adopted providing that each presidential elector shall vote for one person as President and one person as Vice President. This amendment was designed to prevent the election of a President of one party and a Vice President of an opposing party.

How far the American people have progressed since this outworn system of presidential electors was set up has been clear to the masses of the electorate for more than 100 years.

The idea that the American people cannot be trusted to choose wisely their President and Vice President was abandoned soon after the Federal Constitution was adopted, and all experience proves the fitness of the people to make this choice themselves.

Yet year after year the machinery of voting indirectly for President and Vice President has been retained in spite of its uselessness, complexity, and uncertainty.

From the beginning of the government, the people have voted directly for their Representatives in Congress.

Since the ratification of the Seventeenth Amendment to the Constitution in 1913, the people have elected their Senators in Congress by direct vote.

The time has come to scrap an un-American, obsolete, and dangerous electoral system based upon the false assumption that the people of the United States are less fit to vote directly for President and Vice President than they are for Senators and Representatives in Congress.

NEW YORK DAY BY DAY

By O. O. McIntyre

NEW YORK, Nov. 16.—Manhattan's lunch hour extravaganza, foliating in amber-lit dining rooms and mirrored speaks, is a far cry from the happiest lunchers of all. Thousands of them pour out of office buildings at noon, to meet at nearby corners in delightfully shy greetings.

These are the inconspicuous lovers, whose sitting-out places are the parks, whose adventures are bus-top rides and whose extravagances are—instead of the self-serving cafeteria—the shadowy nook of a tea room. Sometimes they stroll to the Hudson and stand lost in illimitable wonder of their love.

If they talk at all it is in self-conscious murmurs of "almost $500 in the bank," or of a bird's-eye maple suite on installment. While the Waldorf and Casino ripple with scandal, latest play or book, these ordinary lovers sit in starry-eyed silence. Words no longer have much meaning.

Often he pays his bill and she pays hers. They are saving for something of mutually vaster importance. Life already is very serious. With an index finger purpled by typewriter ribbon, she may emphasize that he is gulping his food too hurriedly or that one after-lunch cigaret is sufficient.

They are happy, as all honest things are happy. No fierce unattainables storm in their breasts. When they dream, it is of sand-soaped steps and a garden in a life and open their arms to each other!

William MacHarg, noting mention here of his having taken up golf as a hobby, pens a refutation that it is not so much hobby as a form of agriculture. And all of us ex-plow-boys catch the idea.

On lower Fourth avenue, in the dark yawn of one of these romantically dusky second-hand book shops, I stopped for a moseying mooch through old tomes. Nowhere has prowling such significance. A shabby, genteel proprietor, whose life largely has been spent pasturing among his well-thumbed treasures, never inquires your wants. He feels that those who prowl have a genuine throb for rare volumes and that is enough. After a few trifling purchases, I asked what books he enjoyed most. The two he remembered best were: "The Autobiography of Benvenuto Cellini" and Dumas' "The Three Musketeers." And, he added, in beautiful simplicity: "That may be because my life outside my books, is without a single adventure."

LISTEN, WORLD

By Elsie Robinson

Are men going to the dogs because women are going into jobs?

A "Worried Mother" wondered—with plenty of reason—for her daughter was working, and so was her daughter-in-law; and their respective partners were sitting back and taking it easier every day.

Worried Mother couldn't understand. Men hadn't been like that in her youth. A man who let his wife support him would have been the laughing stock of the community. But, nowadays, young men took a wife's job and pay check for granted; actually expected her to "do her share"; weren't a particle ashamed if she had to carry the whole load.

Worse yet, the young women agreed—frankly acknowledged that "marriage isn't possible unless they're both working." Yet, despite their frankness, they grew bitter in time.

Parasite husbands; peevish wives. Has marriage come to that? Worried Mother asked for answers, and in they came by the thousands. Scores of yeas; scores of nays. Here are some samples that are good for a scrap in any office, at any dinner table.

Dear Miss Robinson:

"Does a working wife spoil a husband? In the majority of cases, she certainly does! Yet there are a few men in the world who can stand it, and I honestly believe I'm one of them. Briefly, here's my record:

Age, 32. Was in school when war broke out. Enlisted in Navy in 1915; paid off in 1920. Married in 1921. Got a railroad job. Due to my absence from home and the fact that my wife's parents were lonely, we made our home with them, and our child, who is now 10, was born there.

Lost my job in 1927. Had an off-and-on-time getting placed, but am now doing well. When my job failed, my wife secured a position in an automobile accessory place near home, which she has held ever since. The salary was small, but she was able to pay for her own and the child's clothes.

IN FAIRNESS TO HER, I WISH TO STATE THAT SHE HAS ALWAYS BEEN THE BETTER "BUSINESS MAN" OF THE TEAM.

Wife living at home with her parents, paying all of her own expenses for a while; I working 300 miles away, sometimes idle. There are all the makings of a tragedy in a situation like that. But how has it worked out with us? Wonderfully!

Never has my wife lost her respect for me, nor I my love for her. I cannot see her or the little girl very often, but we are still sweethearts—our romance as fresh as it was the first day. We have a tidy sum in the bank, a good small car, a lot paid for, and next spring we intend to build a home.

BUT PLEASE NOTE THIS—NEVER ONCE HAVE I ACCEPTED A DOLLAR OF MY WIFE'S MONEY, AND NEVER WILL. MY SALARY SUPPLIES THE COST OF LIVING. HER SALARY GOES FOR HER PERSONAL EXPENDITURES, OR EXTRA LUXURIES WHICH WE BOTH ENJOY.

That's how the "working wife" situation has turned out for us.

G. H. A.—Charlotteville, N. C.

A mighty modern marriage, yet as successful as any sturdy oak-clinging vine combination. But it doesn't always work that way. As for instance:

Dear Elsie:

"Does a working wife spoil her husband?" I'll say she does! And I should know, for I've done that to mine. I married an "old-fashioned, chivalrous gentleman," who winced at the very thought of a woman working; but I talked him into it, and soothed his hurt pride when my salary proved the larger.

It was wonderful at first. He helped me with the housework and was never tired of praising his "partner." But, little by little, all that stopped. Pretty soon I was doing both jobs—office and housework. And all the time our standard of living was increasing. He loved luxury. My extra salary enabled us to have it.

And now, after 10 years, what is the situation?

I've got to work, now. He has become a spoiled darling, and, though I still persist in loving him, I have a shameful, secret knowledge that our romance would be shattered if he had to face hardship.

As for me—I hate my job! My heart is sick and empty for the children I have been unable to have; and the dollars I have earned and spent have bought us nothing but a "false front." How I wish I could start all over again! I WOULD NEVER WORK A DAY!

A REMORSEFUL WORKING WIFE.

So there you have 'em—yeas and nays on the most important subject on earth. And now, YOUR experience—let's have it. Do you or don't you work, lady? And if so, what's it doing to your husband and your home?

(Copyright, 1932, King Features Synd., Inc.)

Isn't It So?

Every man is the boss of his own home until the company leaves.

Economic ideals must include the ideal of beauty as well as the ideal of plenty.

A lot of married men are afraid to go to sleep for fear their wives may hear something that isn't worthy of listening to.

Volstead Modification And When

By Claude G. Bowers

Author of "The Struggle for Democracy in America," "Founders of the Republic," "Jefferson and Democracy," "The Tragic Era" and other important works, now writing for the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph.

The election definitely ends the mockery of national prohibition, and it is possible, in view of the overwhelming verdict of the people, that something may be done about the Volstead act during the short session of Congress beginning in December. However, in the enthusiasm of the moment, it is just as well to sound the warning that the men given a mandate on that subject do not go into office until in March.

The Congress which will convene in December is the old Congress that did nothing on the Volstead act. Not a few of the members ran for Congress on a dry pledge in 1930—and they are not absolutely obligated to change until the term for which they then were elected has expired. But all the Democrats who ran in 1930 and again in 1932 were under a party pledge as to their terms beginning in March next. There is no escape from that pledge.

It is true that the verdict of the people has released all those elected as drys in 1930 and would justify their vote for immediate modification, but where they have been conscientious drys they do have the technical excuse for doing nothing until their new term begins. It will not be an impressive excuse—but, in the case of some, it will serve.

* * *

Where Is the Money To Be Found?

There are special reasons why the sooner the Volstead act is swept aside the better. We still have millions of jobless men, and the immediate modification of the Volstead act to permit the manufacture and sale of beer would put hundreds of thousands of men to work without waiting for the spring.

And there is another reason which may prove overpowering when the solons meet next month. One of the serious problems confronting them will be the finding of new sources of taxation to balance the budget. We heard much twaddle during the campaign about the budget having been balanced. It was not. The indications are that the year will show a deficit of at least a billion dollars. New or increased taxes on old sources must result. The business of the country now is overburdened with taxation. The income tax under existing conditions, with incomes shrinking and disappearing, has reached the point of diminishing returns.

Where is the money to be found?

It can be found by the immediate modification of the Volstead act with a tax on beer. It has been estimated that this would bring in just about the sum represented by the deficit.

Under these circumstances it would be common sense and good public policy immediately for the country to avail itself of this way out.

* * *

Under Certain Obligations

However, Congress alone cannot modify the Volstead act to permit the sale of beer. It can pass the modification act, but that act cannot become a law until it has been approved by the President, unless he sees fit to permit it to become a law without his signature.

There is absolutely nothing on the record that would justify the conclusion that President Hoover would sign such a bill. He certainly justified the impression by his action and attitude from the time of the convention until the election that he would not favor such a course. If we may judge from his public expression, his position has been that he favors a modified form of repeal of the Eighteenth Amendment, and, pending the processes of repeal, he opposes any change in the Volstead act.

But he, too, now understands the temper of the people on the subject, and he can easily justify himself, if he sees fit, in changing his position on immediate modification. By doing so he would create for himself a more friendly feeling than was disclosed by the verdict of the polls, and go out gracefully.

However, he did receive the warm support of the forces opposing modification of repeal. This is of no consequence now, unless he had a distinct understanding with these forces which resulted in their support. In that event he is under certain obligations not easily thrown off.

* * *

Republicans May Join with Democrats

But after all, prohibition became hopelessly mixed up with politics and now politics should be adjourned and every one, regardless of party or commitments no longer morally binding because of the verdict of the people the other day, should concentrate on just two things in the short session.

One is finding a way to relieve the unemployment situation.

The other is to balance the budget without increasing the already intolerable burdens of the tax payers.

The partial solution of these two problems is plain as a pike's staff.

Even from the view point of party politics, the Republicans now have no stomach for continuing their battle for prohibition. They know it is a lost cause. They know they have paid a heavy penalty for their failure to see that it was lost last spring. They realize that the future of their party will not be served by sticking to a man and going down with the ship. It therefore seems inevitable that they will join with the Democrats on that issue. If enough of them do it would be possible to pass a modification act even over the President's veto, and, as we have said, there is every reason to assume that Mr. Hoover has seen a great light.

* * *

Modification This Winter!

If politics are to be considered the Democrats can lose nothing by having modification during the short session with the approval of Mr. Hoover. It must be quite clear to everyone that the changed situation regarding prohibition has been brought about by the gallant fight made openly and honestly by the Democrats in the recent campaign. An immediate modification would be due entirely to the success of the Democratic fight. Certainly the Democrats cannot afford for any reason not to push modification at the earliest possible moment. But should conditions make it impossible to modify this winter there can be a modification in the spring when the Democrats with their pledge and their distinct mandate go into power.

* * *

Borah Took His Stand

There is nothing surprising in the announcement that Senator Borah will oppose modification. It is not an easy matter to understand his utter devotion to the prohibition cause. He is not unfamiliar with the scandals and futility of national prohibition. He knows as well as any man in public life, the necessity of increasing employment and decreasing taxes on ordinary business. But he took his stand long ago and has so completely identified himself with it that it is not an easy matter to change. But even he has a sound reason for changing now.

Thus, Senator Borah is a stout champion of democracy and argues in season and out of season that the people have a right to rule. The people have spoken unmistakably. The people of Idaho have spoken. If the people have a right to rule, and Senator Borah believes they have, he cannot justify a stand, now that the people have spoken, against the public will.

His position in the campaign was one of silence. But in the closing days he came close to declaring for Mr. Hoover—and on the prohibition issue. But since then the election has been held. The verdict has been rendered. And it is against Senator Borah's position on prohibition.
